The entire length of the new revetment is about 1500 feet and in its construction 400 piles were driven. "The new work is by far the best that has been built, and, strange to say, its construction per foot has been the theory that he knew something less expensive. The general level of the bank where there had been washouts, has been raised about seven feet, which means that only in the very highest stages can the water flow in a damaging channel across the contiguous country.

"The operations have been under direction of Captain Galbraith, to whom much credit is due for the excellent and enduring character of the work."

The same paper on the same date contained the following regarding the difficulties the O. R. & N. company's government, for clothing, supplies and steamer Gypsy encountered during her recent navigation of the Long Tom river:

"The steamer Gypsy arrived from Monroe, Wednesday afternoon. The trip was the third that has been made recently, and it will be the last to be after the troops left the state, allowed made this season. According to all but 50 per cent of the claim. The water in the Willamette at the time was only six fect, above low water. It was altogether to low to go to Booneville, and it proved almost too low to get into Monroe and safely out again. Several times he boat was struck on snags and stumps, and the captain had frequently to be called into requisition. Near the mouth of the river the boat became entangled in stumps and drifts to such an extent that she had to be lightened of ten tons of freight. The crew worked on the problem of getting out until midnight, and returned to the task again at 3 o'clock in the morning. Escape was finally made, however, and the boat arrived in Corvallis at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The captain averred that at one time it looked as if the boat would remain in the Long Tom throughout the summer. The trouble was due to the very low stage of water. and to the great rapidity with which the Long Tom was falling. Additional work on the river would have made the trip less hazardous.

Now when a man invents a toy for a child he gets up something that winds with a key. Say you buy the toy on Wednesday; Friday morning the key cannot be found, high or low. But that doesn't make any difference, for the baby broke the toy or Uncle Henry stepped on it when he was looking for a match. Anyhow, when the baby saw the mechanical mouse running straight at him it scared him so that he set up a howl, and it was half an hour before to that. Women are so afraid of mice, The baby would like it all right enough when he got used to it.

"Women know what the baby does like is a rag doll, with pen-and-ink eyes and nose and mouth, but a man canness foresight. That is why he buys the mechanical scare-me-to-deaths that the street fakers have skating about on the sidewalks. "There is little money to be made out of the invention of new toys, anyhow. The old ones are so cheap and nice, and, another thing, children do not change much from generation to generation. They don't progress for a cent. They are essentially conservative.'

There is a peculiarity about Turkish cooking. Wherever you are, and at whatever time of the day you ask, 'When will dinner be ready?" the answer is always the same. "In ten minutes," and yet I have had all sorts of dishes on the table at the same time. I chink it is an improvement on our sundown ,and this habit is usual among all classes.

Attorney General Sheets has an idea that may help the friends of the state centennial out of the difficulty into which they have been thrown by his opinion that it will not be possible to appropriate $1,000,000 for the support of the centennial. He suggests that the legislature make a special levy for the support of the centennial, running for several years if necessary. This has been done in several cases for the permanent support of the state institutions. If the legislature will make a straight appropriation of $300,000 for the centennial, which it can do without imfringing upon the constitution, and then establish a special levy of two-tenths of a mill for two years, this, it is said, would produce all the financial support asked from the state without endangering the law or coming close to the bottom of the state treasury .- Chicago Inter Ocean.
