

IS NOW AT REST

K. L. Hibbard, Who Crossed the Plains in '47, Died Tuesday.

WAS A HIGHLY RESPECTED CITIZEN

Funeral Services Held at First Congregational Church Wednesday Afternoon—Burial, Warren Cemetery.

(From Daily, Feb. 21st.)

After an illness covering a period of about three years, King L. Hibbard, a pioneer of 1847, departed this life at the Salem hospital at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, aged 62 years, 3 months and 2 days.

Mr. Hibbard had been gradually sinking since 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, and his death was expected, momentarily. The entire family was in attendance at his bedside when the end came. Although he suffered almost incessant pain, he endured it all with remarkable patience and fortitude and was conscious until within a few minutes of his death.

The deceased had been ailing for about three years with kidney and bladder complaint which finally rendered him incapable of managing his farm east of this city, and last October he removed with his family to this city, where, relieved of the care and anxiety of his busy farm life, he expected to ultimately regain his health. Failing to improve, he went to San Francisco on January 5th, accompanied by his brother, T. R. Hibbard, of Silverton. He remained in California three weeks but, despite the best of medical skill and experienced nursing, he gradually became worse. Returning home, he submitted to a surgical operation, about two weeks ago, as a final resort, but he failed to be benefited thereby, death ending his suffering yesterday afternoon.

King L. Hibbard was born near Peoria, Tazewell county, Illinois, on November 18, 1837. In the spring of 1847, when but ten years old, he crossed the plains with his parents, arriving in Marion county September 25th of that year. His parents settled on a donation land claim in the Waldo hills, a portion of the highly cultivated farm of the deceased, upon which he resided continuously until ill-health compelled his removal to this city.

The deceased was for many years a prominent politician in this county and canvassed Marion county several times. He was a man of pronounced integrity and by reason of his unquestioned honesty and conscientious course was honored and respected by his political opponents. He served very acceptably as county assessor in this county for one term—1870-2. He belonged to no fraternal organization, but was for many years a member of the Willard Congregational church, in which he was ever a faithful and untiring worker.

In December, 1859, he was married to Julia A. Griffith, who with six children—three sons and three daughters—survives him. The children are: O. S. Hibbard, of Baker City; Dr. L. E. Hibbard, of Burns; Claude Hibbard, of Salem; Miss Helen Hibbard, of La Grande; Miss Gertrude Hibbard, of Portland, and Miss Josephine Hibbard, of Salem. The deceased also leaves one sister and three brothers, viz: Mrs. E. J. Knowles, of Silverton; T. R. Hibbard, of Silverton; Geo. D. Hibbard, and Dr. Charles W. Hibbard, both of San Francisco.

George Taylor, who was committed to the Oregon hospital for the insane from Marquam, less than a week ago, died yesterday afternoon of a cerebral hemorrhage. He was aged 75 years.

MORE CORPORATIONS ORGANIZE.

Will Begin Operations in Oregon—A Big Mining Company and a Woodman Camp.

Three new corporations filed articles yesterday in the state department, and received authority to begin operations in Oregon. They are:

The Keystone Mining Company will engage in mining in Oregon and elsewhere in the United States, and will do a general development business, and deal in general merchandise. Portland will be the headquarters. The company has a capital stock of $100,000, divided into shares of 10 cents each. F. A. Knapp, Wm. Jones and J. A. Cranston are the incorporators.

Pleasant Hill Camp No. 271, Pacific Jurisdiction, Woodmen of the World. The organization is located at Pleasant Hill, Lane county. The amount of property is placed at $275. J. K. McKinney, W. F. Mooney and H. C. Wheeler are the managers and incorporators.

The Franklin Christian church, of Lane county. The estimated property is fixed at $500. J. F. Ferguson, J. N. Dennis and R. C. Beaman are the trustees and incorporators.

BADLY SCARED.—The people of Southern Oregon are considerably excited over smallpox rumors and facts now current from Lane to Josephine county. The Roseburg Review makes a serious charge against Grants Pass by declaring that the man Wm. D. Johnson, from Sumpter, who died there of smallpox recently was more the victim of neglect than of the disease; that the doctors, the authorities and the people of the town refused to go near the man or do any thing for him, and being quarantined, the man was in no condition to help himself. Then after his death three tramps were hired by the city officials to bury the body for $50, part of the contract being that they should then get out of town as quickly as possible. The three men carried out their contract to the letter, bearing their way out of town on the northbound local yesterday morning. They were discovered in a drunken condition by the trainmen and put off at Glendale. This rank piece of work may result in scattering the disease quite extensively and the people along in that region of country are agitated over it. A rumor was current last Sunday that a smallpox case was on board the train coming north, but the trainmen denied it. The railroad authorities will be called to exercise great care for a time in the carrying of sick people.

A SALEM WOMAN.—The following is from the Eugene Guard, of February 16th; it appears to be somewhat of a mystery who Ella Jones is, the Statesman being unable to find anyone last evening, who knew her: "Yesterday morning about 2 o'clock Officer Croner heard several lusty screams in the vicinity of Sixth and Willamette streets, and on reaching the scene of trouble beheld Ella Jones, a young woman from Salem, bleeding from the result of blows administered by a Jack McCarty, whom she claims assailed and robbed her of $4. Vigorous search was at once instituted for McCarty to answer to a charge of larceny, but up to this time he has not been apprehended."

AT SPOKANE.—Ed. D. Baker writes to one of the Statesman force from Spokane that all the Salem boys up there are doing well, with the exception of Bert Macey, who has the smallpox. He has been sick a week, being now at the pest house. Al Olinger, the well-known carpenter and contractor, is in Salem from Spokane. He says there are so many Salemites in the Eastern Washington metropolis that he sometimes imagines he is on the Webfoot state capital's thoroughfares when he goes out on the streets there.

FINE BEEF STEERS.—Steusloff Bros. yesterday purchased from W. B. Stevens, of Crowley, Polk county, twelve head of extra fine stall-fed Short-horn steers. The average weight was 1235 pounds, and the average cost $55.58 per head. These steers were fed for ninety days.

NEW LIGHT PLANT

F. R. ANSON PROPOSES TO ERECT AND OPERATE IT.

Will Supply Light, Power and Steam Heat by Means of Modern Equipments.

(From Daily, Feb. 21st.)

F. R. Anson, for many years manager of the Salem Light & Traction Company's business, and who resigned his position a few months ago, with a view of engaging in business at some point in the Northwest, has decided to remain in the Capital City, and at last night's meeting of the city council he made application for a franchise authorizing him to erect and operate an electric light and power, and a steam heating plant in this city. Mr. Anson's plan is to construct, in case the franchise is granted him, an electric light plant, provided with the latest improved machinery and equipments. One of these improvements will be a combined engine and dynamo, recently patented and constructed, the two being practically one machine, thus dispensing with belting and a consequent liability of accidents.

The distinguishing feature of the new plant will be the use to which the exhausted steam, wasted in all steam plants, will be put. Mr. Anson proposes to utilize this steam by means of a recent invention, in heating stores, offices and buildings throughout the city, at about an average price of good stove heating.

Mr. Anson has met with much encouragement, on the part of the citizens, since conceiving the plan, and he is firmly convinced that his venture will meet with success, and hopes to have his plant in operation by September 1st of this year, provided the franchise is granted him by the city council, which has the matter under consideration. The date given here, when Mr. Anson hopes to complete his plant, is four months earlier than that named in the proposed ordinance.

RAILROAD BUSINESS.—During the month of January, business in the passenger department in the Salem office of the Southern Pacific Company was exceptionally good, surpassing the record for the corresponding period last year, while it was necessary to put on a number of extra freights to handle the business of that department. There has been a steady business in both departments thus far this month, although the volume of the traffic is not as great as during the preceding month, in fact there is always a falling off of trade in transportation circles during the month of February each year. At present two local freights are operated regularly while two through freights are required for the trade. Many carloads of hops are being shipped now, while almost daily numerous carloads of Oregon manufactured lumber, consigned to Ogden, pass through Salem. The company's employees at Salem were made glad last Friday by the arrival of the pay car—a monthly occurrence—when about $700 was disbursed among local officials and workmen.

TRANSFERRED TO PORTLAND.—James Winstanley, manager of the Salem agency of the Oregon Hop Growers Association, returned last night from a business trip to Woodburn, Mt. Angel and Portland, where he has been supervising the shipment of hops that were recently sold by the association. Mr. Winstanley says the executive committee of the association, has decided to remove its main office from Woodburn to Portland, where H. L. Bents, of Butteville, the secretary, will be placed in charge. In making this change, the officers of the association claim the business of the association can receive better attention while the arrangement will in many ways contribute to the general convenience.

A SLICK SWINDLER

FORMER OREGON CONVICT IMPOSES ON COLORADO PEOPLE.

Claims to Have Been a Judge in This State, and Sentenced Himself to Prison for a Purpose.

(From Daily, Feb. 21st.)

The Denver Evening Post, one of the leading newspapers of Colorado, devotes considerable space in the editorial columns of its issue of February 17th, to a former inmate of the Oregon penitentiary, one George Hayford, who on January 18, 1899, was sentenced by Judge M. C. George, of the state circuit court for Multnomah county, to serve one year for obtaining money under false pretenses, and who was discharged from prison by Supt. J. D. Lee on December 10, 1899, having served his time less the time deducted for good behavior. The editorial of the Denver Post is given herewith, and it is safe to say that all readers of the Statesman will promptly recognize the fact that the "Post" has been sadly imposed upon by a confidence sharper:

"Judge George Hayford, of Salem, Oregon, has made a unique investigation of the Oregon state prison. He was a recognized authority in criminal law before his elevation to the bench and has served a term as attorney-general of his state. In every respect his standing is excellent. Since he became judge various reports have reached him of abuses in the state prison, cruelties practiced on prisoners and meager and poor fare given them. As to the truth of these stories so circumstantially told as to appear to be absolute verity, he was unable by inquiry in his official capacity to obtain satisfactory information.

"Here, where a less determined and resourceful man would have been stopped short, Judge Hayford began his real investigation. He doffed the ermine and went to prison, a prisoner, self-sentenced for contempt of court. A few friends only knew the secret. It had to be confined to them to insure the successful operation of the plan. No one at the prison dreamed the identity of the prisoner who treated like all the other inmates of the institution, was able to secure the precise information he desired.

"It is said Judge Hayford found that what he suspected was true. He is now engaged in preparing a report for the prison authorities, in which he will outline the discoveries he made and suggest a means of bettering the condition of the prisoners. Though the information at hand of Judge Hayford's undertaking is incomplete, it is sufficient to satisfy any one of his devotion to duty and his originality of method. He certainly is worthy of the highest commendation, also, for the kindness of heart that actuated him. None of us desires to become a state entertained visitor in a penal institution, but we all do believe that prisoners should be humanely treated and subjected to no humiliating punishment that may tend to their further degradation."

George Hayford has a history, there is no doubt, but his exploits differ somewhat from those told by the Post. He came to Portland from California in 1868, where he represented himself to be an attorney, and soon, by his suave manner and evident knowledge of law, gained the confidence of several members of the legal profession, whom he impressed with the idea that he had large property holdings. He finally determined to fit up an office, in the Chamber of Commerce building, and purchased furniture, office fixtures and other goods on the installment plan. He also secured money from various people upon different pretenses, until his creditors began to investigate him, when he suddenly disappeared.

Detective Ford, of the Portland police, was given charge of the case, and he soon located the fugitive, the latter being on his way east on the Northern Pacific railroad. By a trial use of the telegraph, officers in St. Paul, Minnesota, were given a description, and instructions to arrest the fugitive, which they did upon his arrival. Detective Ford promptly secured a requisition for Hayford, followed and secured him, and was bringing him to Oregon for trial, when Hayford made a sensational escape. While passing through Idaho on a night train, Hayford asked permission to enter the toilet; Mr. Ford readily gave the permission, and followed his man down the aisle; arrived at the door of the toilet, Hayford, instead of opening it, swung open the door of the car, sprang out on the platform and a second later had leaped into the darkness of the moving train. At the first station Mr. Ford left the train, secured a handcar and a crew of railroad hands and started back over the road through the darkness to find the prisoner. He found the place where Hayford had jumped off the train, and by following his tracks in the snow, ran the fugitive to earth, recapturing him within sixteen hours after making the escape, and at a cost of $700. Mr. Ford found that, in order to disguise himself, Hayford had torn out every hair in his moustache, baring his upper lip without the use of razor, scissors or knife. When Hayford was brought to Portland he was indicted on eight counts for obtaining money under false pretenses, was convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary for one year on each count, the sentences to run concurrently.

The prisoner was received at the prison January 18, 1899, and remained just to months and 22 days, leaving on December 10, 1899, having served his time. Supt. J. D. Lee, when asked concerning Hayford, said yesterday, that the man was well behaved during the latter part of his term, but was inclined to be presuming, and occasionally it had been necessary to discipline him, but never severely. During the early part of his incarceration he had been somewhat unruly, and restive, but had, during the last few months of his stay, been what might be termed an exemplary prisoner. He had been employed in the tin shop, and in the garden spading, though the major portion of his time was spent in the "bull-ring," walking for exercise. Hayford's wife, a Russian woman, who conducted a small store somewhere in Montana, had kept him supplied with money and when the prisoner's time had expired, furnished him with funds to return home, and until the story, printed above, came from Denver, Mr. Lee said, he had heard nothing of the ex-convict.

When Hayford was received at the prison he gave his age at 40 years, although he looked to be 50. His photograph in the Rogue's gallery is not the likeness of an ideal judge of a court, and it is incomprehensible how the fellow's story was so readily believed in the editorial rooms of the Denver Post.

"Judge" Hayford is not an Oregon judge, neither was he ever attorney-general of this state, as intimated by the Denver paper; in fact, he is not an Oregon attorney at all, as inquiry in the office of Judge J. J. Murphy, clerk of the supreme court, yesterday, elicited the information that the name of George Hayford did not appear among the names of the attorneys commissioned by the court. Neither does his name appear on the roll of honor, containing the names of the eminent gentlemen who have dispensed justice in Oregon. As Oregon has only had three incumbents of the office of attorney general, since that office was created—Messrs. Chamberlain, Idleman and Blackburn, the latter the present incumbent—his story in that regard is proven as absolutely a lie, as are the others.

The most amusing statement in the editorial of the Denver publication is the assertion that "Judge" Hayford was sent to the state penitentiary for "contempt of court," a preceding unheard-of in the United States.

A FAMILY TROUBLE

THE SMITH BROTHERS TRIED FOR SHOOTING THEIR FATHER.

A Stubbornly Contested Case in the Circuit Court—Difficulty Over Possession of a Cow.

(From Daily, Feb. 21st.)

The Smith Brothers of Silverton—Orvie and William—were on trial in the state circuit court for Marion county yesterday, on the charge of assaulting their father, W. R. Smith, with a dangerous weapon, by shooting him in the arm, the weapon used being a Winchester rifle. A large number of witnesses were examined, and the entire day was consumed in hearing testimony and arguments, the case being stubbornly contested, until, at 8:30 o'clock last evening, when the jury retired for deliberation after hearing the instructions of the court, and receiving orders to notify the bailiff and have the judge called, in case the court was not in session when an agreement should be reached.

At 9 o'clock yesterday morning, when a court convened, the matter of choosing a jury to try the case was taken up, the following twelve men being selected: J. R. Jackson, W. H. Humphrey, Will Evans, Willard Martin, J. A. Shafer, C. E. Hudleston, M. R. Settlemyer, Wm. Staiger, J. E. Colard, Bruce Cunningham, John Kennedy, C. L. Watt.

District Attorney S. L. Hayden and W. H. Holmes appeared for the state, and W. M. Kaiser, Tilmon Ford and State Senator J. J. Adams represented the defendants. Mr. Hayden made the opening statement to the jury, and Mr. Adams addressed the jurors on behalf of the defendants. The testimony showed that the father of the defendants had, some time ago, secured a divorce from their mother; that the two sons, who are young men grown, made their homes with the mother; that the mother's cow disappeared out of the barn; that the young men, armed with rifle and revolver, respectively, went in search of the cow, going to the father's place, a logging camp ten miles from Silverton, arriving there at 11 o'clock in search of the cow; that they found the cow in their father's barn, but did not take her, retiring, instead, to the woods, on a hill near the house. Here they remained until 2 o'clock in the afternoon of the second day, when they approached the house, after their father's hired man had gone to the woods, finding Mr. Smith and a boy, D. M. Morgan, alone. The boy met them outside and started to speak to them when they bade him be silent, and entered the house. The father testified that the boys entered the house, saying, "d—n you, you took the cow, and we will kill you." The witness said: "Don't shoot," and ran out of the other door, when a shot was fired by William Smith, striking the father in the right arm, and he fell, outside the house, on a pile of wood; at this time the other son approached him with a revolver, when the wounded man said: "Why do you want to shoot me? Don't shoot me any more. You have killed me already." His son Orvie replied: "Don't put on any style or we'll finish you." The father testified that he went into the house, bleeding, when one of the boys helped tie up the wounded arm with a towel; that all this time William Smith held his rifle in his hands and threatened to "finish" the old man.

The defense brought testimony showing that the old man had attempted to shoot the boys when they entered his house, and the boys alleged self defense in shooting at their father. Testimony was introduced by the state showing the position of the house and the conditions when the men working for Mr. Smith were called to the house by the shot and the blowing of a horn. The defense also attempted to prove the bad reputation of the prosecuting witness. The taking of testimony was concluded at 4:30 o'clock and the argument began, being concluded at 8:15 p. m. W. H. Holmes and District Attorney Hayden speaking in behalf of the state and W. M. Kaiser and Tilmon Ford for the defense. At 8:30 o'clock the jury, after the charge of the court was delivered, retired, and at an early hour this morning, no agreement had been reached.

Now is the Time

To do effective spraying on fruit trees. The eggs of insects are hidden in the rough places in the bark of the trees and the trees are bare of leaves so that all parts of them can be reached by the spray. Every egg destroyed now means hundreds of insects less for next summer. To make SURE of killing them use

BEAN SPRAY PUMPS

Which spray at a very high pressure and are sure to penetrate to the hiding places of the eggs and destroy them. The pumps are practically non-wearable and non-corrosive and with proper care will last a lifetime.
