THIS YOUNG COUPLE WAS BEFRIENDED by several Nyssa individuals and agencies Tuesday, and the help may have kept a small baby alive and healthy.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lawford of Bangor, Maine are traveling by bus to North Bend, Oregon where he will be employed. Last Tuesday, May 8, they made a stop at Burley, Idaho where their little Fabian was born. They resumed their journey the next day, but only as far as Caldwell, where they stopped in a motel to allow mother and baby to recuperate. Their money ran out and they again resumed their journey Tuesday, but got only as far as Nyssa when they again left the bus because the baby was sick.

Bus depot employees in Nyssa called Rev. Bob Hutchinson, president of the Nyssa Ministerial Association, who got things rolling. The baby was taken to a local physician, who prescribed a formula that is given to newborn babies at Malheur Memorial Hospital. The hospital in turn gave the couple enough formula to last them until they get to North Bend.

The Ministerial Association provided a room at the Arrowhead Motel for the night and made arrangements for meals. By coincidence, Chief of Police Alvin Allen was conferring with Ron B. McGowan, area representative of The Salvation Army, Bob Wilson, Paul Penrod and Don Young. They immediately decided to share expenses equally with the ministerial group to help the young couple.

As this is written baby and mother are doing fine and are on their way to their destination, thanks to several people. Mrs. Lawford said also that she is searching for her father, Richard Thomas Lee Decarlo, whom she has not seen for several years and who is supposed to be somewhere in the western states.
