SPEAKING TO THE CONSUMER

HELP FOR THE DISABLED. Medicare benefits for hospital and medical costs were extended to disabled persons under 65 years of age effective July 1, 1973. This is an important new coverage for the young family. Social Security estimates that people who are disabled need about seven times as much hospital care and three times as much doctor care as the non-disabled.

If you are presently drawing social security benefits as a result of a disability, you are now eligible for hospital and medical coverage. But if you become disabled in the future, there will be a 24-month waiting period for Medicare under these changes in the law.
