The New Barbarians

We note with sad concurrence many of the comments made recently at Brigham Young University during the commencement address delivered by Dr. John A. Howard, president of Rockford College.

"During the last decade," he said, "a slow-moving decline of character in our country has developed into an avalanche...The moral depravity of what appears on television is rivaled by the moral tone of many campuses where cohabitation is a commonplace and where the use of illegal drugs does not even raise an eyebrow..."

"The radical quartet of seductive sirens - filthy speech, marijuana, sexual liberation, and defiance of the military draft - signing with soothing and self-righteous sophistry, lured young people onto the shoals of personal and public anarchy where no rules or laws were acknowledged other than their own whims and passions...The do-your-own-thing philosophy has spread throughout the country... (This) philosophy is, by definition, anti-social...If a person actually lives according to the belief that there are no restrictions upon his conduct other than what he chooses for himself, that person is actually a barbarian. The nightmare stories of the SLA and the Manson family make it clear that there are in American today 24-karat barbarians, who have carried this depraved philosophy all the way to its ultimate degree of evil."

What is to be done about the state of affairs? There can be no such thing as moral neutrality, Dr. Howard maintains. "We seem," he said, "to be caught in a circumstance where the spokesmen who are opposed to our traditional religious and civic virtues are either greater in number than their opponents, or else are given more opportunities to be heard and read. That situation will persist until enough worthy and intelligent people decide they will no longer permit truth to be outraged by their silence."

Exactly. If we want to clean up the moral filth that has so polluted our society, then good and righteous men must stand up for what they believe. We cannot afford the luxury of concerning ourselves only with our own personal affairs. Otherwise we will surrender our birthright and our heritage to the new barbarians.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Editor, The Journal:

As citizens and taxpayers of Nyssa, we wonder where it will all end. First, a totally outlandish and ridiculous school. It looks more like a prison than a school. The electrician that was fired for making much milder statements than that about the school should have been applauded, not fired. The type and amount a building costs does not make a school. If you have good teachers, a barn is sufficient.

Now, some people want this new housing project for the migrant workers. What a FARCE!! All most taxpayers have left in their pockets is lint. We understand it's the farmers that want this project. However, all the farmers we've talked to, and we've talked to a lot of them, said they definitely do not want this. Also, we heard it would help the businessmen of Nyssa by bringing more people in to spend their money in Nyssa's stores. HOG WASH!! Most of the migrants are on food stamps and medical funds from the government. As far as clothing and other merchandise, these people aren't fools. They're like most people, if they can save money by traveling to Caldwell, Parma, or Ontario; they sure will.

In response to the so-called unanimous vote by the Chamber of Commerce, we understand there were only eight members present. The City Council rejected the idea. When do the rest of the people get their chance to vote whether they want to pay more taxes for something else we don't need.

Some people are getting way out of hand with the spending of other people's money. Maybe they can afford it, but we sure can't. Where does it all stop?

Is there anyone else that has stopped and thought about a few of these things, or are they going to sit back and take it, no matter what is dished out??

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Davis, Route 2, Box 104, Sp. 28, Nyssa, Oregon

Brig Olsens Visit Teton Disaster Site

By Nell Bowers

Kerma and Brig Olsen visited their son Garth and family in Rexburg, Idaho last week and were able to view some of the Teton Dam disaster. The following are some of the things they saw.

They visited Sugar City. Here in the middle of all the buildings wrecked and washed away sat a little old house probably built before the turn of the century, sitting all by itself, a small two-story affair, no paint, also a short distance in the rear, a small frame garage untouched. Next door was a foundation of a large home and out in front a fine row of perunias, blooming away.

A family lost four horses. They looked and looked for them, finding three and brought them home. After a week, the other horse came home. No one knew where he had been.

Someone heard a cow bawling. They moved a big trailer off a box car, and in the box car, were five big Holstein cows, one dead. The owner said, "That's my start."

There are lots of cows and horses on islands in the river. Nothing but mud. No way to get them off as they are very frightened of the water now.

There are cars sitting everywhere, in fields, ditches trees. In the town of Rexburg, the stores look normal, with the windows out, but when you look in, the floors are gone, nothing.

Along the roads they traveled, there were all sorts of things, tricycles, toys, house furniture—they even saw a sewing machine. No one comes to claim them and no one can pick them up.

Safeway store went right to work, selling food. The prices were less than they are here, so they are not taking advantage of people's troubles. Sunday everyone was traveling around. The police were stopping them and asking them to go home.

Where the water has gone, the grain is growing beautifully.

Out in these fields lots of machinery is twisted and piled by the water.

Two bulldozers were at the last minute frantically trying to fill in the hole in the dam. The men finally jumped. One bulldozer was found but the other has never been located. In Sugar City, the church looks exactly like a big bulldozer went right through it.

One family moved right back into their new home, it looked fine, no damage. They moved right back out—the smell was unbearable. They are having to tear off all the sheetrock and the insulation to get rid of it. The insulation molds. They are having to drill holes in the partitions at the top and bottom and put a hose in to wash the mud out of them.

Out of Sugar City, they saw the big white house that was pictured in the Boise paper. It was tipped over a little but not a window broken out.

A friend of Garth's in Sugar City lost his living room off his new home. The fireplace was still sitting there. He was the only one starting to replace anything; that the Olsens saw. He was doing it on his own.

Saturday, fifteen school buses arrived in Rexburg, loaded with people from Utah, who were going to help over the fourth of July weekend.

AMERICA The Bountiful

There should be plenty of food available for Americans, if the trend established in the 1950s, 1960s and 1970s continues. Reliable statistics from the U.S. Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System show our food production doubled in 20 years.

There should be plenty of rooms available for Americans on the go. Holiday Inns have over 1700 places in 45 countries around the world with a reliable American standard of excellence.

There's plenty of railroad tracks around for American trains. Statistics show that America has more length of railroad than any other country, with 205,782 miles of track.

SEEDS FROM THE SOWER
 By Michael A. Guido, Metter, Georgia

Many have a wrong idea of Christianity. They think of it as a killjoy. For the Christian life, as it is generally lived, is not a happy life. A keen observer once said, "There are some Christians who seem to have a religion that makes them miserable. They're like a man with a headache. He doesn't want to get rid of his head, but it hurts him to keep it. You can't expect outsiders to seek very earnestly for anything so uncomfortable."

one miserable, but to make him happy. Long ago one said from experience in Psalm 144:15, "Happy is that people whose God is the Lord." But some who profess to be people of God have no happiness because they try to half-live the Christian life. But half a conversion is no more good than half a life-boat. Happiness does not come through a discipleship that is half-hearted but whole-hearted. Caleb's secret of happiness is found in his testimony, "I wholly followed the Lord." Why not try it?
