AWARENESS: WEAPON IN BATTLE AGAINST HEART, BLOOD VESSEL DISEASES

Heart and blood vessel diseases kill more Americans — more than a million a year — than all other causes combined. What compounds the tragedy is this: many of these deaths need not occur. Thousands of lives could be saved just by knowing a few simple, readily available facts.

Heart attack — the largest single cause of death — kills more than 675,000 Americans a year. The average victim waits three hours before he decides to get help. More than half die before they reach the hospital. Warning signs usually precede a heart attack. When they occur, minutes can mean the difference between life and death. Remember the early warning signs; clip them out and keep them at your fingertips.

The warning signs of a heart attack:

- Prolonged heavy pressure or squeezing pain in the center of the heart behind the breastbone.
- Pain may spread to the shoulder, arm, neck or jaw.
- Pain or discomfort is often accompanied by sweating.
- Pain may go away, then return.
- Nausea, vomiting and shortness of breath may also occur.

These signs don't always signal the onset of heart attack. They can be false alarms. But you must know for sure. When you experience one or more warning signs, call your doctor and describe the symptoms in detail. If he's not immediately available, get to a hospital emergency room at once.

Education to provide people with heart saving information, community programs to detect and treat those with high blood pressure, and funds for heart research, are provided by the American Heart Association and its affiliates and chapters across the nation. February is Heart Month when Heart Associations conduct fund raising campaigns to finance their year-round efforts. We urge you to help your heart — and help your Heart Fund.

SUPERINTENDENT'S CORNER

By W.L. McPartland

What is the effect of some of the extra activities around school?

Mel Munn, Elementary Principal, Gary Condon, Music Dept., Tom Edwards, Elementary P. E., and Stephen Glauer, Director of Special Education, just finished a series of meetings with the Lions Club explaining how all of these activities contribute to the total school program to help children learn to read and do better school work. Under the direction of the Music Dept., many opportunities are given youngsters to participate in singing, drama and instrumental activities.

It is interesting to me, and I've always felt that you can tell more about a person's true behavior in 15 minutes on the playground than you can see in an hour in the classroom.

Does your youngster take part — is he hesitant, shy or awkward? In the special assignment area, youngsters are being contracted into shop, jugsaws and hand tools, P.E. activities, drama and music, and library.

There is a place for every youngster to earn a right to take part. How does a youngster view himself? It is not what we are, but what we think we are that is important.

Every person has a right to earn his or her place in society. The school is one of the avenues that can help each child find something that he can do and be successful. The home and family is the most important segment of society in building this good self image. The church and the community all help and have an input in helping each child develop as an individual.

If each of us will be as positive and constructive as possible, I'm sure that each child will in turn develop into the positive vibrant human being that we all admire and strive to be.

It is too easy to find fault. What can you do today to do your part in making someone have just a little better picture of himself?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Journal:

I'm so sorry I haven't written sooner but I want to send good news when I wrote. Jim is really doing great—the surgery (second) was very successful and we've had no complications so we are very excited and pleased that things are going so well. Jim is up and around and eating very well and looking forward to coming home this weekend possibly.

Please put a note in the paper from us as follows:

Dear Friends,

Thank you so much for all the nice things you've done for us during Jim's illness. We wish we could thank each of you personally and when we come home we will. We just wanted to send a note to let you know how much we appreciate the cards, letters and prayers. The Lord has surely been busy taking care of us and your prayers have helped so much.

Hope to be home soon and in the coffee shop.

Love,

Jim and Judy Robinson

P.S. Tell Chamber members "Hi", we miss you all very much.

Judy

Editor, The Journal:

Having just read the front page of your paper announcing the budget board has recommended we reinjoin the Greater Oregon League and the additional expense be allotted in the budget, plus your editorial concerning the boys sports, could I ask for additional space for equal opportunity for the girls?

How many readers are aware that the cheer leaders in our school finance themselves, their outfits for the entire year? These include one set for football games, one for basketball and another one or two to wear to school on the day of games to help promote school spirit. How much do the boys themselves pay for their uniforms? None! The varsity cheerleaders attend camp each summer to learn cheer leading, and the girls personally finance these trips, or hold money raising projects to help out. Our school even charges the Junior Varsity for riding the bus to out-of-town games, and in such cases as district play-offs, or state play-offs, the girls pay their own transportation, food and lodgings.

I mention all the above because my husband and myself owe an apology to the Sophomore class, especially the basketball team of that class. We decided on the spur of the moment to go to the Sophomore game in Emmett, and invited the cheer leaders along. We couldn't help but notice that the pep club bus arrived five minutes after the end of the Sophomore game. Never has the bus arrived before 15 minutes until the game ended. Because the girls did not ride the bus, they have now been suspended from further cheerleading. The reason given is that they are to report to Miss Reece ahead of time if they don't intend to ride the bus.

If this is a school or board ruling, fine — we erred. But many is the hour I have spent trying to contact Miss Reece by phone to no avail. And as far as getting permission is concerned, at the game in Parma, the girls had been invited by a school teacher to ride over early, the girls asked Miss Reece's permission and were turned down. I mention these injustices so that future cheer leaders may have it easier. But also, if you are going to spend another $3,700 on boys athletics, how about a little financial aid for the girls?

Reverend Bob's Column

On the banks of the Jordan River, John, The Baptist, who was the last of the prophets and first voice of a new era, began his ministry. John's figure was one to stir the imagination. He was a Nazarene, he had never cut his hair and never tasted wine, and never knew love except his love for God and his parents. While he was still young he left home and buried himself in the desert, lived alone, clothed with camel skin, tall, bony and baked by the desert sun. His hair hung to his shoulders and a beard covered his face.

John, the Baptist was the forerunner of Christ. In Oriental countries when the king was to visit a certain part of the country a representative of the king would go there and say something like this, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight. Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be brought low, and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough ways shall be made smooth." Not only would the road be prepared but the houses cleaned, clothes mended and all the people would take baths and groom themselves for the visit of the king.

And now in Israel the King of Kings and the Lord of Lords was soon to appear so John, the Baptist says, "Prepare yourselves, repent of your sins for one mightier than I cometh, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to unloose: He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire". Soon Christ did appear, John baptized Him and pointed Him out to the people saying, "Behold the Lamb of God, Who taketh away the sins of the world".
