Beet Growers Face Economic Concern

The Board of Directors of the Nyssa-Nampa Beet Growers Association, added their concern about the economic wellbeing of agriculture in the Treasure Valley and the states of Idaho and Oregon; to a growing list, including Wheat Commission Cattle Feeders, Potato Growers and many others.

Jim Elgin the Executive Secretary of the Beet Growers, pointed out that the sugarbeet industry is in the depths of a full scale recession, and in the beet growing areas of the valley, with about 28% of the acreage in Malheur County Oregon and the balance in five South-West Idaho counties, the reduction in income will be dramatic.

Total income from the growers share of sugarbeets in the Treasure Valley, will show on a calendar year basis that gross income in 1976 will approximate 24.5 million dollars, compared to 49 million in 1975; over 57 million in 1974; 33 million in 1973 and 29 million in 1972.

Since 1972 cost of living has gone up for everyone; and the escalation in grower costs is well documented, and as a result of this "squeeze" the future of a viable domestic industry is in doubt, and unless there is a turnaround in sugar prices the 1977 beet acreage will show a significant reduction. Elgin also pointed out that for Idaho as a whole the impact will be greater, as the above figures can be approximately doubled; thus the reduction of income from 1975 to 1976 will come close to 50 million dollars.

Beet growers in the area will be receiving their initial payments this week, on deliveries of the current crop. This payment, averaging $13.68 per ton is 38% less than the initial payment in 1975 and 47% less than in 1974; and will fall short by 16% of paying for the cash costs of production which were fully documented by a study by the Oregon State University Extension Service; and while returning a good share of the cash costs, will only return to the grower about one-half of his full or actual expenses.

The Association Secretary also commented that the future price trend of sugar is in doubt, but that the U.S. International Trade Commission had completed two hearings with a third scheduled on November 30, to determine if there is "dumping" by foreign producers and if the domestic sugar industry needs some protection from "unfair" competition.

Your County Agent Says

With fertilizer production capacities generally up from a year ago and with relatively large inventories still on hand, the general outlook for the 1976-77 crop year is for fertilizer supplies to be sufficiently large to prevent any significant upward movement in prices, even in the face of increased fertilizer demand. However, in each of the three primary nutrient markets, there are circumstances pending that could alter this general outlook.

Nitrogen: U.S. anhydrous ammonia production capacity is expected to increase by about one million tons by the end of this year, and Canada is also expanding output. As a result, prices for nitrogenous fertilizers are expected to be steady to lower, even with increased levels of use.

However, since natural gas is important in the production of anhydrous ammonia, the recently approved price hikes for natural gas moving in interstate markets might alter this picture somewhat. As long-running contracts expire and are renegotiated, some ammonia producers will likely find themselves paying significantly more for their primary input, especially if the rate hikes approved by the Federal Power Commission go into effect. Phosphorous: supplies of phosphate rock and phosphate fertilizer materials are plentiful, some market uncertainties exist as the phosphate industry currently is working off accumulated inventories. Potassium: U.S. inventories of potash on July 1 were 13 percent above a year earlier, and producer prices have declined.
