

OUT OF THE PAST

10 YEARS AGO

Mrs. L. A. Maudling of Nyssa was recently named chairman of the 1966 Malheur County Heart Fund campaign and announcement was made this week that Pheral Dodson, Malheur Memorial Hospital administrator, has been appointed to head the Nyssa area drive.

Dave and Betty Jo Rieb, former Nyssans now residing in Ontario, announced Wednesday that they have purchased Pounds Grocery from John and Marvel Hoare. The couple stated that on February 22, they will assume management of the firm, located at 202 Bower Avenue in Nyssa.

Mrs. Don M. Graham, or Nora, as she is known throughout the community, is Nyssa's new justice of the peace pro-tem, having been appointed to the position last week by the Malheur county court. Her husband, who has served as Nyssa justice for many years was seriously injured when he was struck by an approaching car as he was assisting a stranded motorist January 24 and is confined to the Malheur Memorial Hospital. Local police were highly complimentary about the manner in which the new justice handled the cases.

Nyssa High School Ag boys not only won top honors in many divisions at the District Skills contest held at Vale High School last week but were awarded an honor plaque for earning the largest number of points among the six schools represented at the meet.

Lowry Flake, NHS junior who had previously won the Nyssa FFA Chapter speaking contest, won first place in the district meet, earning a plaque, pennant and privilege of entering the inter-district competition at Baker in February.

Flake, son of Mr. J. M. Flake, Route 2, Nyssa, has made his home in Nyssa the past eight years after living in "nearly every Western state except Texas."

Homemade butter, the modern way, was demonstrated for four first-grade classes at the Fruitland school by Mrs. Cecil Evans last week.

She took over her own Osterizer and cream, and made butter for the children, two classes at a time. Afterward, the children each had a taste of buttermilk and freshly churned butter on crackers.

Mrs. Evans said that last year Mrs. Paul Russell did the same thing for the children, using an old-time hand cranked churn. Nice way to start out children in school.

They'll know that real butter is not something that comes from a store in a little tub that is supposed to speak up and say "butter" when you open the lid. Wonder how many youngsters have been disappointed in learning none of theirs can talk.

Mrs. Armine Hartman was awarded a ten-year service medal when she attended a seminar in Home Decorations in Portland recently.

Nuby Hartman's birthday was celebrated by a dinner at Eastside Cafe recently, attended by him, his mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Steel, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Perez of Parma, and their nephew, Mike Wade.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrel Sutton celebrated their December wedding anniversary last week by a trip to Boise and dinner at the Black Angus. Better a postponed party than none at all!

About that heifer named Bossy, she has gotten so big and handsome, and George is reasonably (?) sure she is far above most of her kind in intelligence. Like, if she follows close to him enroute to the barn she's likely to knock him off his feet on the perilous slippery path, so he tells her, "Stay here till I get to the barn." And would you believe, she stays, and then comes galloping over when he gets there? George says, "That's right. She's done that several times lately."

Miss Verla Jensen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Jensen, has been selected as queen of the M.I.A. gold and green ball.

Mrs. Santje "Grandma" Stam, resident of the Nyssa community for many years, died in the Holy Rosary Hospital in Ontario at 12 o'clock Wednesday night.

Santje Selman was born in Venhuizen, Holland in 1865 and was married to Johannes Stam in 1887. Mr. and Mrs. Stam came to the United States in 1905 and made their home in the Nyssa section until their deaths. Mr. Stam died in 1932.

One of the most absorbing questions to come before the regular noon luncheon Wednesday of the Commercial Club was the question of sidewalks. It was felt that beyond question, the well-being of Nyssa would be greatly advanced by more sidewalks in our residential districts and a movement is to be started leading toward more sidewalk construction this winter and spring.

Dr. J. J. Sarazin was appointed as a committee of one to investigate the possibility of securing WPA labor for this work; with property owner furnishing the material for the job. If such a thing is possible, it is estimated that sidewalks can be constructed at an average cost of 5c per square foot. Some sidewalks in town have been constructed in previous winters by this method and it is felt that possibly the same opportunity would be open this winter.

Nyssa merchants are losing hundreds of dollars of trade on account of impassable roads between the Owyhee and Nyssa. It's about time they woke up and did something. The farmer's problems are also their own.

Comparatively few of Malheur County need worry about income tax, but of this minority, some have already received partnership and fiduciary blanks from Clyde G. Huntley, collector of international revenue in Portland.
