WILL COME TO OREGON

ONE OF NEW BISHOPS ELECTED BY METHODIST CONFERENCE

To Come to Pacific Coast—The Woman Question Settled—Dr. Buckley Has Lost His Former High Place.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 22.—Editor Statesman: The contest over the election of Bishops has ended, by the choice falling on Doctors Moore and Hamilton. It will be remembered that Dr. Moore, visited Salem December last, and delighted our people by his lecture and sermon. Those of us who are here, are rejoicing over the outcome, as one or the other of the men so highly honored will most likely become a resident of Oregon. We feel confident our interests will be well cared for in the hands of either of them. The woman question is now being discussed, Dr. Buckley, as usual is pronouncedly against according woman a voice in the highest councils of the church, she has since the days of Suanna Wesley, had such an important part in building to its present commanding position in the religious world. But one thing is very noticeable—Dr. Buckley has to a great extent lost his hitherto great power over the General Conference. At the beginning of the session, his word was the will of the great body, but as has been so often true, he over stepped the bounds of propriety, as no question, great or trivial, was permitted to pass without the Doctor telling the body what they ought to do. But there is an end to all things, and within the past two days, by many acts and expressions, the Conference have given the self-assumed leader to understand, that it is capable of an opinion of its own. It is to be said to the good judgment of Dr. Buckley, that he has seen more silent and reserved in the expression of his opinions.

A settlement of the time limit has not yet been reached. The general thought is that the laymen will call for a separate vote, on the final settlement. It has been a surprise to me, to find the majority of the leading laymen are opposed to the removal of the limit, while the pastors of the great Eastern churches favor its removal. As the discussion of the woman question advances the preponderance of applause is very marked in favor of giving her equal rights. May her rights prevail, is the prayer I list. I very much regret that space in the Daily Advocate accorded me, did not admit the use of the cuts I so much desired to get before the church, but we congratulate ourselves in getting the word "laymen," and inserting the word "lay members." The vote was strongly in favor of the amendment. Another evidence that the world moves. GEO. W. GRANNIS, Chicago, Ill., May 22, 1900.

A FINE POSITION.

Rev. John Parsons, D. D., pastor of the First M. E. church, received last night a telegram from Gen. W. H.

Odell, who is at Chicago attending the Methodist General Conference as a delegate from Oregon, to the effect that Rev. A. M. Fisher editor of the Northwest Christian Advocate had been re-elected to that position; also that Rev. Parsons had been appointed a member of the Board of Missions of the General Conference. Rev. Parsons was astonished at the news, as he had recommended some one else for the place and was not a candidate, believing the position was out of his reach. Rev. Parsons will represent the district comprising the conferences of California, Southern California, Columbia River, Idaho, Oregon, Mexico, Puget Sound, Montana, Western Norwegian-Danish, Fong Chow (China), and Bengal-Bermuda. The board consists of fourteen members, and has charge of all the missionary work of the church in the world. The board meets once a year in New York, Chicago or Cleveland, remaining in session a month at a time. The appointment is a most important one, and Rev. Parsons is to be congratulated upon the distinction thus received.

IN THE BACKWOODS.

How a Start Was Made on a Mountain Ranch.

Mrs. Vina Hodges, Salado, Or. (From Pacific Homestead, Salem, Or.) WILL tell how my husband and I moved into this place ten years ago, and if it is interesting enough to print perhaps some one may be interested to read it. Mr. Hodges came here nearly a year before I did. He was just able to climb into his cart and drive the pony. He had been sick three months and the doctors told him his only chance to live was to go to the woods, hunt and rough it, so he and my father started for the coast hills. My husband is a good mechanic and can get good wages when he works. It took more than he could earn to pay the doctor bills. When I left home he had one pony, saddle and a cart and harness, all worth perhaps twenty-five dollars. He had a good gun and two dogs—full-blooded hounds. He had enough things to camp with and five dollars in money. He calculated he could make his living hunting, and he did. He had not been gone six months until he wrote to me he had a trail to Elk City. That was in the spring, so I concluded I would come out here and keep him company, as he wrote it was awful lonesome. My father had gone back home again and left husband all alone. We landed in Elk City one day, and it looked dismal. The station is situated in a canyon that is about a fourth to a half a mile wide with high hills all around, covered with big dead fir logs and stumps, which are not ornamental to look at. I will send a view of the country to the Homestead sometime. So our Eastern readers can see it. The hills in summer are covered with ferns which grows from five to seven feet high. It covers the old logs and makes every hill look green and lovely. The scenery is fine. I started for the camp. I rode a pony and had a bundle of clothes tied on behind the saddle and I carried my baby in my arms and husband packed our clothes, a feather bed, two small pillows and lots of other things on another borrowed pony. The pack was put on in two rolls and our oldest boy, then three years old, was put in the middle, and the little fellow held onto the pack ropes in front. We were cheered as we started out.

but we did not care for style. Husband led the pack pony and walked. It was not very gentle. We did very well for the first six miles, then the trail narrowed down and wound around a mountain side. There had not been a pick or shovel's work on it. The ponies had made places just big enough for their feet, and it was steep and down hill to the river. If a horse had missed its footing it would have rolled down thirty feet into the river, which was deep. The brush and logs were thick, and lots of times I had to throw my feet over to the other side of the pony to avoid a tree or log that would have crushed me or pulled me off. Sometimes the trail was so steep I had to get off and walk. The trail crossed the river six times in five miles. We got through without an accident. We were scratched some from brush, but I was happy all the same. The last four miles of our journey was made in a rain. We were all soaked through. I thought we were gone sure, but we did not even take cold. Our home we came to was a shanty 12x14, not ceiled. The lumber was split out with a iron and put on weatherboard fashion. We had a juniper bedstead, that is two legs and the other side nailed to the wall. There was a fire place with a roaring big fire with a pot of venison steaming and boiling full on the fire, and a jolly, good natured bachelor neighbor there to welcome Gen. and his wife and babies home. It took us all day to come, and we stopped just long enough to eat a cold dinner; but how delicious that supper tasted! I did without a stove the first six months and cooked on the fire. We had a tin reflector to bake bread in, one pot, a camp kettle, coffee pot, three tin plates, and cups, six iron spoons, and tin spoons, a table made out of clapboards two feet by three, no table cloth. I brought four plates and some saucers with me. Husband said I was putting on style. I had been raised on a farm and had seen another plant garden, so I planted a few seeds and I raised cabbage so large I could not lift them, and other vegetables besides. We concluded to stay here and try farming. Now we have a lovely home and a fine orchard loaded with fruit. We are all healthy, and I feel well repaid for coming into the backwoods.

At Bed Time

I take a pleasant herb drink, the next morning I feel bright and my complexion is better. My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. It is made from herbs and is prepared as easily as tea. It is called Lane's Medicine. All druggists sell it at 25c and 50c. Lane's Family Medicines moves the bowels each day. If you cannot get it, send for a free sample. Address, Orator F. Woodward, Le Roy, N. Y. 5.

HIGHER EDUCATION OF WOMEN.

"She managed to keep her cook more than a week after the cook decided to leave." "I'm not surprised. At college her blocking and interference were 'bout 'quite phenomenal.'"—Indianapolis Journal. Hail, fellow, well met, We all dirty and wet; Find out, if you can, Who's master, who's man. —Swift.

Champion Draw-Cut Mower

For his grass crops a farmer needs a mower that is convenient to handle, durable, and with great capacity, so that with the least labor for himself and the least care and risk, and with the least strain upon horses and harness, he can cut the most grass, whether in heavy cutting or in light, over rough ground or smooth, in a dry season or a wet one, in good conditions or bad conditions.

The Champion Draw-Cut Mower meets every requirement for grass cutting. IT DRAWS THE BAR. If the cutters meet a fixed obstacle the wheels will not lift from the ground. With this machine, therefore, the driver is safe and is in no danger of being thrown off.

The resistance of difficult cutting holds the wheels tighter to the ground, and thus gives more traction and cutting power when that power is most needed. This is the reason why the Champion will do cutting that other mowers cannot do. On all other front-cut mowers the wheels will lift from the ground when the bar meets a fixed obstacle, thus reducing the cutting ability and putting the driver in danger of being thrown off and injured. The advantages the rear-cut mowers used to have were that because they pulled the bar they could do more difficult cutting and were more durable than front-cut mowers, but for the same reason the Draw Cut Champion has all the capacity for cutting, and all of the durability, and every good quality of the old style rear-cut machines, and with this all of the advantages of the modern front-cut mower, besides its own many exclusive advantages, combined with light draft and perfect safety for the driver, for on the Champion the bar is DRAWN by the horses,—not PUSHED by the machine.

IT DRAWS THE BAR—NO PUSH. THE WHEELS WILL NOT LIFT FROM THE GROUND.

No mower ever was made that after a season's work did not show some wear in the joints connecting cutter bar to the machine, and as soon as that occurs the pitman and knife cease to be in line, the sections cease to register in the guards, wear, friction and hard work ensue; poor cutting and breaking knives and pitmans. Every maker of mowing machines tries to correct this. Only the Champion has succeeded, whatever others may claim. Both of these principles of the Champion are warranted in the strongest manner. Regular Draw Cut Mowers made in two sizes, 4 1/2-ft. and 5-ft. cut. Big Draw Cut Mowers made in two sizes, 6-ft. and 7-ft. cut.
