Your County Agent Says

If you winter beef cows on a ration containing a considerable amount of silage, you had better cut back on the silage prior to calving to avoid an epidemic of milk scours. Silage increases the milk production of the cow to a point the calf may get more than he can handle until he gets a few weeks old. Good alfalfa or grass hay is the best ration prior to calving. They contain adequate protein, energy and if harvested at the right stage, Vitamin A.

It is a proven fact that as high as 10% of our older range bulls are sterile, therefore of no real use in our breeding programs on range cattle. It is a good management practice then to cull these older bulls prior to turn out this spring. At the present price level, a salvage bull goes a long way towards purchasing a good young purebred bull. Something to think about and perhaps do something about.

Those of you who sell wool should be aware of a serious problem that came up last year. Some fleeces were tied with plastic baler twine instead of the recommended paper twine. This plastic twine in the fleeces makes it impossible to properly scour the wool. Buyers of wool this year intend to reject any wool in which any fleece is tied with this plastic twine. So beware, use only paper twine in tying your fleeces and your wool sacks.
