Idaho is a beautiful state and were overnight guests in the Hill at this time of year it looks like Mother Nature has spilled Mrs. Jeanie Fenn and girls her countless hues all over the of Ontario were Sunday dinner hills, valleys, plains, prairies guests of Mrs. Carl Fenn, Mrs. and deserts. The colored wil-Gene Simpson, Cindy and Linda lows along the Little Salmon were Sunday afternoon callers, in Meadows Valley are posi-Mrs. Jack Ernest, Mary and tively beautiful. Everywhere

> I have seen every section of this glorious state mainly by means of highways and mountain roads. At one time I had the ambition to hike to the top of every mountain peak around Meadows Valley but due to the fact that I had a job to take care of and never seemed to have access to hiking boots I just didn't get around to making the weekend trips. Now I have the time and the boots but for some reason or other I'm beginning to realize that sleeping on the ground just isn't my cup of tea.

A lot of people like to take a week or two and get lost from the world in the mountains. They like to sleep on the ground (one isn't allowed to cut fir boughs any more), drink coffee from a tin can, shiver at night and freeze in the morning. Many of them also grow whiskers and take care of sore feet. This is called roughing it. My wife and I also like to rough it but we take our roughing more moderately. We drive to a campsite beside a stream, light a small cooking fire, put our bedrolls on comfortable cots and enjoy our spot while listening to the breezes whisper in the trees. At night we count stars till the whole sky becomes solid with celestial formations. Pleasure, as well as beauty, must be in the eye of the beholder. Millions of people will tell you that it isn't necessary to have millions of square miles of wilderness to enjoy the forests.
