Special Course For Parents of Toddlers

Parents of toddlers are frequently puzzled by their behavior. Is it normal? What should I expect? How do I get him to cooperate? How much discipline? These are only a few of the questions that parents ask.

To help parents of the 1 to 3 year-old find answers to these and other questions, Malheur County Extension Service will offer a correspondence or home study course according to Helen Conner, Extension Home Economist, beginning January 23, 1973. The course will consist of four lessons. Each lesson includes a work sheet to help the parent become involved in learning about toddlers. A brief report-back is included with each lesson to be mailed back to the county office before the next lesson is sent.

Speaking To The Consumer

COAT CLEANING ALERT. All-weather coats that look like suede are causing consumer complaints because of dry-cleaning difficulties. The coats are labeled 100 per cent cotton, have a deep pile lining, and are imports from Holland or Belgium. Because they were manufactured before July 1972, they carry no care labels. Cleaned in the improper type of solvent, the outer surface of the coat develops a blistered appearance and separates from the underneath layer.

Consumers having such a garment should not use self-service methods and should alert dry cleaners to the problem. Determine who is taking responsibility for the garment before leaving it for care.

CONSUMERS GET COURT COSTS. One of the most important rights given the consumer by the Oregon Deceptive Trade Practices Act (H.B. 3037) is the right to $200 minimum damages plus attorney fees and court costs if the consumer has been victimized by a deceptive trade practice. Thus, even if a consumer has been swindled out of only $10 or $15, it is still worthwhile to sue for the entire $200 and get attorney fees and court costs paid.

BUDGETING BY FOUR FOOD GROUPS. Have you ever thought of dividing your food dollar four ways--budgeting with emphasis on the "Basic Four" groups: milk, meat, vegetables and fruit, breads and cereals? Some food managers have found that this method helps keep costs in line at the same time that nutritional needs are reviewed. As a guide, if families followed the USDA low-cost food plan for a good diet, they would spend their dollars this way: milk group 18 cents, meat group 30 cents, vegetables and fruit 25 cents, cereals and bakery products 16 cents and all other foods 11 cents.

BEFORE YOU REMODEL. Are you planning to remodel your house? Before signing an agreement with your building contractor, do your homework. Knowing exactly what you want to accomplish and what can be done within your space limitations can bring financial savings as well as greater satisfaction.

An Extension publication, "Family Housing Handbook" is available to assist you with space needs and preplanning. See and study it at your county extension office. Or order a personal copy by mailing two dollars to Walt Matson, Extension Service, Gilmore Hall, Oregon State University, Corvallis 97331.

COUPON ECONOMICS. Do the coupons you find in magazines or in your mail really save you money? Does the "seven cents off on Sudso detergent" actually save you seven cents on your total bill?

If you are brand conscious and wouldn't buy anything but Sudso, the coupon saves you money. But if you are price conscious, you will compare the cost of Sudso, less seven cents, with all other detergents that you are willing to use. If there still isn't a better buy, use the coupon. But if there is a product for less, buy it and ignore the coupon. It wouldn't save you money in spite of its "seven cents savings" promise.

Compare costs every time so you aren't caught in the credibility gap between real value and fake savings.

NON-CASH BENEFITS. Not all wages are "cash." In fact, a recent report shows that 31 percent of company payrolls goes to the employee for benefits other than cash. This means that for every $600 a consumer receives as income, he may also be getting an additional $200 by having his employer "buy"

My Inventory

BY HARRIET V. TURNER

I scanned my ledger of the old year today, My record of the small place I fill in God's plan. For it is written God writes in his book of life, All the deeds good and evil in the lives of man.

Came the pages of God's intricate handiwork, The beautiful creations of land, sky, and sea. With my pen, artists brush and the spoken word, I can praise Him with my talent God requires of me.

Came my page of dark clouds and storm, My balance sheet changed from black to red. I found when my intentions were to do only good, Evil powers reared its discouraging head.

Then came my happy day of sunshine and blue overhead, There appeared a beautiful rainbow in my sky. I marveled at the awesome colors of blended hue, Created by a loving God for such as you and I.

The old year has joined the annals of time, I turned a new page all spotless and white. I resolved in this new year to observe the Golden Rule, Love my neighbor as myself and stand up for the right.

I will enjoy each moment every hour of my day, Note the thrill of the bird-the beauty of the tree. In all my joy or sorrow I will trust and obey, With faith accept my lot, My Lord gives to me.

Items that he would otherwise have to provide for himself. These are some items employers "buy" for workers: Unemployment insurance, on-the-job disability insurance, the retirement income-disability-survivor benefits through Social Security. Others may provide for himself, dental insurance, life insurance, use of an automobile, membership fees in clubs and civic organizations, clothing for use on the job, and free or low cost meals.
