

Bake Dairy Month Pound Cake With Yogurt

Homemade, handsome and irresistible
Cake
Made with Dairy Foods

There's good reason for baking with yogurt. This highly nutritious cultured dairy product has a most beneficial effect on the texture, flavor and moistness of baked goods. Yogurt's tangy flavor and smooth body come from the carefully controlled development of microorganisms. When the proper acidity and smooth consistency are reached in quality controlled dairy plants, the product is refrigerated immediately to stop the culture growth. This lactic acid content makes yogurt especially resistant to spoilage. It retains its country fresh qualities for days and days. Look for yogurt in various sized cartons in the mixed dairy case or its very own private case. For proper home storage keep tightly covered and chilled. Yogurt will maintain its peak condition for over two weeks.

Yogurt Pound Cake

1/2 cup butter
1 1/2 cups sugar
3 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon soda
1 (8-ounce) carton plain yogurt

Beat together butter and 1 cup sugar until creamy. Beat in egg yolks and vanilla. Mix flour, salt and soda. Stir into creamed mixture alternately with yogurt. Beat egg whites. Gradually add remaining 1/2 cup sugar. Continue beating until very stiff peaks form. Fold into batter thoroughly. Turn into greased and floured 2-quart mold or 10-inch tube pan. Bake in 350 deg. oven 1 hour or until done. If using ovenproof crockery mold, bake at 325 deg. Cool 10 minutes in pan then invert onto wire rack to cool. Serve with whipped cream and chocolate curls on top if desired. Makes 1 (10-inch) cake.

U. S. Bank Says Depression Ending

Oregon is ending the longest, deepest recession since World War II. But, the worst is about over, according to U. S. National Bank's Oregon Business Barometer, prepared by Dr. Edward W. Reed, senior vice president and economist for the state-wide firm. The recovery will be slow, with most Oregonians beginning to realize improvements in their personal and business dealings by late summer.

U. S. Bank's Index of Business Activity stood at 151.3 in March, three full points below its year-end mark in December and the lowest point since last July. Weakening farm prices, employment declines and a slow recovery in weekly wages all contributed to the disappointing news. But, when compared to national indicators, activity was slightly better in Oregon.

According to Reed, the best news of the quarter is the slowing of inflation. This slowdown, more than any other factor, will contribute to an increase in consumer confidence. Increased spending, spurred by tax relief and rebates, should also be of some help.

Employment Gains....
Following its usual seasonal pattern, employment inched up at the end of the first quarter. After an eight-month downward skid, employment in lumber and wood products was up at the end of the quarter by 1,900. Substantial increases were noted in food, agriculture, construction and services. Total Oregon employment was up more than 13,700 in March over the previous month. Though hovering around 10 percent, unemployment rates are somewhat below the level of past recessions. Earnings are on the rise, particularly in the manufacturing area, which reached an all-time high of $5.32 per hour.

Bank deposits moved up slightly during the first quarter. Deposits in savings and loans showed a sharp increase. Credit demands increased with commercial and industrial loans showing seasonal rises in March and April.

Housing Better...

With funds flowing into savings institutions at rapid rates, dollars are now becoming available for mortgages. The housing industry—and Oregon's lumber and wood products sector—could soon begin to benefit from the increasing confidence of consumers.

The trend of mortgage commitments has been moving up, which is an indication that housing will likely improve as the year progresses, said Reed.

After a two-year boom, Oregon's agricultural community is now caught in a squeeze of declining prices and rising farm costs. Farm prices dropped 15 percent over a year ago. Farm export volume is down, notably in wheat. Top wheat prices of $6.35 a bushel early last year have dropped to $3.68 a bushel as of May 1.

Oregon's overall crop outlook is good, despite the cost-price squeeze, assuming farmers enjoy a steadily improving weather situation for the balance of the season.
