

Sage of Nu Acres

By Lyn Dohner

A joyful Monday morning to you! Time flies so. A week has gone by before we scarcely know it's there.

Sunday we skipped on the Nyssa church pot-luck (Bishop and all) and went off to Ontario for the delightful Japanese American Methodist church bazaar, where we ate shish kabobs and George had a plateful of goodies. Met some charming people and left reluctantly.

The Nyssa Methodist bazaar was real fun and well attended. An added attraction and help, Ann Monroe and her young Women's Circle came. An unhappy ending came when Mrs. Verna Tobler misstepped and fell and had to be hospitalized at Holy Rosary. All are pained and concerned over her being hurt.

Farmerette Club met Wednesday for a pot-luck dinner and work day at the Hall. Ate too much but had a good time helping get rid of weeds and stuff and the ladies cleaned and did windows. Afterwards planned a great party for Christmas.

Nu Acres 4-H are planning a Christmas party to be given at the Community Hall on December 13. Donation of a tree has been promised by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Talbot of Fruitland with the provision that it be given to a needy family afterwards.

Since the Farmerette party is the 17th, at the Hall, an offer has been made to the 4-H crowd to share in the decorations and use of the tree, all to be expanded to cover both happenings before the tree is passed on. A great step in re-cycling and conservation, yes?

Having given you a few laughs on me and my mistakes and weaknesses, it's only fair to show the other side of the coin. Been enjoying this book that says God does not see those faults. In His eyes, I'm holy, and covered with His love! It's right there on page 946 in the Paraphrased Living Bible

Hey, that's sure good reading. If you don't have one, get one. If you can't get one, let me know. I have a Friend who can move mountains!

Called Nancy Sheffield and finally caught her at home. She's been driving a beet truck for the harvest. She said truck driving was an education in itself. As for news, nothing happens there except births and dyings. Today butchering chickens!

Congressman Steve Symms

Explains Turkey Grades

It is that time of the year when turkey so often becomes king of the dinner table at holiday gatherings.

And, as plans are made for dinner menus, consumers are beginning to check with the Oregon Department of Agriculture's consumer office on grade labeling meanings and have questions about self-basting turkeys.

Some assume that the grading relates to product wholesomeness, but Jane Wyatt, the department's consumer officer, says it has nothing to do with wholesomeness.

Grade A, the top grade, means that the turkey is of highest quality with normal physical conformation; has a well developed and fleshed breast; has very few pinfeathers; has no skin tears on the breast and legs; and is free from bruises and discoloration on the breast and legs.

A grade B bird is permitted to have a slightly crooked breast if it does not interfere with the normal distribution of flesh and may have slightly scattered pinfeathers.

Abnormal physical conformation, such as a crooked breast, is permitted in a C grade turkey and it may be poorly fleshed. A grade C turkey also does not have to have a fat covering over all or part of the carcass; may have numerous pinfeathers over the entire carcass; have torn skin with skin missing in some areas; have numerous large discolored areas; and the wings removed.

Self-basting turkeys, Mrs. Wyatt says, is the industry's answer to the complaint that turkey meat is dry.
