

FOOTBALL CLINIC

Hey Gals!
Are you tired of going to the football games with your guy and sitting there not knowing what's going on half the time?
If so, Max Brittingham, Nyssa High School's defensive football coach, may have the answer to some of your problems.
"After the Vale game," said Brittingham "and before the first home game I want to put on a Rules and Technique Clinic for Women."
"I think it will help the girls enjoy the game much more and I suppose there are some guys who could learn something there too."
Brittingham's Clinic will be held next Tuesday, September 18, in Room 14 in the Nyssa High School building. The Clinic will start at 7 p.m. and will last until all the people present know that "a rover" isn't the team mascot.

Nyssa Bulldogs Prepare

Vernon Lords, coach of the Nyssa junior varsity football team, stood to one side watching his players run through some passing drills; there is a lot of work in store for the junior Bulldogs before their opener against Vale at Vale this Thursday, September 13.
"This is the first practice we've had," said Lords "With everybody we're going to use."
Vale, said Lords, had a very tough eighth grade team last year and they will be playing as freshmen this year. Also, Lords added, Vale will have a "Big" team.
"We're really small," said Lords. "Really small."
Greg Moffis, a freshman, will be the starting quarterback, according to Lords.
"Moffis can throw the ball," said Lords. "If we can hold the line and keep the front wall for him, he can throw the ball."

"We've got two kids that can catch it if he gets it near them. Larry Haney at split-end and Clark Kido at slot-back."
Danny Simantel," said Lords "is looking really tough at center. And a couple of freshmen, Gordo Grimaldo and Mike Iracheta, are looking tough as interior linemen."
"Also," said Lords "a good determined kid, both offensively and defensively, is Brad Holcomb. I just hope we don't lose him to the varsity."
Lords said he would like to be going up against someone besides Vale for the first game, but the junior Bulldogs plan to be ready for Vale by this Thursday.

Parnell Urges Schools To Schedule Daytime Games

Rescheduling night football games to daylight hours whenever possible is one way to tackle the energy crisis, Dale Parnell, superintendent of public instruction, said today.
Parnell passed this and other suggestions in a memorandum to those who call the signals at the local level--school superintendents and community college presidents.

Admitting his advice may rub some fans--football, not electric--the wrong way, the state school chief said, "As a symbolic action alone, schools must provide leadership if we are going to be serious about knocking heads with the energy crisis."

Parnell, who coached high school football at Springfield and Salem Academy, asked, "How would you feel if the energy shortage had cost you a job, and you looked out your window one evening to see the lights at the football field burning brightly?"

Any energy consumed on autumn evenings may be desperately needed to warm school buildings when winter arrives," he added.

Parnell has asked Oregon's 13 community colleges to serve as regional information and training centers for energy conservation.

"For example, school districts will soon be hearing from community colleges about local workshops for school and college maintenance people on ways to conserve electrical power and heating fuels."
