

Most changed Ford Division car for 1973 is the full-sized Ford. Shown here is the LTD four-door hardtop. All-new sheet metal below the window line and a new segmented grille give the 1973 Ford a more formal look. All 1973 Fords have a new impact-absorbing bumper system, although the overall length of the car is increased only about one inch. Power front disc brakes, power steering, SelectShift Cruise-O-Matic transmission and a 351-2V eight-cylinder engine are standard in all new Fords.

A VICE PRESIDENT of a Madison Avenue advertising agency died after a short illness and the people in the business were understandably shocked. "What did he have?" asked one executive. Another replied, "I think it was Lever Brothers, General Foods and Revlon."

IN ISLINGTON, North London, two health stores have opened side-by-side. A sign in the first shop window reads: "We have nothing to do with the shop next door." In the second shop is a notice declaring: "We have POSITIVELY nothing to do with the shop next door."

ANIMALS . . . from Funny World

TRUMAN CAPOTE tells about the fellow who went to dinner at a friend's apartment on the 17th floor of a Manhattan apartment house. While his hostess attended to some last minute details in the kitchen, he played with her German shepherd. He threw the rubber bone several times and the dog went to fetch it. Then, throwing harder than he intended, he threw the bone out the terrace door and over the railing. Incredibly, the dog followed it out to the terrace and bounded over the railing to the street 17 floors below. Horrified, the young man began pondering what to say. When finally they sat down to dinner, he looked at the hostess and said, "Perhaps it's just my imagination, but your dog seemed rather depressed to-night . . ."

TAPE RECORDED screams of killer whales may save some species of porpoise from extinction. For unknown reasons, porpoises and tuna tend to run together. So when a school of porpoise is spotted, the ship surrounds it with a purse, say half a mile in circumference, hoping to bring in a catch of tuna. The porpoises, despite their ability to jump 15 feet, become entangled in the net and drown. It is hoped that the broadcast screams of killer whales will send the porpoises fleeing from the tuna nets and thus avoid capture and death. (Science Digest)

THEY APPARENTLY have a nasty class of dog in Baltimore because the county commission on physical fitness has had to issue a booklet advising cyclists how to repel them: "Keep your pedal speed very high. This will make your feet a poor target." (London Sun)

MEDICAL STUDENT, Siegfried Hempel, was named Animal Lover of the Year in Bonn, West Germany--after kissing a pig non-stop for 45 seconds.

THE COLUMNISTS . . . From Funny World

GREGORY MCKAY reports he brought some things to a laundromat and sat watching his underwear and socks being tossed about in the dryer. Next to him a pretty girl sat in front of her machine where her silk and lace bras were whirling around with the other unmentionables. "Care to change places?" smiled Greg. "Your machine is showing a much more exciting program than mine." (Bill Kennedy, Los Angeles Herald-Examiner)

LEONARD Bernstein, whose father was the son of a rabbi, said that his father opposed his musical career on the grounds that it would be economically suicidal, and wanted him to be a rabbi. "There are many people who tell me that his wish came true, that what I really am under all this is a rabbi," Bernstein said. He added that his children always tell him "a rabbi is a teacher." Finally, when the senior Bernstein--whom the conductor-composer-pianist remembers as a witty and warm man--was asked how he could possibly have opposed his son's musical career, he answered frankly: "How could I know he was going to grow up to be Leonard Bernstein?"

THE OLD EGO IS flattered when somebody remembers your name . . . especially if it turns out he's not trying to sell you anything. (Bill Vaughan)

MEDICINE . . . From Funny World

AN INTERNATIONAL sign language for illness has been developed by a Brazilian doctor. Dr. Fernando Vieira de Silva has designed 50 hand signals which patients can use to tell a doctor anywhere in the world where it hurts, what is probably wrong, and if it's getting better or worse. He also has signals for common conditions--a curved, raised index finger to indicate a previous heart attack, three raised fingers to indicate diabetes, etc. (Science Digest) (There ought to be a signal to tell a doctor what to do when he presents his bill. But on the other hand, the Italians have had that for years.)
