Five -Day Antelope Hunt To Be Recommended

Staff biologists for the Oregon Wildlife Commission will recommend a five-day general 1975 antelope season similar to last year but will ask for reductions in tag numbers in a few units.

The opening date was set previously for August 16 and the staff will recommend closure on August 20. A slight reduction in tag numbers will be recommended for the Fort Rock-Silver Lake, Maury, Paulina-Wagontire, and Warner units because of reduced fawn survival in these areas. In other units the recommended tag quotas will remain the same as last year. One other suggested change would add a portion of the Baker Unit to the Beulah Unit.

A split archery antelope season will again be recommended for Gerber Reservoir in Klamath County with August 9 through 17 and August 23 through 31 the suggested dates. Sixty-five tags will be recommended for each season, the same as last year.

The antelope regulations will be set on March 21 at the Commission's Portland headquarters, SW 17th and Alder. A public hearing will begin at 10 a.m. at which recommendations from all interested groups or individuals will be considered. Comments may also be sent in writing prior to the hearing. The Commission's mailing address is P.O. Box 3503, Portland 97208.
