GRANTED A PARDON

WILLIAM MARSHALL RELEASED BY GOV. T. T. GEER.

The Boy Serving an Eight-Year Term for Manslaughter—Excellent Showing Was Made.

(From Daily Statesman, April 14th.)
Gov. T. T. Geer yesterday granted a full pardon to William Marshall, aged 19 years, who was received at the penitentiary in July 1898, from Baker county, having been convicted of the crime of manslaughter, and sentenced to imprisonment for a term of eight years. The pardon was urged by hundreds of citizens of Baker county, including the leading men—city and county officers, merchants, attorneys, farmers, etc. Among them were four of the trial jurors, and several members of the legislature. Judge Robert Eakin, the trial judge, wrote a letter to the governor, concerning the case, and while not recommending a pardon, stated there was many extenuating circumstances surrounding the case, and that the overbearing disposition of the deceased was sufficiently proven. The judge further stated he felt great pity for the boys.

The petition sent in by the friends of the prisoner, set forth the following statement of facts, which was found to be true:
On the twenty-first day of April 1898, two brothers, Oliver Marshall, aged 25 years, and William Marshall, aged 17 years, came to Baker City, each on a load of wood. After disposing of their wood they started home each on his own wagon, their home being situated about 11 miles from Baker City. When about a mile from their home their progress was stopped by two teams of wood haulers standing side by side in the road. One of these wagons was that of one James Reed who was standing in the road beside his wagon and engaged in conversation with a person sitting on the other wagon.

The two boys waited in the road for Reed and the other man to drive on so that they, the Marshall boys, could proceed. The Marshall boys got off their wagons and walked behind the two wagons that obstructed the road. The time of day was after sundown and about dark. Oliver Marshall, the eldest of the two brothers, was listening to some remark Reed was making, spoke up to Reed and said to him, "What was that you said about my wife?" Some angry words passed between the two men. Then Reed struck Reed up to Oliver Marshall, seized him and crushed him to the ground, exclaiming, "I'll kill you, you ---" William Marshall, the boy, then but 17 years old, fearing that his brother's life was in danger, called on Reed to desist, and picked up a stick lying in the road near by, and Reed, who had a rock in his hand and was holding Oliver Marshall on the ground, partially raised up and hurled the rock at William Marshall as he was approaching. William Marshall then struck Reed over the head with the stick. This blow released Oliver Marshall whom Reed held by the throat at the time the blow was struck. Reed was assisted onto his wagon and he then drove home from the scene of the affray. Reed died about three days later from contusion of the brain.

Oliver Marshall had formerly been an inmate of the insane asylum and had never fully recovered from his delirium. He was a weakly person, in ill health only weighing 115 pounds. Reed was a man about 30 years old, 6 feet high and weighed 180 pounds, and was a giant in strength. William Marshall was but 17 years of age, small in stature and weighed about 125 pounds at the time. He interfered in the affray between Reed and his brother under the well grounded belief that his brother's life was in danger at the hands of Reed. The defendant, William Marshall sought to introduce these facts upon trial, but was prevented from doing so, such defense under the law, which does not include the right of a brother to protect the life of a brother when in danger.

The trial resulted in a conviction, the elder brother being sentenced for ten years, but he was soon transferred to the insane asylum.

Starkey and His Driver Met with an Accident at Pendleton.

Visitors to the last State Fair who became familiar with the events of the track and the various actors therein will be sorry to read the following from the Pendleton East Oregonian, relating to a popular horse and a gentlemanly driver:
"Mr. Simonson & Peringer track this forenoon, an accident occurred in which James Irwin, a slender, sprained and Rob Starkey's black horse's pacer, Starkey, also received quite an injury. Irwin was driving Starkey to a roadcart, and in some manner the horse fell, turning a complete somersault, overthrowing the cart and throwing Mr. Irwin quite a distance. He fell on his shoulder, which was badly sprained."

NEW MINING TOWN
LAWTON, THE NEW EL DORADO IN THE SUMMIT DISTRICT.

E. T. Prescott, formerly of Salem, Writes Interestingly of the Prospects of That Place.

Lawton, Or., April 6.—Editor Statesman: From letters received from Salem people, concerning this new town of Lawton, that I happened to find out were in our Blue Mountains, I take it that a few facts published in your paper concerning this place would be of interest to your readers.

The town of Lawton is situated at the junction of Clear and Granite creeks, six miles north of Sumpter, and two miles west of Granite. Lawton is but a little over a month old, yet there are six buildings completed and as many more under construction. They are all business places, with the exception of three, and are constructed in a good substantial manner. All these buildings were put up by people who intend to start in business, and are not for rent.

The only store doing business at the present time is the general merchandise store owned by W. H. Hubbs & Co. Two other general merchandise stores, a hardware store, general mining goods, and several other kinds of business houses will open up as soon as goods can be gotten in from Sumpter. Besides these, the new town has one public boarding house, two private boarding houses, two restaurants, two lodging houses, one steam laundry, one bakery, one livery stable, one saw mill, one weekly newspaper, and one fire insurance company.

Lawton is a typical new town. Temperance for long since, in many cases. Within thirty days, the town of business activity will take the place of the forest, and will reign supreme but a few short weeks ago.

Some of the richest mines in all the Blue mountain belt are almost within a stone's throw of the principal part of town. The O. K. mine lies adjoining to the south, and a few hundred yards farther up Clear creek is the Granite and Benson group, the Red Mountain and the Comstock. Above these, a mile and a half from Lawton, is the Red Boy, now taking out gold bricks at the rate of $3000 per month, and sending a steady flow of seventy men. The owners are putting in hoisting works, the ultimate object being to attain a depth of 2000 feet. The Concord mine, just above the Red Boy, is preparing to sink a shaft for shipment. The May Queen is only one and one-half miles from here, almost due north, it is at present used for repairs, but will start up on the 15th inst. with a team and mill in place. The Magnolia and Conquer mines, two and three miles north, east of here, are in operation and are running a full force of men.

Lawton is the natural distributing place for all these mines, and also for hundreds of prospects which may, and in all likelihood will, prove their merit when opened up. At the present time there are no idle men in town. Experienced carpenters get $4 per day, while those less experienced receive $2.50 to $3.50. Good wages are paid for all kinds of labor. Board costs $2.25 per week and lodging, (on a tent), $2.50 per week. Freight, hauled from Sumpter costs one cent per pound. Rough lumber is $14 per thousand.

Altogether, the town has a happy future before it. Its growth will perhaps be as marvelous as that which attended the opening chapter of Sumpter's history.
E. T. PRESCOTT.
