Did You Know

Riverview had a store established by the Holly Brothers in 1911. Riverview was the site of a ferry operated by the county across the Snake River. Dewey Miller operated the ferry and it was known as Miller's Ferry. The old ferry was abandoned when the highway bridge was built to span the river nearer the railroad in 1914.

The old town of Riverview is on the corner between J. W. McGinnis and J. H. Miller. The original store is now on the Tommy Ishida place and they are living in it. The two old buildings on the corner were the warehouse and the ice house.

The name Adrian was adopted by the railroad February 13, 1913. This was in honor of James Adrian, a sheepman.

Riverview post office was established on the east side of the river on August 22, 1911, with John E. Holly as postmaster. About 1915, the office was moved west across the river to the vicinity of Adrian station and the name of the office was changed to Adrian on November 10, 1919.

THE JOHN BOSTON FAMILY of Apple Valley were surprised last Friday when their nanny goat gave birth to quadruplets, three does and one buck.

The usual litter is two kids, according to Boston. He said that in checking his encyclopedia he found that occasionally a mother goat gives birth to three kids, and four is very rare.

All four of the young ones were getting along just fine when this picture was taken Saturday, less than 24 hours after they were born.

Gov. McCall Statement For May

"We've had tremendous success in over a hundred battles involving legislation on matters of ecology and environment. If Oregon can do it, other people try it.

"One example is our bottle bill--containers must be sold with a deposit. Every state is now considering something like it. We're trying to save the Willamette River shores and greenway in their original form as the pioneers found them. The beach bill was one of our greatest wins--all the beach clear up to the vegetation line now belongs to the people.

"Ahead we're facing one of our most important battles--land use planning and zoning. People with buffalo-hunter mentality are all around. You leave one little aperture open and they gallop through like it was the Oklahoma land rush.

"None of this should stop us from going ahead with imaginative government, good schools, fine public accommodations, and an industrial base to make the public outlays possible. But I just think we should move carefully on a planned route to protect Oregon's natural assets. So when Sunset comes here 75 years from now, you can say that Oregon really hasn't changed much."

RR Crossing Causes Another Accident

The Callahan and Holly Wrecking Service of Adrian was called late Friday evening, April 27 to another accident on highway 201 north of Adrian at the railroad crossing.

Parley Merrill of Adrian was taken to the Malheur Memorial Hospital after rolling his Jeepster into the drain ditch. The automobile sustained extensive damages.

Several cars a year go off the road at this crossing, as it turns at the crossing and seems to throw cars off balance, especially traveling north.

"Baseball is almost the only place in life where a sacrifice is really appreciated." (Mark Beltaire)

How important is a will?

The importance of careful financial management of your estate can't be overstated. To begin with, an up-to-date will is essential. A will lets you specify who will receive your estate and how... outright or in trust. It lets you select who will settle your estate... and it may reduce taxes and administration costs, too. When there is no will these benefits are lost.

A will also provides the opportunity of setting up trusts for your family's protection. Without this protection the problems of management will pass outright to your beneficiaries along with your estate. A trust arrangement under a will, however, will ensure that your family gets proper benefits, while management remains the duty of the trustee.

At First National we've had years of experience in estate management. As executor and trustee we settle an estate... and take care of its long-range management, as well. While planning the details of the will is a job for your attorney, we'd be glad to discuss with both of you the scope of our services.

Our trust representative in Nyssa is Gene Robinson. Gene will visit our Nyssa branch on Wednesday, May 30. Call or come in soon and make an appointment to talk with Gene. Find out how you can benefit from our estate management services.
