Sage of Nu Acres

By Lyn Dohner

George subsisted on frozen dinners while I went to a "Mission Experience" weekend at N. N. C. in Nampa last weekend, with Madge Thomson of Nyssa. Gathered there were Methodist ladies from all over Eastern Oregon and Southwest Idaho.

Classes, discussion groups and general assembly packed our day, morning till night. We had homework, like, read the first thirty-nine chapters of Isaiah, but no free time to do it in. Not for me. My brain snaps off at nine or so every night and that's that.

Had a roommate, Grace Hammon of Ontario. She was one of the V.I.P.'s there, being in charge of one meeting, morning watch. Did it beautifully. I really only saw her in passing. But when I got home she phoned to tell me I'd left my clothes on hangers behind me. She'd brought them home with her, bless her!

Enjoyed meeting a lot of new people and liked several. Like Kay Woodall of Sweet, and Effie Ellen Smith of Pendleton who formerly lived in Nyssa. Met a veteran missionary, Esther Dixon who spent thirty years in China and finished out her career in Sumatra. Retired, widowed, she now lives in Nampa. Hope to get her to come share some of her experiences with the ladies of our church.

They gave out an evaluation sheet for each to turn in unsigned. In answer to the question "What would you like for next year's meeting, I said, "I hope the church would be raptured before then."

You know, I longed to talk with someone about the second coming of Christ. Tried, at dinner, telling a little old lady I thought Christ might come for His Church before 1980, but she just laughed and said the disciples, even expected his return daily. And no man knew the day nor hour.

Later I asked another lady if she thought He was coming soon and she said, "Oh yes! My grandfather raised me and he was an old fashioned Methodist preacher and I was taught the Bible." Well, we all get taught the Bible in church. Don't we? But there is all that other "recommended reading;" it could sort of crowd it out. If we let it.

Admired N.N.C., its campus like a large, tastefully laid out park, and the spacious, modern buildings. It's a far cry from the lovely old vine-covered fire-trap in Pasadena I attended.

Methodist Church in Nyssa is a little in love with the new pastor, Jim Monroe. Hope the honeymoon doesn't get over too soon. He and wife, Anne, held an open house Sunday afternoon in their newly decorated parsonage. Jim has the charm and enthusiasm of youth, the ability to preach a good sermon, and is a very likeable person. He and his wife are both musically inclined. He's very Methodist.

About George pulling the downed electric wires off the haystack, he asked to be vindicated. First, he said, it wasn't a rake, but a pitch-fork that he used. Much more control in a pitch fork, he said. Further, he said, our heifer had stood on the wires and not been shocked, so they couldn't be live.

However, he realized that any layman would be much the wiser to stay clear of downed electric wires; anyone following his example could wind up dead! So, Idaho Power, George says he's sorry.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Marsh visited on Wednesday night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Payne. Mr. Marsh is recently retired and has moved from Elgin to Payette.

Mrs. Alden Bryan, Fruitland has returned home from a stay at St. Alphonsus Hospital. She is a former resident of Nu Acres.

POKEY POT LIBERATES COOK

The new slow cookers are whetting the appetites of homemakers across the country. They make it possible to prepare a variety of dishes—from gourmet appetizers to hearty stews and tasty desserts.

The method combines yesteryear's way of long-time cooking so that flavors blend beautifully with today's faster-paced life-style and need for convenience. And it's a boon to the budget since less expensive cuts of meat can be used.

Cooking the slow cooker way with a cooker like the Pokey Pot From Wear-Ever Aluminum, Inc., liberates the cook from the kitchen, giving her the time to do the things she wants.

And it's easy to use. The food is placed in the removable ceramic crock, then placed in the outer shell, covered and plugged in. The heat rises slowly from the bottom heating element and surrounds the food, so that it cooks evenly, perfectly.

Operating on 75 watts when set on low and 150 watts on high, the slow cooker costs very little to use. And with the low cooking temperatures the kitchen stays cool, too.

The versatile 3 1/2 quart size makes it ideal for family meals or party fare. The crock, available in both white glass and a heavy brown earthenware ceramic, can be used alone for oven cooking and goes right to the table for serving.

Democratic Telethon To Be Aired July 26-27

Governor Bob Straub and the Oregon Democratic Congressional delegation - Al Ullman, Bob Duncan, Les Aucoin, and Jim Weaver were named Honorary State Chairmen of the Democratic National telethon by State Telethon Chairman, Ted Crisell.

At a Democratic News Conference held at Lewis and Clark Law School, the Governor said, "I'm pleased and honored to participate in 'Telethon Four' and I expect this effort to be even more successful than last year..."

Duncan and Ullman (also present at the news conference) joined Straub in his appeal for contributions to the fourth annual Democratic National telethon, which will be aired on ABC-TV July 26 and 27. They told newsmen that the telethon offers an opportunity for broad-based financial support with the emphasis on small contributions.

Democratic State Chairman, James Klonoski said that last year's telethon contributions from Oregon were $88,000, with a total of $5.4 earned nationally, producing funds for national, state, and county parties. Klonoski said that he expects even more funds will be raised this year due to recent state and federal legislation which raises the amount individuals or couples may take as tax credit for political donations. For instance—a couple who contributes $100 may take a tax credit of $50 on their federal taxes in 1975 and a 150 credit on their Oregon income tax, as well. (A tax credit is deducted from taxes owed.)

Police Arrest Aliens—But Budget Exhausted

Four illegal aliens arrested during the weekend in Nyssa were remanded to the custody of U. S. Immigration Service officers from Boise.

According to Police Chief Alvin Allen, the Immigration Service's July budget for Oregon reimbursement purposes has been expended. Allen said this means that the local government cost of incarceration, normally reimbursed by the Service will have to be absorbed by the local units during the periods when the Service budget is depleted.

When the illegal aliens are arrested on charges separate from illegal entry, the cost of their jail lodging $4.65 per day, is expected to come from the local budget. If illegal entry is the only charge, the Service is expected to bear the costs.

Allen said the four men arrested this week were from Mexico and were between the ages of 21 and 30 years.
