Parma Community School Will Begin Fall Classes

Parma Community School will begin its fall class schedule the week of September 10. Anyone interested in taking classes may enroll by calling the Community School office at 722-5744, or by writing to Mr. Dominic Laderosa, program director, at the Parma High School.

Classes to be offered during the first fall session will be, beginning typing, for Jr. High age and older, beginning sewing for ages 5th - 8th grade, Advanced sewing (tailoring), and flower arranging, all of which will have a limited enrollment. Other classes to be offered are cake decorating, Homemaking Skills, Emergency Medical Training, Oil painting, and Gen. Psychology for college credit. If there is enough interest, other classes which can also be offered are, Northwest History for college credit, beginning art for 4-6th grade, Basic English for non-English speaking people, Spanish, Public Health, and U. S. Government (G.E.D.). Babysitting will be provided during all classes.

A second fall session is scheduled for October 22-November 29 which will feature pre-Christmas crafts and decorations workshops. Classes will be welding, income tax preparation, home decoration and crafts.

The concept of a Community School is to make better use of the public school buildings by opening them for use during more hours of the day. After school and evening classes are offered for adults and school age children who may take courses not offered in the regular curriculum. Classes are offered in vocational areas, for high school completion, for enrichment, and some are available for college credit. Any subject can be offered if there are ten or more people who want to enroll, and an instructor can be found. There is no residency requirement, so people from neighboring towns are encouraged to attend.

Farmers and ranchers who may have a solid waste disposal problem may get the forms to apply for a discharge permit at the County Agent's office according to George Bain, County Extension Agent.

The law requires that these permits be obtained to comply with the Environmental Protection Agency law concerning discharge of pollutants from livestock and poultry feeding areas. The new law requires that this permit must be obtained by October 1 to be in compliance with the new law. This will particularly effect those livestock confined areas of 1,000 head of cattle or more, 700 dairy cattle, or 2,500 swine, 10,000 sheep, 100,000 laying hens or broilers, 5,000 ducks.

The packet made available for distribution through the County Extension office contains explanation of the law, the necessary permit requests, and a self addressed envelope with which to obtain the permit.

Those effected by the new law are urged to pick up a packet at the Extension office in Ontario as soon as possible so they will comply with the October 1 deadline, Bain says.
