

FROM TUESDAY'S DAILY

A CHRISTMAS AT KAMIAH

RED MEN AND PALE FACE OF IDAHO OBSERVE THE HOLIDAY.

Turkey Shoot and Dinners, Band Concert and Dances. Participated in by Residents There.

Kamiah (Idaho) Dec. 26.—Christmas came and went, finding and leaving this community a bright example of "Peace on earth and good will toward man."

In the forenoon an old-fashioned shooting match for turkeys, in which the redman and paleface vied with each other in friendly sport, was the absorbing event.

At night the sounds of music and many dances were heard, and all the young were wrapped in joy and merriment and all the old in peace and contentment.

Many also assembled in the large and commodious church where a luxuriant evergreen had been placed to serve as a Christmas tree.

Either to the Indian or Indian department, or conjointly, belongs great credit for the development of the Indian in this community.

He has taken many of the white man's best traits and characteristics, with few of his vices. He attends punctually his church services, speaks good English, uses neither whiskey nor tobacco, avoids vulgarity and profanity, is industrious and economical, and fair and honest in all his dealings.

Kamiah is situated on the Clearwater, on the eastern borders of the Nez Perce Indian reservation of Idaho.

CHANGE OF SUPERINTENDENTS AT THE INSANE ASYLUM.

A Eugene Physician Relinquishes His Authority in Favor of a Resident of McMinnville.

(From Daily, Jan. 2d.)

At 10 o'clock yesterday forenoon Dr. John F. Calbreath, of McMinnville, was formally installed as superintendent of the Oregon asylum for the insane, and Dr. D. A. Payne, who held that position since August 1, 1895, laid down his work and retired from any further connection with the institution, over the destinies of which he so long and ably presided.

It is understood that the retiring bookkeeper and commissary will remain on duty, for a couple of weeks, to instruct their successors in the work of their respective positions.

Dr. John F. Calbreath, the superintendent, comes to the asylum splendidly equipped for his new duties, being one of the leading physicians and surgeons of the state, and having made mental diseases a life-long study.

The asylum, at the time of its transfer, had 136 employees on its payroll, while 799 male and 371 female patients were then under care and treatment.

Superintendent Calbreath, when seen at the asylum yesterday, said that no wholesale changes would be made among the employes and attendants at this time, but vacancies, as they occurred, would be promptly filled.
