Four FFA youths from the Nyssa and Adrian chapters were among those attending the recent National Future Farmers of America convention in Kansas City, Mo. From the Nyssa school were Gary Moss and Karl Smith, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Rommell Moss and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith all of Route 2 Nyssa. Adrian High School students attending were Jim Brewer and Barry Fujishin, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Don Brewer of Route 1, Nyssa and the Sam Fujishins of Ridgeview area, Route 1, Hometown.

The Nyssa FFA soil judging team, comprised of Craig

Robbins, Dick Cooper, Don and Alan Cleaver, emerged as winner in the Snake River District contest held at Halfway and sponsored by the Baker Soil Conservation service.

The housing project which has been built by the federal Fahrenbruch is a sophomore majoring in engineering. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Fahrenbruch of Route 1.

Malheur county health officer, Dr. Grant Hughes issued a reminder to parents this week that all children who are due for their third Salk polio vaccination should report to their family physicians for this final shot as soon as possible.

government with the assistance of the city on King Avenue is expected to be ready for occupancy next week.

The six apartment houses will provide living quarters for 24 families. The houses, which are furnished, are prefabricated buildings moved by the government from Vancouver, Washington. Total cost was approximately $36,000.

The houses will be occupied by families of war veterans. When the housing emergency is declared over, the government will turn the building over to the city.

A grisley, yet interesting discovery was made Tuesday at the Wyatt Smith farm seven miles southwest of Nyssa, when the skeleton of a man was uncovered. According to doctors, the skeleton was that of a middle aged Indian man, of big frame and likely buried from 75 to 100 years ago.

The discovery was made accidentally when Mr. Smith dug a ditch, approximately four feet deep, around the brow of a sandy hill. Mr. Smith hesitated about investigating further without official sanction and notified authorities.

Buried with the Indian was a very interesting collection of arrow heads, skinning knives and other relics. It is believed the Indian was likely a high chief, due to the quantity and quality of the weapons and tools buried with him.

Walter Lowe of Harney County sold to the Baker

Hide and Fur Co. 175 coyote pelts, his catch for the month of September. Lowe has been trapping for the last 10 years and has an average of 500 coyotes trapped every season, each season covering a period of catching 35 coyotes in a single day. John Simpson is the county's next best trapper. He takes about 400 coyotes for every four months.

Government trappers have been sent into Harney county to beat Lowes record, but all have failed. There are more coyote trappers in Harney county than any other place in the United States.

Sage of Nu Acres

By Lyn Dohner

Went to the hills again last week. Made us a fire-pit and spent a lot of time keeping the fire going and keeping warm. Little critters, high in the pines, chattered scoldingly at us for disturbing their quarters, invading their territory.

At night we slept in the back of the truck, each longing for that good, roomy, warm bed at home, where chill breezes don't sneak in under your chin, and where the dogs stay happily in their basket. Still, it was so beautiful, the lake so spectacular, could stay forever.

Home again, and three days' newspapers waiting to be read, and magazines and mail. Hot baths, TV, and ye faithful furnace, and a kitchen whose pots and pans don't all have black, smokey bottoms. Nice. May not go back until spring.

Oh, noticed The Argus Observer that Robert S. Thornfeldt has a new building going up built of logs. Says, "It's the first building of its type to be installed in this area. The closest is Boise." Beg to differ with him. Our Gary Fischer, next door, is building his new home of logs, the same kind, the same way. And his is up to the top and the roof is going on right now! So, would say his is the first.

Gary is doing his own construction, with the help of one man, having first had the daylight basement built by a contractor. He smashed his thumb with the hammer last night so that may slow him down for an hour or so.

Gary and Jan plan to have a real farm, with animals and chickens, the works. To start with they bought a little nanny goat and named her Bambi. They also got a tall horse named Shorty, and two big white geese who disappeared shortly after arriving. Maybe they set out to go back to the farm of Dave Breeding in Parma, their former one.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Ballard of Post Falls, Idaho, visited in the area last week for a few days. They stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Keck and visited their other family members, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Evans and Miss Janice Evans while here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cooper and their son Richard, from Kennewick, Washington visited Mr. and Mrs. David Maine and Mrs. Cooper's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Omar Maine recently.

A Lay Witness meeting at the United Methodist church in Snohomish, Washington was the object of a lovely trip taken by Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Evans last week.

On the way up they visited Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cairns at Hermiston, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Bingaman at St. Maries, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Ballard at Post Falls, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Evans at Spirit Lake.

The Ballards accompanied them from their home on up to Marysville, Washington where they stayed to visit their grandson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph White. Coming home, the Evans' stopped at Goose Creek for a little fishing. They were gone, in all, two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Sutton and family had a thrilling trip last Saturday in their Jeep when they followed Mann's Creek to the top of the mountain.

Seems the Jeep didn't really have room to sit on the mountain to park, and kind of teetered. Darrell had to take a shovel and dig out a spot for it, and at times both wheels on one side left the ground. It was too narrow to turn and go back down, but they couldn't go further, so Darrell managed to turn back anyhow.

Mrs. Sutton said the scenery was worth the danger and roughness of the trip.
