My Nyssa Home

by George Moore

I've been to sweet sunny France,
I've also sailed over to Spain,
On the banks of the Rhine,
I've killed lots of time,
When weary I returned home again,
But the beauties I've met
I shall never forget,
N'er since that fair charmer I've seen,
For I've noticed in roaming
From my own Nyssa home,
Her face shines before me just like a dream.

Now I met her last night
On the Old Snake River Bridge
Returning from her uncle's farm.
I ventured to tell her the faults I begat--
Not wishing to cause her alarm,
She blushing said, "To all you propose I agree,
Married we'll get and you'll never regret,
George the hours you waited for me."

In Beautiful Idaho

By George Moore

Across the plains to the Western lands,
Where the mighty rock of the Shoshonies stand,
Among the hills and fur clad peaks, is a Valley called, Boise Land
And the city of Idaho City, lie down in the hills,
Like a beautiful jewel lie among the green hills,
So I went to sleep on the plains so wide,
With an Indian scalp by my side.

I had a dream of a Ranch by a stream, out in the land of the west,
Where the cattle low by the moonlight glow,
In a land that God had blessed,
Where a boy could grow, sweet nature to know,
And his soul had a chance to expand,
Near the snow cap peaks and bubbling creeks,
In Beautiful Idaho Land.

I love that land where men are strong,
Where their will power cannot be shaken,
Where they fight for the things they think is right,
Or apologize if they are mistaken,
That is where I'll have my home in the West,
Out in the meadows near the mountain snow,
This is where I live, in the Land of Wealth,
In Beautiful Idaho.

NOTE: George Moore was a frequent visitor at the Journal office. He recited poetry and we have printed many of his poems.
These are two of the last poems he left at our office before he entered the Veterans Hospital in Boise, George, passed away Wednesday, January 17, 1973.
