THE TIDE WATERS

CONSTRUCTION OF A CLAUSE IN THE STURGEON LAW.

The Attorney General's Opinion Given at Request of Fish Commissioner F. C. Reed.

Attorney-General D. R. N. Blackburn recently received a letter from F. C. Reed, of Portland, the state fish commissioner, asking for a construction of the clause "tide waters of the Columbia river" as found in the act entitled "an act to protect sturgeon and to regulate the time and manner of fishing for sturgeon in the waters of Columbia river, and declaring an emergency," page 166 of the laws of Oregon, 1899. In reply the attorney-general yesterday gave out the following opinion:

"The act itself, in which the clause is found, fails to throw any light upon the meaning intended to be conveyed by the clause, as there used, and as the act does not purport to give any particular significance to the term, it only becomes necessary to examine the authorities and the expressions of courts upon the term 'tide water,' in order to obtain a guide to the proper construction of the clause in question.

"The Century Dictionary and Cyclopaedia defines 'tide water' as water affected by the ordinary ebb and flow of the tide."

"In the case of Reece vs. Miller, 8 Q. B. division 630, the court says, 'tidal waters, meant that part of the river, which under ordinary circumstances is under the influence of the ebb and flow of the tides.'"

"If the effect of the tide upon the current is so great as to occasion a regular rise and fall of the water it may properly be said to be within the ebb and flow of the tide." Attorney-General vs. Woods 108, Mass. 436. In re Planter 7 Pet. (U. S.) 324.

"I am, therefore, of the opinion that the term, 'tide waters of the Columbia river,' as used in the above mentioned act, includes all that portion of the Columbia river, upon which the influence of the tide, causes the water to rise and fall regularly; the term does not include that portion of the river that may under exceptional circumstances be affected by the tide, but only where the tide in the ordinary course of things flows and refloes."

COMING CITY ELECTION.

The Republican Primaries Will Be Held on Monday, November 27th.

Interest in the approaching city election, to be held on Monday, December 4th, is on the ascendancy, and a lively contest may yet result.

The Salem city republican central committee held a meeting yesterday afternoon and fixed Monday, the 27th inst., the Monday preceding the municipal election, as the date for holding the republican city primaries. The official notice will be published within a few days.

At the city election there will be four aldermen to elect, one from each ward. The members of the council, whose terms expire next month are as follows: First ward, Thos. Burrows; second ward, A. B. Buren; third ward, Lee McGrew; fourth ward, F. A. Legg.

HOME FROM CAPE NOME.

P. Gwinn Has Returned From the Gold Fields and Tells of Their Richness.

P. Gwinn has returned from the Cape Nome gold fields for a short visit with relatives in this city, expecting to return to the mining country in the spring. Mr. Gwinn is a son of Norman Gwinn, of North Salem, and a brother of Jeff Gwinn, engineer in charge of the government anagboat, Mathloma.

Mr. Gwinn departed for the gold fields last August, going from Tillamook county. He was very much impressed with the richness of the mines and the quality of the ore that is being extracted, and declares the Cape Nome mines the richest he has ever seen. He says the beach is wonderfully rich. The beach extends about fifty miles in length and is being worked for a width of 100 feet. So rich is the beach that Mr. Gwinn says he has seen individuals clean up 25% ounces of the yellow metal in a single day, but of course, such instances are not numerous. Anvil Creek and Snow Gulch are very rich and yield largely. Diggings on Anvil Creek have gone as high as $432 per ton.

Mr. Gwinn says there are about 7,000 people at Cape Nome, a very large percentage of whom are working the beach.

The return trip by ocean schooner was an experience that will not soon be forgotten by Mr. Gwinn. He was numbered among the passengers on board the "Hero," one of the steamers upon which there was so much suffering on the trip, by reason of lack of food and attention to the comfort of the passengers on the part of the captain and other officers of the boat, who were criminally negligent in this regard. The trip consumed twenty-eight days, and the provisions were adequate only for about ten days, after which the passengers were compelled to subsist upon bread and a poor quality of coffee, which was sparingly given out. For the last seven days of the trip, the passengers were practically without water, being given less than a half pint each per day. Owing to the lack of substantial nourishment and strengthening food, the passengers, with but few exceptions, were prostrated with sickness. Mr. Gwinn being included among the others. When Seattle was reached he was so weak that he was unable to leave the ship unassisted. The blame for the condition of things aboard the steamer belonged entirely to the captain.

Mr. Gwinn expects to return to Cape Nome in the spring, where he will dig for gold on the beach which is so liberally sprinkled with the precious metal.

WHAT WOULD YOU GIVE

To be cured of catarrh? If you or your friends have this disease, you know how disagreeable it is. Its symptoms are inflamed eyes, throbbing temples, ringing noises in the ears, headaches, capricious appetite, and constant discharge of mucus. Fortunately its cure is not a question of what you will give, but what you will take. If you will take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great constitutional remedy, which thoroughly purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood, you may expect to be completely and permanently cured. The good blood which Hood's Sarsaparilla makes, reaching the delicate passages of the mucous membrane, soothes and rebuilds the tissues and ultimately cures all symptoms of catarrh.

CHANCE FOR WORK.—Here's an opportunity for the "Salem hog" to get in his snout and capture a job for a few days in the capital of Linn county: "Sealed bids will be received by the undersigned until Thursday, November 30, 1899, and then opened by the executive committee, for cooping, feeding and caring for the poultry, etc., and cleaning the show room at the annual exhibition of the Oregon State Poultry Association, to be held at Albany, Oregon, January 22-29, 1900. Full particulars and blank proposals may be obtained by addressing the secretary, F. Fenwick, Portland, Oregon."

A BIG YIELD.—Duncan Ross, who lives on the Isaac Durbin farm on Howell prairie, reports a phenomenal yield of potatoes. A three-acre tract on his place produced, this year, 1200 bushels of potatoes, a yield of 400 bushels per acre. He claims the belt as the champion potato grower of Oregon, asserting that this yield has never been equaled.

CORONER CLOUGH AGAIN AFTER THE COUNTY COURT.

Appeal to the Circuit Court to Compel the Allowance of Official Fees—A Divorce Suit.

(From Daily Nov. 5th.)

A. M. Clough, plaintiff, vs. Marion county, defendant, is the title of a new action filed in the second department of the state circuit court for Marion county. The action is brought by the plaintiff to secure a review of the proceedings of the Marion county commissioners' court in the matter of disallowance of the coroner's fees, charged against the county in connection with the inquest over the remains of Stella Flannery, who committed suicide at the insane asylum in September. The amount involved is $4.85, and consists of the following items: Summoning jurors, $2.50; issuing five subpoenas, $1.25; swearing jury and witnesses, $1.10. The petitioner prays that a writ of review be issued, directed to the clerk of Marion county commanding him to return said writ to the circuit court, and a certified copy of the record or proceedings in question, that the same be reviewed, and requiring the defendant in error to desist from further proceedings in the matter to be reviewed. That upon the return of the writ, judgment be entered correcting the erroneous proceedings and directing the county clerk to audit and pay the items disallowed. Sherman, Condit & Park are attorneys for the petitioner.

The case is similar to one brought against the county court some time ago, by the coroner, and at that time the circuit court ordered the county court to audit and allow the fees. It is claimed, however, that in the investigation in this case was held on a charge of the state, brought here by the state, Marion county is not liable, but that the state should pay the coroner's fees, and it is possible that a defense of that kind will be made by the county court, when the matter comes up for hearing.

Sheriff F. W. Durbin yesterday received a complaint from the superior court of the state of Washington, for King county, in a divorce suit, to be served on the defendant, A. M. Rowe, who is a prisoner in the Oregon penitentiary. The plaintiff, Mrs. Ida M. Rowe, who is a resident of Seattle, alleges that she became the wife of the defendant on August 12, 1881, in Merrill Junction, Wisconsin; that the issue of the union is one child, a son, Leon, aged 12 years; that the defendant has not supported the family for five years; that on October 20, 1897, he was convicted in Astoria, Oregon, of the crime of attempting to commit rape and was sentenced to serve ten years in the Oregon penitentiary, which term he is now serving. The plaintiff alleges there is no community property. The sheriff served the papers yesterday afternoon.

CARRIAGE OF THE MANILA GIRL.

Straight as the Wall of a House She Holds Her Head.

The carriage and walk of the native women of Manila are thus described by a returning traveler:

"As a rule the women of all classes are as straight as the wall of a house, if not straighter. A plumb line dropped from the nape of the neck would, in most instances, fall well behind the heels. But the gait is a peculiar swing, which is quite noticeable. Some charge this, as well as the straightness, to their habit of carrying all burdens, from a cake of soap to a house and lot, on the top of the head. That is probably the cause of the erect bearing, but I think the peculiar gait due to a certain swing of the limbs required for keeping the shoes on the feet. The local woman's shoe consists usually of a flat sole with a toe cap. Sometimes the cap has room for all the toes; sometimes not. Often the sole is raised from the ground by wooden heels and soles—blocks like, but lower than those used by the Japanese. Stockings are not usually worn. Let my 'gentle reader' take a pair of her little slippers and cut away from the soles all of the superstructure except a cap that will just about cover her toes, and after sticking her boudoir slippers on, try to walk around her boudoir and see how many shoes she has on after the trip. Try it again with the little outward curving ewing from the hip. After a few years of practice the slipper will stay on, and you will have acquired the gait of the Filipina. There is, perhaps, a certain grace in the movement, and there is also a good deal of 'shuffling' and a general appearance of being slipshod."

A CONSCIENTIOUS ARTIST.

William Morris, artist, poet and maker of wallpaper, stained glass windows, etc., lived up to his ideals and to his professions, often refusing orders on what he considered good grounds. In one of his circulars he states: "We are prepared to give estimates for windows in churches and other buildings, except in the case of such as can be considered monuments of ancient art, the glazing of which we cannot conscientiously undertake, as our doing so would seem to sanction the disastrous practice of the so-called restoration." On this ground Morris refused to execute a window for Westminster abbey.

A BRILLIANT LIAR.

What a Yaquina Paper Says About the Willard Affair.

The Eddyville correspondent of the Yaquina Bay News furnishes the following item which is full of lies from beginning to end:

"We had a shooting affair about half a mile from here when Mr. Willard shot his neighbor and landlady. The neighbors call it a cold blooded murder, but we think he will be at large as soon as they think it safe to let him out. They have been keeping him at the court house and giving him a hearing every few days or as often as they can find an enemy of the dead man, as it seems the courts have begun the fine system for murders, that is to work them for the money they have and then turn them out to brood more trade and just hang some because they have no money not because they deserve it. It reminds us of the robbers who robbed some Chinamen, one of the gang proposed to kill them but the foreman said no but let them go and earn some more money, then we can rob them again."

A Life and Death Fight.

Mr. W. A. Hines of Manchester, Ia., writing of his almost miraculous escape from death, says: "Exposure after measles induced serious lung trouble, which ended in Consumption. I had frequent hemorrhages and coughed night and day. All my doctors said I must soon die. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which completely cured me. I would not be without it even if it cost $5.00 a bottle. Hundreds have used it on my recommendation and all say it never fails to cure Throat, Chest and Lung troubles." Regular size 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Dr. Stone's drug stores.

ESKIMO DISH.

This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. Chamberlain's Pain Balm Cures Others, Why Not You?

My wife has been using Chamberlain's Pain Balm, with good results, for a lame shoulder that has pained her continually for nine years. We have tried all kinds of medicines and doctors without receiving any benefit from any of them. FELL DOWN STAIRS

GEORGE LAWTON MET WITH A MISHAP LAST NIGHT.

(From Daily Nov. 5th.)

About 9 o'clock last evening pedestrians passing the Red Corner drug store on Commercial street were startled by the sound of some heavy object rolling down the stairway leading to the second floor of the Moores' block and adjoining C. W. Hellenbrand's restaurant. On investigation it was found that, instead of a box falling down stairs, as some of the passersby had supposed, it was a man, George Lawton, a well-known character, who, by reason of being on the streets at all hours of the day or night, walking by means of crutches, had become a familiar figure.

The poor fellow was quickly picked up by Police Officer Smith and several citizens and carried into Red Corner drug store, where an examination was made of him, when it was found that his left leg was fractured below the knee, and that he was otherwise badly bruised. Drs. W. H. Byrd and J. D. Shaw ordered his removal to the hospital, where he was at once made comfortable and the fracture was reduced, and at midnight the patient was reported as resting easy.

At the time the accident occurred, Lawton, who was in a beastly state of intoxication, was on his way to his lodgings in the Moores block and, making a misstep at the top of the stairs, fell to the sidewalk, his crutches coming down with him and assisting in making sufficient noise to attract the attention of everybody within hearing.

This is the second serious fall the man has had. About two years ago he accidentally walked out of the window of a room over the Western saloon on the corner of Commercial and State streets, injuring his left hip so seriously that he has ever since been compelled to use crutches. This second injury, it is feared, will leave him in a worse condition than he was before.

Avoid all drying inhalants and use that which cleanses and heals the membrane. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and cures catarrh easily and pleasantly. Cold in the head vanishes quickly. Price 50 cents at druggists or by mail.

Catarrh caused difficulty in speaking and to a great extent loss of hearing. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm dropping of mucus has ceased, voice and hearing have greatly improved.—J. W. Davidson, Att'y at Law, Monmouth, Illinois.

Used by British Soldiers in Africa.

Capt. C. G. Dennison is well known all over Africa as commander of the forces that captured the famous rebel Goshie. Under date of November 4, 1897, from Vryburg, Bechuanaland, he writes: "Before starting on the last campaign I bought a quantity of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used myself when troubled with bowel complaint, had given to my men, and in every case it proved most beneficial." For sale by J. H. Lunn, druggist.

NEW TELEPHONE LINE

Movement Begun to Build a Line to Lyons.

Citizens of Stayton are contributing liberally towards stock in a telephone line to connect that city with the bustling little town of Lyons, eight miles east of there, says the Mail.

The proposition is to issue 200 shares of stock at $1 per share, that sum being the estimated cost of its construction. The plan is to run the wire over the poles of the telegraph line paralleling the Corvallis & Eastern railroad from Kingston, connecting there with the Stayton Telephone company's wire. It is understood that the railroad company has granted permission to use the poles along its line, a feature which greatly reduces the construction cost. Griff King the C. & E. agent of Kingston, has the scheme in hand. It is receiving liberal support from business men and will doubtless be a go.

It will not be a surprise to any who are at all familiar with the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, to know that people everywhere take pleasure in relating their experience in the use of that splendid medicine and in telling of the benefit they have received from it, of bad colds it has cured, of threatened attacks of pneumonia it has averted and of the children it has saved from attacks of croup, and whooping cough. It is a grand, good medicine. For sale by J. H. Lunn.

The institution of marriage keeps the moral world in being, and secures it from an untimely dissolution. Without it, natural affection and amiable nature would not exist, domestic education would become extinct, industry and economy be unknown, and man would be left to the precarious existence of the savage. But for this institution, learning and refinement would expire, government sink into the gulf of anarchy, and religion, hunted from earth, would hasten back to her native heavens.—T. Dwight.

MARRYING MAKES MEN GOOD.

Not Absolutely Perfect, "Which Might Be Dull, But Comparatively.

Friedrich Prinsidg has just published in Germany some of the results of his study of the influence of marriage upon the criminality of men. From criminal statistics he deduced that property rights of all kinds are respected more generally by the married than by the single. Such grave offenses as robbery, extortion and fraud are committed by married men with comparative infrequency. When he is driven to the unlawful acquisition of material goods, breaking of laws relative to trade, commerce and public health, forcible detention of pieces of property, bankruptcy, etc., are the forms which offenses against property usually take among married men. Among those married at extremely early age trespasses against the rights of property are more common than among the unmarried of a corresponding age. This is explained by the fact that poverty is frequently committant as result of such marriages.

Incendiarism is found most largely among the unmarried between thirty and sixty years of age. The unmarried outrun the married in the offenses against morality, and also in those against human life, but the married surpass the unmarried in carelessness and negligent killing and wounding. The difference in criminality between the married and the unmarried grows less with advancing years. Between the ages of fifty and sixty years it is small, and after that it is even less. Drunkenness claims the major share of its victims between the ages of thirty and fifty years.

The criminality of widowers between the ages of thirty and fifty years is notably greater than that of other classes. The loss of the wife frequently leads to the mental derangement, and certain kinds of self-control are difficult for this class to exercise. In general there is a decrease of criminality of the married the longer they have been in the married state. Among the restraints which marriage places upon the married men is the fear of bringing disgrace upon his family and lasting shame upon his children. The temptation of the married man to indulge in the pleasures of the public house is less than that of the single man. With the need of defending and supporting a family, there comes, too, increased respect for religion, law and property, the defending and supporting of the institutions of society. Lastly, a strong deterrent effect of marriage upon criminality results from the influence of constant and intimate association of the man with a member of the sex whose criminality is low compared with that of his own.—New York Press.
