

Police Academy Graduates Commend Training

Dick Cooper and Carl Zellar

During the last seven weeks, Nyssa's police officers and reserve officers have been putting in extra hours while two of the department's newer officers attended the Oregon Police Academy, located at Oregon City.

LAST FRIDAY, the two officers, Dick Cooper and Carl Zellar, graduated from the academy and returned to Nyssa.

Both were back on the job by Tuesday, but they agreed to take a few minutes of their own time to discuss their experiences at the academy with The Journal.

"The main purpose of the academy," said Cooper "is creating more professionalism in police officers."

"A higher degree of police officers, plus just give you a basic concept of police work," added Zellar. "You get the basics there and get the rest out here on the street."

BOTH OFFICERS had worked for a number of months on the Nyssa force before being sent to the academy, but both felt the experience was worthwhile. Cooper and Zellar said that the "supervised" training they received while here in Nyssa closely paralleled what they got at the academy, but with more detail added by the academy instructors.

"I do have a little more confidence," said Cooper. "It's an awfully good school," said Zellar, "but I would like to see it about twenty-one weeks instead of seven."

"We were getting 33-hour classes in eight hours."

THE EMPHASIS throughout the academy, said both officers, was on "professionalism" and the routine of the training cycle was geared toward making professional conduct second nature in the officers.

"We had classes in the new Oregon Criminal Codes," said Zellar "and classes in traffic accident investigation, which both of us have had to do while on the job in Nyssa."

"We did cover procedures in homicide investigations and crime scene protection and preservation of evidence," said Cooper, "some of which we never did here because it never came up."

COOPER AND ZELLAR said that the academy demanded a high degree of mental effort from them.

"I have a stack of notebooks this thick," said Cooper, indicating a two-inch level above the table. "Each night you had to spend hours working on your notes because you had to hand them in each week and were graded on everything from spelling to handwriting."

The emphasis was, naturally, on practical police matters such as criminal law, search procedures, auto check technique and firearms training, to name just a few. Both officers, however, said that they were impressed with some of the discussion groups that the academy set up for the men.

"In the course on deaf communication," said Zellar "they brought in people who were actually deaf and we would talk to them and try and learn how to communicate with them."

ALSO, the officers said they learned a great deal from informal discussion group sessions with men who had been convicted of and were serving time for various crimes, including men who had engaged in "shootouts" with police officers.

Nyssa is a peaceful community and, hopefully, Cooper and Zellar will never have to use much of what they learned at the Oregon Police Academy. The city of Nyssa, however, can point with pride to the fact that all of its police officers have been trained to meet the requirements of their very special "profession", law enforcement.

Herb's Views
By Herb Fitz

Why are prices high? Because most people are willing and able to pay high prices for food and clothing. If you could get $10.00 an hour for all the work you cared for would you do the same work for $4.00 per hour?

As long as people swarm into meat markets, grabbing for meat at any price, the butchers would be either idiots or philanthropists to sell their product at a lower price.

We plan on a shortage of meat with high prices as long as congress with its infinite wisdom keeps rigging the law of supply and demand. About 40 years ago we discovered the way to higher pork prices was to kill thousands of pigs and we've been doing it ever since. Up until this year, even with planned regulation of crops we have had a surplus. Now suddenly comes a shortage. Administration is planning on forcing every inch of our farm lands into production next year.

Of course this will be done willingly because we will have a federal guarantee on a good price. I suppose we'll sell next years surplus to China or Yugoslavia for nickels instead of subsidizing the cattlemen with lower grain prices.

Of course the people caught in the middle will be those with fixed incomes. Perhaps if we lowered the wages of congress instead of increasing them, congress might actually learn that producing menus is a problem with a lot of people. It really is expensive to live in Washington but there's no doubt but that a Sr. Citizen with $3,600 per year to spend foolishly looks at things with different eyes than a congressman with $42,500.00.

No wonder a massive groan is heard when congress is planning on an increase to $53,000.00. With our economy in mind I feel that if we spend one dime that we haven't in our pockets toward rebuilding North Vietnam we should be forced to resort to the food supply that I so well remember from the depression. In the 1930's I sold hundreds of cans of dog food to people that had no dog in the family. Times were tough then and we have no assurance they won't get tough again.

Tested Tips To Help You

Sticking and scorching is usually caused by excess moisture or improper iron setting. To avoid, do not apply spray starch heavily and do iron with setting recommended for fabric type.

To restore body to permanent press and make ironing easier, apply a quality spray starch like Niagara. Spray lightly and evenly. Since some fabrics do not absorb starch readily, allow starch to penetrate a few seconds before ironing.

Launder dark fabrics separately from whites and from items such as terry cloth that readily give off lint. Apply spray starch and iron on the wrong side. If necessary to iron on the right side, protect from shine with a press cloth.

To insure that an aerosol starch container will spray properly, Niagara spray starch offers these suggestions: shake can well before using; turn spray button arrow to red mark on can; hold can at a 45° angle; and replace cap before storing. If starch does not come out in a fine, even spray, remove spray button and rinse under warm running water.

Breath of Life Campaign Starts September 10

Mrs. Edna Lee Stam has been named chairman of the breath of Life Campaign to fight children's lung diseases, according to Don Schoellander, Honorary Chairman of the Oregon Chapter, National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation.

Mrs. Stam will lead local volunteers in raising funds to support research and care programs for children affected by lung-damaging diseases like cystic fibrosis, severe asthma, chronic bronchitis, bronchiectasis, and a condition called "childhood emphysema." Children in Oregon and Southwest Washington are diagnosed and followed at the C/F Center, University of Oregon Medical School.

A house-to-house appeal in Nyssa and Ontario is scheduled for September 10th through the 16th.

Cystic fibrosis, an incurable genetic disease, is inherited when both parents carry the recessive gene for C/F. It is believed that one in twenty persons or 10 million Americans may carry the C/F gene, usually without knowing it. Current research funded by the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation is seeking a practical test to identify these carriers.

Because of improved therapy and constant research, many C/F patients are living beyond infancy to their teens and into young adulthood. That same kind of therapy is relieving and often curing children suffering from the other respiratory afflictions whose symptoms resemble those of C/F.

"Most people don't realize that there are six million children in the U. S. affected by pulmonary illness," said Mrs. Stam. "For some of these children, breathing is not the natural function we, who are lucky, take for granted."

The Breath of Life Campaign supports not only research, but over 100 C/F Centers for diagnosis and treatment across the country.

HOW'S YOUR HEARING?

Please Read This Carefully

Electronic hearing tests will be given at the Stamper Motel, Ontario on July 21 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. by John Pierson, Beltone Hearing Aid specialist. These tests will be offered as part of the better hearing workshop program now being conducted nationwide.

Anyone who has trouble hearing or understanding is welcome to come in for a test using the latest electronic equipment to determine his or her particular degree of hearing loss. Diagrams showing how the ear works and some of the causes of hearing loss will be available.

Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year. Even people now wearing a hearing aid or those who have been told an aid won't help should have a hearing test and find out about the very latest kinds of hearing correction.

The free hearing test will be held at the Stamper Motel, Ontario by the Beltone Hearing Aid Service from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. on July 21. If you can't get there on that day, call 889-6449 and arrange for an appointment at another time.
