Wendall Carnefix of the Fruitland Nursery presented an interesting program on pruning and shaping of evergreen shrubs at the Langley home. He emphasized that the center of evergreens should be thinned to allow air to circulate. He said that April is usually the best time for pruning plants, especially roses and that spring blooming shrubs should be pruned after blooming because growth for the following year develops after blooming. Mr. Carnefix was also most helpful in answering questions for the garden club members. A business meeting was held afterwards and the list of programs for 1974-75 was presented. A partial list of hostesses was made. Refreshments were served. Next meeting will be held March 8.

Plan ahead with a farm operating line from First National.

Manager Rod George, seated, and Jim Kile, Jim Gardner and John Messick, First National's loan team.

Many row crop farmers like to finance production with a First National farm operating line or "ag line." And for good reason. An ag line is both convenient and practical. Because financial support is arranged in advance, you can concentrate on the actual growing and harvesting of top quality products.

Here's how it works: With careful long range planning we predict the costs of such things as seed, fertilizer, chemicals, fuel, labor, and repairs for your operation. Then we'll help determine how much money you'll need each month during the year. As with all First National loans, repayment is planned for your convenience.

At our Nyssa branch we have a team of full-time professionals to help you plan the coming year financially. Either branch manager Rod George or loan officer John Messick, Jim Kile or Jim Gardner would be glad to discuss First National ag lines with you. Stop by soon - in time to plan finances for the coming season.

We'd like to get to know you.
