School children throughout Malheur County will be enrolled in a thrift campaign this year as part of a schools-at-war program conducted by the Oregon war finance committee. To help win the war, children should be thrifty and the war stamp savings programs is designed to fix this idea firmly in youngsters' minds during the war.

There is no time like the present to build sidewalks, according to City Clerk J.R. Hunter, who advises that sidewalks will be built without charge for all property owners who will supply the material. He wishes them to get in touch with him at once. This week the relief crew is digging drains along city streets.

Does Nyssa and community want a cheese factory? It can be secured by cooperation between the farmers and business men of the town. That it would be greatly to the benefit of both classes is beyond question. Better get together and talk it over, for a cheese factory would be a big stabilizer of business.

Contractor Phelps is making quick time with the earthwork and laying of pipes for the city water system. Nearly all the trenches have been dug and 4000 feet of pipe laid. It is believed that Saturday night will see the last of the entire 8000 feet of pipe laid. Several workmen were laid off this morning owing to the near completion of that part of the contract.

The construction of the foundation for the tower and tank will be taken up next and Mr. Phelps hopes to have it completed and ready to turn over to the city by the middle of next week. Mr. Phelps lost no time in getting the work under way and far toward completion and the job is giving entire satisfaction to the citizens. It is the universal opinion that he knows his business.

Members of the council state that it will probably be a month before the tower and tank are completed and water turned into the mains.

Speaking To The Consumer

THE INSECTS AROUND US
The many millers that you have seen around the past few weeks are the adults of some of the army worm, cut worm, and cabbage loopers that were feeding on the crops in the area during the past summer.

As you can see, agricultural chemicals were not 100% effective in killing them. One reason for this is that most insects have a fantastic ability to reproduce themselves. A couple of examples of this are: one aphid and its' offspring, if none were killed, could produce 1,560,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 individuals in one season and one pair of house flies starting in April can theoretically produce enough flies by August to cover the earth to a depth of 47 feet. Any time that agricultural crops are concentrated in an area, certain insects, such as those we are now seeing, will multiply faster than normal.

It is for this reason that some type of control is a MUST if we are going to continue to feed the people of the U.S. and the world. This all costs money and some estimates have placed the value of lost crops and keeping insects just checked, not controlled, at between 6 and 10 billion dollars a year in the U.S.
