

Guard Commended For "Oregon Plan"

The "Oregon Plan"—a program of providing high school seniors with National Guard training while still in school—received praise and recognition from the State Department of Education recently at an awards ceremony in Portland.

Dr. Verne A. Duncan, Superintendent of Public Instruction for the State of Oregon presented the Oregon National Guard with the State Superintendent of Public Instruction Award of Accomplishment, October 10 at the Vocational All-Service Banquet in Portland's Memorial Coliseum.

The award was presented "in recognition of the National Guard's contribution to career cluster education throughout Oregon."

In return, Adjutant General Richard A. Miller presented Dr. Duncan with a Certificate of Commendation in appreciation for his support of the Oregon Plan.

The first 40 participants in the "Oregon Plan" returned from training this summer. The program allows high school students to enter the Guard during the second half of their senior year and earn up to nine credits toward graduation in such areas as physical education, citizenship and vocational training.

Seventy-five students in high schools throughout the State are currently participating in the program.

Typical of student reactions to the Oregon Plan are those of Steve Phillopson, Lake Oswego, who said that he felt the Guard training was better than what he would have received in high school or in the private sector, and Mike Schnell, West Linn, who said that the instruction he was given in the Guard was "better than finishing high school and going to college."

Livestock Finance Meeting November 12

Farmers and ranchers interested in livestock finance can get such information at a Cattle Finance meeting to be conducted in Banquet room A in VIP's restaurant, Ontario, starting at 10:30 a.m., November 12, according to George W. Bain, County Extension Agent.

During the meeting, representatives of local livestock financing institutions will discuss loan policies for livestock production under existing circumstances.
