

SALEM GIRL WEDS

MISS AIMEE LEE BECOMES MRS. C. H. HINMAN.

A Pretty Wedding at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Lee, on East State Street, Yesterday Afternoon.

October of this year, promises to prove the month of marriages. Several happy unions have already been chronicled by the Statesman for the present month and Cupid, by industriously plying his vocation, has arranged for the celebration of a number of other nuptials before the end of the month.

One of the happiest and most beautifully arranged wedding ceremonies of the season, was the marriage of Miss Aimee Lorene Lee, of this city, to Prof. Charles H. Hinman, of Ellensburg, Washington. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Lee, on East State street, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Rev. John Parsons, of the First Methodist church, being the officiating clergyman.

The pleasant home of Superintendent and Mrs. Lee had been very beautifully decorated in preparation for the event. Fragrant La France roses, beautiful peonias and var-colored dahlias, and smilax and ivy in profusion were used in the decorations with charming effect. The lovely appearance of the rooms was enhanced by the presence of beautiful plants that had been brought from the large greenhouse at the penitentiary.

Promptly at the appointed hour, Mrs. L. R. Green, seated herself at the piano and began playing Lohengrin's wedding composition. The bride-elect, escorted by the prospective groom, descended the hall stairway, which was prettily decorated with ivy and pink ribbon. The bride couple was preceded by Master Louis Green, in a costume of white, made a charming page. He carried a basket of roses and clematis in which was nestled the wedding ring. Lyman M. Lee, of this city brother of the bride, and Miss Agnes Hinman, of Ellensburg, Washington, sister of the groom, followed the happy couple, in the role of best man and bridesmaid, respectively.

The party passed into the front parlor and thence to the entrance into the spacious sitting-room, which was barred by two snow-white gates, profusely decorated with smilax. The gates were unfastened and opened by the page and the young couple took their proper stations in the gateway, and just beneath an arch of ivy and smilax from which was suspended a double heart, a beautiful floral arrangement formed with La France roses and white peonias. They were met there by Rev. Parsons who pronounced the service and the beautiful ceremony was ended. The bride was attired in a costume of white organdie and carried a bouquet of carnations. The groom wore the customary black.

After the offering of congratulations, the newly wedded couple and the guests entered the dining room which had been decorated with artistic skill. There an elegant wedding breakfast was discussed amidst conversation. Suspended from the ceiling and attached to the edge of the table at regular intervals, were festoons of ivy and smilax, relieved by pink and white ribbons. The entire decorations were the conception of Miss Letta Abrams and Mrs. L. R. Green who furnished the design, for the work which reflected much credit upon their ability in that direction.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Superintendent and Mrs. J. D. Lee and during her short residence in this city, formed numerous warm friends. The groom is an educator of the Evergreen state, being county superintendent of schools for Kittitas county.

The ceremony was witnessed by only the relatives and a few intimate friends of the family, including the following: Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Odell, Associate Justice and Mrs. E. S. Bean, Rev. and Mrs. John Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Butler, of Monmouth; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Smith, of Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. L. Abrams, of Lincoln; Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Green; of Lincoln; Mrs. E. M. Rooker, Mrs. Nancy Witten, Mrs. A. Olinger, Mrs. Amelia E. Miller, and Miss E. E. Taylor, of Salem; Miss Agnes Hinman, of Ellensburg, Washington; Miss Letta Abrams, of Lincoln; Miss Eva Smith, of Dallas; Carl Abrams, of Corvallis; Harry Randle, of Lebanon; Lee and Haven Smith, of Dallas.

A large number of costly wedding gifts including a great amount of silverware and other useful and valuable articles, was received by Mr. and Mrs. Hinman, who departed on the afternoon train yesterday for the home of the groom, at Ellensburg, Washington where they will reside. They will visit friends in Portland and Seattle while on their way.

At 9 o'clock next Monday morning, at St. Joseph's Catholic church in this city, will occur the wedding of Mr. Frank Albrich, of this city, and Miss Bertha Huffman, of Mt. Angel.

MRS. MUSSER DEAD.—Mrs. Priscilla Musser, mother of Elmer Musser, who died from the effects of what is said to be smallpox on Tuesday night, also succumbed to the scourge at 5:45 last evening. The woman was 55 years old. The remains of mother and son were last night taken out and buried under the direction of the city authorities. The young man is said to have been addicted to the use of opium, which fact is probably partially responsible for the fatal effects of the scourge in his case. Mrs. Musser died on the second anniversary of the demise of her husband, and the eighth of the death of a daughter. There are two more patients afflicted with the dread disease in the Musser home—Surie Hershey, aged 13 years, a niece of Mrs. Wm. Battersby, and the latter's baby, but the city physician, who is in charge of the cases, has hopes of saving both, unless complications set in. Mrs. Mary Hervey, of Portland, a daughter of Mrs. Musser, and mother of the sick girl, Susie, came to Salem immediately upon the first news of the sickness of her sister, Mrs. Battersby, and has been untiring in her efforts in behalf of the afflicted family. Her devotion to her distressed relatives has caused much favorable comment among those acquainted with the facts.

WILL LEAVE SALEM.—C. T. Doty yesterday disposed of his poultry business at No. 94 Court street, to J. T. White, who has taken possession of the business and will hereafter conduct the same. Mr. White was formerly engaged in the racket store business with O. P. Dabney. Mr. Doty expects to leave with his family about the latter part of the month for Tolono, Illinois, where he will reside with his venerable parents.

WANTS A DIVORCE.—Mrs. Lizzie E. Somers is the plaintiff in a divorce suit instituted against John M. Somers. The case will be heard in department No. 2 of the circuit court for Linn county, at the coming term. The defendant is best known as one of the representatives in the hold-up legislature in 1897. The cause assigned for wanting a separation of the marriage bond is desertion.

WILL CAN TOMATOES.—The W. K. Allen Canning and Evaporating plant yesterday began canning tomatoes. The crop of this year is unusually large and the cans will be operated as long as the crop lasts. The only fear to the crop is from frost, which is liable to come at any time.

Salem Business Men Report Many Sales.

INDICATION OF PROSPERITY

Quotations for Articles in the Various Departments of the Home Market.

A prosperous condition of the people of the Willamette valley is evidenced this fall by the increased volume of trade reported by the various business houses of the Capital City. Never before, excepting possibly the holiday season, has there been such a heavy and constant trade as at the present time. By reason of the late season, the regular fall trade did not begin so early this year, but the sales continue steady and regular and the different stores with their increased force of salesmen, are continually besieged with customers. One merchant yesterday stated that he never before had sold as many goods and of such a high grade during the summer and fall as he had done this year.

"Trade in my department was never better than this fall," said an enterprising young Salem merchant yesterday. "My sales thus far for October are ahead of those for the corresponding time last year. The trade instead of coming in a rush as it did last fall is more regular and steady. I anticipate a continuation of the present heavy trade until late in the season when the holiday trade will arrive."

The poultry and egg market is rather inactive. Old chickens are very scarce and it is difficult for dealers to meet the demand. Old hens have not been plentiful since July, and now bring 8 cents per pound, live weight. Young chickens are, however, quite plentiful at from 6 to 9 cents. Eggs are very scarce at 17 cents cash and dealers are troubled to keep the market supplied.

The Oregon apple crop this year was short and the fruit is quite expensive. The best variety retails for 90 cents per bushel. Other varieties sell for 75 and 80 cents.

The market is well supplied with potatoes at 35 and 50 cents per bushel. Oregon cranberries are for sale at the different grocery stores at 12 1/2 cents per quart.

Luscious grapes, grown in this state, are in the market. Although the fruit is quite abundant, the initial lot was retailed for 6 1/2 cents per pound and the quotation remains the same.

Southern Oregon peaches of the late Crawford variety, sell for 80 cents a box, or 15 cents per dozen.

The tomato crop this year is enormous and that vegetable retails for 35 and 40 cents per bushel. The crop this year is up to the usual standard of excellence in point of quality, for which Oregon is noted.

Pears are quite plentiful. The Fall Butter variety, a splendid article for preserving, is now in its prime and sells for 90 cents per bushel. The Bartlett, which were rare this year, are now entirely out of the market. Other varieties of the pear family retail for 65 to 80 cents.

There is practically no change in the meat quotations. Beef continues to become more scarce. Eastern buyers are purchasing and shipping out of the state all the cattle they can buy. Where the supply for the ensuing winter season and the succeeding years is to come, is a conundrum that presents itself to Willamette valley meat dealers. The prediction that a meat famine will ensue, seems likely of realization. The following quotations were yesterday furnished by a local dealer: Beef, 3 to 3 1/2 cents on foot; pork, 6 cents dressed; veal, 7 cents dressed; mutton, 3 1/2 cents on foot. The hay market has been established. The year's crop is adequate for home consumption and will permit of some shipments. The quotations are as follows: Oats 25 to 27 cents, buying; hay—cheat $6.50 and $7; timothy, $8.50 and $9; grain hay, $7; straw, $3.

CHANGES MADE.

PROMOTIONS FOLLOW ADMIRAL HOWISON'S RETIREMENT. Captain Barker, Formerly of the Oregon, Is Advanced—Other Officers Are Benefitted.

Barker, commandant of the Norfolk navy yard, to be rear-admiral; Commander Edward P. Strong, to be captain; Lieutenant-Commander J. B. Briggs, to be commander; Lieutenant R. T. Mulligan to be lieutenant commander; Lieutenant (junior grade) J. H. Rwan, to be lieutenant. Admiral Howison stood No. 3 in the list of rear-admirals. His retirement advances Rear-Admiral Schley from No. 9 to No. 8, and Rear-Admiral Sampson from No. 11 to No. 10, placing the latter at the head of the junior rear-admirals.

JUDGE DAY SPEAKS. Explains the Acquisition of the Philippine Islands.

Columbus, O., Oct. 11.—First public utterance of Judge Wm. Day, who was president of the American peace commission, concerning the peace deliberations of the peace commissioners at Paris, is contained in a letter written to former Congressman D. K. Watson, of this city, and read by him at a republican meeting here tonight. Judge Day sets forth the reasons which, in his mind, justified the payment of $20,000,000 for the Philippines, declaring that it was never contended by the American commissioners that the United States a right to the Philippines as a matter of conquest.

THE WORLD'S HOP MARKET No Sales Reported in This City Lately.

TRADE CONTINUES TO BE DULL

Only Contract Hops Are Being Shipped—Prospects Not Good for Improvement in Situation.

Since the Salem hop market was established, the market has continued to grow duller rather than more active. Not a single sale in this immediate locality has been reported this week. In fact, but a very few sales have been consummated in this county during that time. The market quotations remain at from 7 to 10 cents. The pronounced inactivity of the hop market here is resulting in a spirit of uneasiness among growers and there is no prospect of an immediate improvement in the situation. "The longer present conditions prevail, the less apt is there to be any marked improvement of the market or an advance in the quotations," said a reliable local buyer yesterday. "Consequently, the outlook for growers is not bright. No sales have been made recently and but few shipments have been forwarded from Salem. Shipments have consisted only of contract hops. The market is even duller now than when it opened last week."

The Otsego (New York) Farmer, dated Oct. 6th, says of the hop market here: "The local dealers are busy gathering samples, but very little buying has been done as yet. Some very fine growths are being discovered by the buyers in their rides about the country. As the baling goes on it becomes evident that the weight per box this year will be more than usual, running in many cases as high as eighteen pounds per box. This indicates that the hops are rich in lupulin."

Of the Waterville (New York) market, the Times says: "The prices at which '99 hops have been sold during the past week do not offer much encouragement to growers to continue much longer in business. For several years now the majority of them have received prices that have hardly covered the expense of raising and some years not even that. Each year they have been hoping and trusting that better prices would prevail and have continued to raise the much disappointing crop. Their lot has indeed been a hard one and there seems to be no prospect of relief. The question of plowing up the yards is one that should invite and receive their serious consideration."

In the Mark Lane Express, of Sept. 25th, "Lupulin" comments thusly on the status of the hop market: "It has, perhaps, hardly ever been more difficult to gauge the actual position and prospects of the hop trade than it is today. When business in the new crop commenced, the outlook was more favorable than had been presented for many years. We all expected an exceptional, and some of us predicted an excessive yield; and, remembering the excellent conditions under which the growth had until then progressed, it was confidently stated that the quality would be exceptionally good. But the effects of the drought in July and August were too apparent when the picking had fairly commenced. The absence of sap from the bine began to tell. The cones did not complete their development, but in some districts suddenly stood still, and red mold and vermin attacked many plantations with disastrous effect. The results are painfully evident in the majority of samples which have thus far come forward, and though there are plenty of hops, the greater part of them (perhaps three-fourths), may be classed as only medium or low qualities, lacking color and condition, and altogether disappointing both to sellers and buyers. With but comparatively few attractive sound hops, and a big bulk of inferior grades, it is almost impossible to retile upon any figures which will represent average values. Everyone is puzzled, and as each lot is dealt with on its individual merits, we have some very conflicting information concerning the trade that has been done. In the meantime, it is clear that buyers are anxious to operate in any bright, sound lots that are available. Consequently, strong active business has ruled this week, and there is no doubt that firmness on part of growers of best samples has been yielded to by merchants, so that the market for such hops may be safely quoted 5c. to 10c. higher. But samples deficient in color, or more or less unsound, are neglected, and for these rather low prices have been accepted.

He lived on a large farm near Marion, this county, for thirty-nine years. Shortly after coming to Oregon he became the husband of Miss Stout, the daughter of a pioneer family, and raised a family of three children—two sons and a daughter—all of whom survive him. They are: Dr. Remus McCully, mayor of Goldendale, Washington; Dr. A. A. McCully, recently returned from the Klondike; and Mrs. Nettie Van Dorston, of Tacoma, Washington.

The deceased came to Salem about seven years ago and resided at the corner of Capital and Mill streets. About a year ago, he fell and sustained slight injuries and since then his health has gradually failed, terminating in his death as stated here.
