Nyssa's Christmas parade December 12 will be rather unusual in that it will feature the Christian theme rather than the commercial.

It will not be a big parade, judged by the number of floats and units to be seen in larger adjoining towns, but will depict nativity scenes and Christian living. Several churches have agreed to make floats with some intending to use the scenery to decorate church grounds once the parade is over.

Following frequent rains, the first snowfall of the season covered the ground here Tuesday with a blanket of snow almost two inches in depth. The snow was extremely wet, however, and had disappeared by evening. The first hard freeze followed on Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, freezing late vegetables and flowers. Ice several inches thick filled the pounds made by the snow the preceding day.

Will we have a mild winter like that of last year, or will we have one of the old timers? This is the question heard frequently on the streets and majority predict a harder winter than that of 1933-34. A hard winter means more water for many barren reservoirs.

Owyhee project gets an appropriation of $315,000. This is the amount for this project included in the deficiency appropriation bill passed by the senate. The bill passed as amended in the conference committee on the closing day of the last session of congress, which was the measure defeated by Senator Pitman's filibuster. This amount is not as large as boosters for the project had hoped for, but is a start and commits the government to a certain extent in the development of the project.

Postmistress Lizzie Thompson is in receipt of instructions from the department at Washington urging her to make every possible effort to have patrons of the office mail their Christmas packages at as early a date as possible. This would not only be an act of humanity to the overworked mail clerks, by distributing the holiday business over a longer period of time, thus preventing a congestion but would insure a much more satisfactory service to the patrons. Try it once and you will never do it any other way.
