

NEW HOPS BEING SHIPPED

The local hop market is very quiet. In fact the market for the new crop has not yet been established.

Salem buyers have forwarded to their respective houses some of the best samples of this year's crop and are awaiting the advice of their firms before offering quotations.

Horst Bros. of this city, will today ship a carload of about 120 bales for Sacramento, California.

A prominent local buyer yesterday, in commenting upon the unusual inactivity of the market, locally, said: "There have been no sales for several days and there will not be until the growers make some concessions."

Several bales of hops are being delivered daily at the Southern Pacific Company's warehouse in this city for storage.

The following is from the Corvallis Times, of the 29th inst: "Over in the Sol King hop yard three-fourths of the hops are left on the vines."

A PRISONER BADLY BRUISED.

While Working in the Foundry at the Penitentiary—Clipping Caught in Revolving Shafting.

At about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, one of the prisoners in the Oregon penitentiary, who is employed in the foundry, was considerably bruised, as the result of an unfortunate accident, which, happily, did not have fatal results.

It was at first thought that bones had been fractured, and other serious injuries sustained, but an examination showed that these fears were groundless, and that, beyond several bruises and torn clothing, no damage was done.

When the accident occurred, resulting in a commotion on the inside of the prison, it was thought by the outside officers that a fire had broken out in the foundry, and the trustees, working on the outside, were hastily summoned and taken to the scene, but their services were, happily, not required.

The prompt manner with which the supposed fire alarm was responded to, however, speaks volumes for the splendid discipline maintained at the prison, and indicates that, should a fire ever occur there, it will be handled in the most intelligent and prompt manner possible.

A SALESMAN INSANE—Julius Adler, of Portland, a traveling salesman by occupation, 37 years old, was brought to this city by City Marshal W. C. Miller, of Woodburn, yesterday, charged with being insane.

IN SICK ROOMS.—The smallpox scare is about over, and the city has escaped the scourge which it was feared, would do material damage. The physician in charge of the suspicious cases reported last night that Mrs. Battersby, the first case developed, was progressing nicely, and that her complete recovery was a matter of but a short time.

A PIONEER MURDERED.—Miss Lena Miller, of this city, yesterday received a letter from Gold Beach, conveying the information that Mrs. Edson, a pioneer woman, aged 75 years, residing there, was, a few days since, burned in her house, the result of murder and robbery.

A distant relative is a wealthy one who is close.

"The Mill Cannot Grind with Water That's Past."

A fagged out, tearful little woman said this in telling her cares and weaknesses. Her friend encouraged by telling of a relative who was cured of just such troubles by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Told Her Friend—"After having gone on my neck 42 years Hood's Sarsaparilla completely cured me. I was so glad I told friends about it and a lady in Wisconsin who read of my cure told me she also took Hood's for the same trouble and was cured. She thanked me." Mrs. Anna Sutherland, Kalamazoo, Mich.

A great majority of the restaurants and lunch counters of this city were represented at a meeting of the proprietors of such places, which was held in the office of G. F. Smith, of the St. Elmo restaurant last evening.

While no definite action was taken by the meeting last night, it is very probable that the conference will terminate in a uniform advance of 5 cents each on every meat order included on the several bills of fare.

DEFERRED A WEEK

SALEM'S PUBLIC SCHOOLS WILL BE OPENED OCTOBER 9th.

Smallpox Scare Occasions the Postponement—Polytechnic School May Be Continued.

(From Daily Sept. 28th.)

At a special meeting of the board of directors of the Salem public schools, held last evening, it was decided to postpone for one week the opening of the city schools.

This postponement was deemed expedient because of the prevalence in the city of an incipient smallpox scare. Upon motion it was declared the sense of the meeting that the patrons of the school be requested to have their children vaccinated during the coming week.

Although final action in the premises has not been taken by the board, it is quite probable that the Polytechnic school will be continued this year despite the fact that a resolution recommending that it be discontinued was adopted at the annual school meeting last spring.

Two bills were ordered paid by warrant as follows: R. E. Moores, printing school supplies, $32.39; Jones & Moores, painting and kalsomining the inside of Little Central school building, $50.

BROOKS.—At the home of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Murphy, in North Salem, at 1 o'clock p. m. on Saturday, September 23, 1898, of spinal meningitis, Victor Hunt Brooks, aged two years, six months and three days, the eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Brooks, formerly of this city.

Little Victor was born in the seagirt fastnesses of Cape Mearns, on the rugged coast where his father was long stationed as assistant to Light-keeper Hunt the famous old mariner, after whom the child was named. In this circumscribed yet happy and healthful environment, he grew into sturdy and charming babyhood, beloved of all, leaving there with his parents when they departed to their new post at the Turn Point light station, on Puget Sound, and from whence the family came, about ten days ago, to this city, on what was intended to be the first and happy, home-coming of Mr. and Mrs. Brooks, since their marriage. Almost simultaneously with their arrival here, the dread malady attacked the little boy, and despite the unremitting efforts of devoted kinsmen and friends and the closest and most skillful of professional care, death intervened yesterday, to end the untoward suffering of the child.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks possess the earnest sympathy of a large circle of relatives and friends in the Capital City, in this, their hour of great affliction.

The mill will today begin receiving wheat again, having arranged its lower warehouse for the reception of grain. It has a storage capacity of about 50,000 bushels.
