Falcons Nip Nyssa In Final Quarter, 59-57

The Vallivue Falcons and the Nyssa Bulldogs fought right down to the buzzer Thursday night at Vallivue with the Falcons coming out on top at the final whistle 59 to 57.

The Bulldogs started the game in the first quarter with a quick 18 to 13 lead only to be down by 4 at halftime 30 to 34.

At the start of the third quarter Nyssa quickly tied it up again and it was a see-saw battle the remainder of the game with Nyssa leading at the end of the third quarter 46 to 44.

The fourth quarter was a basket for basket battle. With 4 Nyssa players in foul trouble they had to be careful but kept it tied at 54 all for about 2 1/2 minutes. Then Vallivue's Shane Whitney made a basket and they tried to stall the ball and Nyssa fouled with 38 sec to go in the game. Seamon's made the first shot but missed the second and Nyssa still had a chance with seconds left the Bulldogs tried a full court shot which hit the beam and the ball went to Vallivue with 2 seconds to go and that was the game.

Eighth Grade Basketball Team SRV Champions

The Nyssa 8th Grade Basketball team completed their 1974-75 season and were undefeated in 13 regular games and two tournament games.

The Eighth Grade traveled to Vallivue with their Coach Vernon Lords last Thursday and brought home the Championship by defeating Vale 40 to 34.

In the game with Vale, Nyssa was behind after the first quarter 6-8. In the second quarter Nyssa outscored the Vale Vikings 9 to 8 but were still behind by one point 16 to 15 at the half.

Then the Bullpups came to life and outscored the Vikings 20 points to 9 and the Nyssa team were in the drivers seat all the way leading 35 to 25 and the end of the third quarter.

Vale outscored Nyssa in the final quarter 9 to 5 but that wasn't enough and the Bullpups won the ball game 40 to 34.

Wintering Waterfowl Numbers Up In Oregon

Ducks and geese wintering in Oregon are up substantially from recent years, according to results of the annual winter waterfowl survey conducted recently by state and federal wildlife biologists.

The nationwide survey was conducted during the second and third week in January and included all major waterfowl areas in the United States. Forty biologists from the Oregon Wildlife Commission and from the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service participated in counting waterfowl throughout Oregon.

Some 404,000 ducks were recorded this year, an increase of nearly 54 percent from last year and up 12 percent over the average for the past five years.

Geese were even more prevalent this year. Double the number counted last year—some 94,500—were observed, which is nearly 75 percent higher than the five-year average.

For the past several years, eagles sighted on the waterfowl survey have also been tallied. Biologists reported 59 bald eagles and 37 golden eagles for a total of 96 in all. Last year 62 bald eagles and 69 golden eagles were recorded.

Wildlife Commission staff biologist Chet Kebbe points out, however, that this does not necessarily mean a declining eagle population. Many of the eagles seen in Oregon during January are winter visitors from other areas and weather conditions can have a marked effect on eagle distribution during this period.

Kebbe also points out that wintering waterfowl figures for the state are not really significant until the results from other western states are tabulated. Again, weather conditions and food supply play an important role in where ducks and geese spend the winter.

A Business Card
Is Worth the Money!

There are times when your prospect is busy, or has a customer, or is otherwise unavailable for discussion and demonstration.

Do you smile and say you'll stop in another time and walk out? Or do you leave your business card with the information of your service.

If you leave a business card, it is usually kept. The card should have your name, address phone number, and most important of all, the nature of your product or services.

For a penny a card, you make dollars in return calls.
