Soviet Naval Objectives

"When in the past a country with few overseas financial or colonial interests has embarked on the building of a considerable fleet, the true aims of the ships concerned have proved to be not only protection of the homeland and the sea lines of communication which run to it but also aggressive activities designed to support national policy."

So speaks the new 1976-77 edition of Jane's Fighting Ships in its comments on the Soviet naval building program. "Admiral Gorchkov has made it quite clear that he considers the fleet which he commands as an essential element of the political advance of his country," Jane's adds.

The fore word to the latest edition of Jane's stresses the great reliance of NATO nations on ocean trade, pointing out that at any one time there are over 4,000 merchant ships plying between their ports in addition to some 3,000 ships within those ports. Oil comes to these nations in tankers, of which 200 are daily at sea in the Indian Ocean. He who has the capacity to interrupt this commerce will be in a commanding position to achieve his ends, even though no shot or torpedo is ever fired. This seems to be the Soviet objective as they establish naval bases or friendly havens in such diverse places as Cuba, North Africa, Guinea, Somalia, and Aden. Meanwhile, their squadrons sail into all the waters of the world.

With one Soviet carrier now operational, a second nearly so, and two more building, it is unmistakably evident that Russia is no longer prepared to concede U.S. naval superiority in any category of ship. The U.S. naval mission of protecting our overseas supply lines and providing for the maritime support of our far flung allies is clearly in jeopardy.

Honest debate may flourish over just what mix of ships we need, but there can be no doubt that we face a serious and growing naval challenge that must be fully met if we are to maintain our credibility and deterrence.

Saturday Breast Screening Program

The Saturday Breast Screening Program, sponsored by the Idaho Division, Inc., American Cancer Society and held at the Breast Cancer Detection Center (BCDC), has now screened 350 women from around Idaho and eastern Oregon. Nurses are doing breast examinations and teaching self breast examination. Mammography is also being done.

The patients are requested to make contributions to help alleviate expenses. Sizeable contributions from the Golf for Charities, Inc., have made it possible for the American Cancer Society to assume responsibility for the remainder of the costs.

The center is open from 8 a.m. to 12 noon each Saturday to screen approximately 20 women who are not a part of the present research project with the BCDC. If you wish to make an appointment please call Ina Brown, 345-8631, on Tuesday and Thursday or write her, 4606 Franklin Road, Boise.

Ina has been in charge of this program for the past eight months. She has a corp of volunteers helping the program to run smoothly on Saturday. We commend Ina for her excellent organization which has made this program run so smoothly.

Mammography To Continue At B.C.D.C.

The question of whether mammography should be included in breast cancer screening programs for women under 50 years of age was the focus of a conference in Bethesda, Maryland, July 19, 1976. The meeting was called by the National Cancer Institute which co-sponsored the 27 Breast Cancer Detection Centers with the American Cancer Society. Each of these centers are screening 10,000 asymptomatic women for five year, each with a five year follow-up.

In the early 1960's, a research study in New York City on 66,000 women was done to determine if the addition of yearly mammography in addition to physi-

LETTER TO EDITOR

Editor, The Journal:
Aren't you getting tired of this air pollution from the aereal spraying of insecticides? It seems to me that it is a rain of death. The spray we have to breathe slows down the heart and that backs up the blood in the liver, where it clots and then you have a terrible nausea and weakness and dizziness.
I've suffered from it for over four years and so has my husband, Ed Pruy, since June of this year. Its no fun trying to sleep and wake up gasping for breath.
Then think of all the sudden deaths from heart failure. What has caused them?

cal examination could decrease the death rate of breast cancer. They found a one third decrease in women over 50 years of age who had mammography. No decrease was found in women 35-50 years of age.

Through continued technological improvement radiation dosage required for mammography has been steadily reduced. Today ex-

Billy Graham Crusade Strived For In Area

What do Meals-On-Wheels Officers, Billy Graham Crusade and the Nyssa hospital have in common? All were topics of discussion at the September meeting of the Nyssa Ministerial Association. Here are some of the highlights of that meeting.
1 - Meals-On-Wheels— Many churches have "pitched in" and taken responsibility for deliveries. This much needed program is operating well, thanks to local help. It was noted that there was always a need for wider participation, however, and any interested churches or groups should contact Rev. Walt Schmidt, pastor of the Faith Lutheran Church at 372-3331.
