Road Closures Proposed on Big Game Ranges

by Milt Guymon During the big game seasons scheduled in the next two months, big game hunters will have a chance to comment on some proposed road closures in the Malheur, Ochoco, and Wallowa national forests.

The road closures that would be in effect during the 1973 seasons affect around 81,000 acres in Malheur, about 93,000 acres in the Ochoco, and a smaller amount in the Imnaha Unit in the Wallowa.

This fall nimrods will find the areas suggested for road clo-sures posted with large yellow signs. Forest patrolmen and Game Commission personnel will be in each area to discuss the suggested closures with interested hunters. Final details will be developed during the winter after evaluating the omments received.

In the Malheur, proposed restrictions to vehicle travel take in four blocks and 170 miles of back roads, all located in areas of major big game migration routes or vital escape cover. Over 3,000 miles of roads remain open to vehicle use. All main roads will be open but access to some camping areas may be restricted if the proposal is enacted. Foot or horseback travel will not be restricted About 12,000 acres are involved in the Snow Mountain District in the Ochoco and about 81,000 acres in the Rager District. Again, main roads would remain open, with side roads in areas of good escape cover or main migration routes blocked to entry by vehicle.

Litter Bags For Hunters

Gurr said that in addition, temporary road stations where hunters may leave their names, addresses and general location for emergency purposes will be provided the weekends October 7, 8 and 9, and 14 and 15. The BLM's two-way radio system will also be made available for emergencies if needed by the hunters in this

The proposed closures in the Imnaha take in the upper Lick Creek drainage from the Lick Creek Guard Station west to Nebo Mountain and the upper Grouse Creek drainage around Morgan, Miller, and Gumboot buttes.

The purpose behind the proposed road closures is an attempt by the GameCommission and Forest Service to put the 'hunt'' back in hunting -- to make hunting a test of hunting and tracking skills, to provide the hunter with a quality hunting experience instead of a road hunting show with little or no escape for the animal being pursued. Ever increasing pressures placed on big game resources suggest more refined management in the form of access control and a road closure program.

Elk hunters in the Chesnimnus have experienced this road and access control the past two seasons with over 87 percent of those hunting this area voicing enthusiastic approval. About percent held no opinion and the remainder didn't like the restrictions. In the Chesnimnus the "armchair" hunters were much in the minority.

Proposed road closures in all three areas take in important the ground and 164 in the air on offense to fine blocking by big game migration routes, vitally needed escape cover, and fawning and calving grounds. Such areas are essential, areas which big game may move about without undue harassment, if we are to maintain quality hunting in Oregon. If the proposals are approved, quarter. nimrods in 1973 will have to hunt these back areas on foot or horseback.
