FFA Program Outstanding

Perhaps our biggest source of news, and the kind of news that we most enjoy printing, is the constant and rewarding exploits of our young citizens. Week by week the achievements of our students are chronicled in their athletic, scholastic and vocational pursuits.
Those who are sure the younger generation is going to the dogs don't read our paper, or they would know better. Because the achievements of our Nysa kids in almost any field can make most of us look rather poor in comparison. Admittedly, we don't record all the pitfalls and skirmishes that some of the kids get into, because in most cases they are better off forgotten.

What we do like to tell about are the good things these kids are doing, and they are many and frequent. Throughout this issue, and most issues, are news items about boys and girls who are earning recognition in their schools and universities, and we are proud of them. Not just athletically, but more important, scholastically.

Since coming to Nysa we have been particularly impressed with the activities of the Future Farmers of America (FFA). Here is an organization that seems to give opportunity to, and bring out the best in students.

The FFA and the school agricultural programs seems to combine the best in both scholastic and vocational endeavors. We see youngsters who know how to conduct a meeting, express themselves well before an audience, and are students. More importantly, by the time they have finished high school they know how to weld, repair an engine, run farm machinery, and combine what they have learned in the classroom with their already vast knowledge gained from their life on the farm to be a productive citizen.

We would ask our readers to read carefully the accomplishments of Bruce Corn, who was given the Star Farmer Award last week. Here is a young man who is already more productive than many adults, and he is just finishing high school. The young lady from Vale, Kathy Anthony, who is district president of FFA and was the main speaker at the banquet, is another remarkable achiever. And they are only two of the many who were recognized for outstanding work at the FFA banquet last Friday.

Ag adviser Deryl Leggett and the school administration should be commended for this program locally. Other area schools are also doing a great job in this field, and the importance of the program nationally can be attested to by the fact that President Ford was the speaker at the National FFA Convention.

We would like to give recognition also to the Future Homemakers of America (FHA) under the leadership of Joanne Dahl, who did such an excellent job of putting on the banquet. This was hard work in the absence of a cafeteria, but shows what can be done with imagination and hard work.

In fact, all of our students and faculty have performed admirably this year under very trying conditions. One more year, and we will have the best school facilities in the valley. Hang on kids, and keep up the good work!

Park Avenue Baptist's Plan Layman Revival

The Park Avenue Baptist Church is in preparation for a Layman Revival which will start Thursday, April 10 and will continue Friday, April 11 and Saturday, April 12, starting each evening at 7:30 p.m. The church is located on the corner of North 3rd, Street and Park Avenue in Nysa.

The Theme for this inspirational revival is "Jesus Saves." Layman speakers form the Emmett Baptist Church will be: Paul McKenzie, Clarence Perry and Curtis Hays. Special guest speaker, Bob Bohanan of Mountain Home will bring the Sunday morning worship message at the 11 a.m. service.

There will be special music each evening, thrilling testimonies of the works of God, congregational singing and good fellowship and each evening's message will provide the ways that Jesus can come into your life and save you or someone you love from a life of doubt, unhappiness, and insecurity. Jesus can change your life and lifestyle if only you believe.

ARCADIA

A wreck about one and one-half miles north of Nysa, left all the patrons north of the power station without power for three and one-half hours. It was a light colored Fairlane Ford which had left its lane of traffic, crossed the road and hit a power pole. No other details at this time.

Rev. Wilson To Retire After 40 Years Service

Submitted by Mrs. Dale Witt

The Rev. Raymond Wilson pastor of the Kingman Memorial Community United Presbyterian Church of Adrian, Oregon, and the Sterry Memorial Presbyterian Church of Roswell, announced last Sunday his plans to retire on July 1. The Rev. Wilson came to the Roswell church on June 1, 1968 from Hazelton, Idaho, and on April 1, 1970, the Presbytery of Boise approved of a call from the Adrian, Oregon church for him to be pastor of both churches.

Rev. Raymond Wilson

At the end of June, Rev. Wilson will have served continuously for forty years as a pastor in the United Presbyterian Church. He was ordained by the Presbytery of Monmouth (Illinois) on June 27, 1935. He and his wife, Marian, had been married on June 4 of that year. He has served eight churches in six pastorates: Media, Illinois; Queen Ann Church in Seattle, Washington; Ontario, Oregon; Emmett, Idaho; Hazelton and Eden, Idaho, and is presently serving both Roswell, Idaho and Adrian.

In addition to his pastorates, Rev. Wilson has served the church at large as moderator and stated clerk of the Synod of the Columbia in the former United Presbyterian Church of North America, and moderator and

The money to build the power plants and transmission lines needed to provide electricity for your home or place of work comes from savings of individuals and from insurance companies, trust funds and pension funds.

For example: Retired school teachers, state employes and others covered by the State Retirement System receive a portion of their retirement income from investments in Idaho Power securities.

The money you pay for electric service is used to operate and maintain power facilities, including the costs of the capital which built them — short term loans, bonds and equity stock.

The ever-increasing demands for energy to continue the quality of service to which you are entitled and which it is our responsibility to provide make new generating capacity necessary. It will require millions upon millions of dollars in additional financing. Because it is the willingness of investors which makes it possible for electric facilities to be built, obviously the money will be available only if security buyers can anticipate reasonable returns on their investments.

ELECTRIC RATES WILL BE GOING UP

Your electric rates are among the very lowest in the nation, but they must go up. A primary reason is to provide the returns that are necessary to encourage investment. It's the only way we can build the facilities our customers require.

Soon we shall be requesting a rate increase. Even with the prospect of higher electric rates, your kilowatt hour costs still will be among the lowest in the nation.
