

RESULTS OF VOTE

Republicans Roll Up Large Majorities in Marion County.

MURPHY DEFEATED FOR SHERIFF

Candidate for Sheriff the Only Man Beaten on the Ticket—Durbin Elected by 76 Plurality.

(From Daily Statesman, June 6.) Almost complete returns of the election of Marion county show the entire Republican ticket was elected in Marion county by majorities ranging up to 1000, with the exception of Lieut. Chas. A. Murphy, candidate for sheriff who, according to the un-official figures at hand, was defeated by 76 votes, by Frank W. Durbin, the present incumbent of the sheriff's office.

Of the thirty-nine precincts in Marion county, thirty-six had reported their vote in detail up to last night, while in the case of three—Hohob, Mehama and Silver Falls—only the vote on sheriff and one or two other officers was secured. The vote complete on sheriff, gives Durbin (Dem.) 2386, and Murphy (Rep.) 2610, a plurality for Durbin of seventy-six votes. The Republican Legislative ticket is elected by average majorities of 752 votes. Following is the vote received by each candidate, so far as reported, and which figures will be changed but little when the official canvass is made, it being practically assured that no change will be made in the result:

Table listing election results for various offices including Sheriff (Durbin 2386, Murphy 2610), Legislative ticket (Republican majority 752), and various county and district offices. Includes names like Bernard Daly, W. P. Elmorie, James K. Sears, etc.

TROOPS FOUGHT IN ARMOR.

Last Known Appearance Upon the Field of Battle.

The last time when suits of armor were worn by European soldiers on the battlefield was in 1799, when a small French force was holding the little fort at Aquila, in the Abruzzi, against a rising of the hostile peasantry of the district, says the New York Press. The French were not strong enough to fight their way through the lines of their opponents, who outnumbered them twenty to one, while, as the latter had no cannon, the Frenchmen could hold their position with confidence. There were left on the space lying between the opposing forces a dozen or so guns, which the beleaguered force had not been able to take with them into the fort. An attempt was made by the besiegers to remove these guns by means of a long rope worked by a capstan, placed in a house a short distance away, and though their first endeavor resulted in failure, the French realized that the ultimate capture of the ordnance would seriously jeopardize the chances of the fort holding out. The necessity of spiking the guns was apparent, but a sortie in the face of the overwhelming musketry fire of the insurgents was out of the question. At this juncture an idea occurred to an artillery officer. He remembered having noticed, in making an inspection of the magazine, some old plate armor, and selecting from the best preserved twelve suits he determined to try whether they would not afford sufficient protection for his men to attempt the work under cover of their own guns. Twelve stalwart men marched out clad in this cumbersome, unaccustomed accoutrement, taking with them the necessary tools, and succeeded in executing their purpose under a hail of bullets from the besiegers.

WAITING TO BE MARRIED.

Best Day Yet for a Busy Minister in St. Joseph, Mich.

All records were broken at St. Joseph, Mich., the other day, when 97 couples, mostly from Chicago, were married. Most interest centered around the home of the pastor of one of the churches.

There the bridal pairs stood in line, waiting their turn to take the marriage vow and pay the fee that aids in keeping the wolf from the preacher's door.

GREECE'S RAILROADS.

Her Lines Are at Last to Be Connected With the European System.

The Greek government has just signed a convention for the construction of a railroad from the Piraeus to Demirli, near the Turkish frontier. The road is to be completed in four years and the section from the Piraeus to Livadia is to be in operation in two years. The line will run through Attica and Thessaly. It is not yet exactly known at what points the Ottoman line will reach the boundary and so the route of the short extension of the Greek line from Demirli to the frontier is to be settled later.

MUCH IN LITTLE.

About 40 years ago a young printer bought a second-hand press and a few cases of old type and started a paper in the wilds of Polk county, Wisconsin. Six years later he spent the winter at the state capital as clerk of the judiciary committee. He liked Madison. He served in the assembly three or four terms, twice as speaker. Then he went to the Senate, and in 1881 was elected lieutenant governor, serving five years. Such is a part of the history of Samuel S. Field, a native of Maine.—Success.

UNCONSCIOUS PLAGIARISM.

The latest victim of a case of apparently unconscious plagiarism is the author of a story sent to a magazine some time ago. After his story had been accepted he picked up another magazine, and there was his story, with precisely the same plot, told by a writer he had never met. There was just time for him to send word to the magazine that had accepted his contribution to have the story taken from the form. Two hours later he would have been too late.

IDEAL INSTITUTION

DR. R. CARTWRIGHT HAS OPENED HIS ELEGANT SANITARIUM.

The Building Was Constructed Especially for the Purpose—Is a Model Institution of the Kind.

In establishing in this city the Florence Sanitarium, Dr. R. Cartwright, one of Salem's most successful physicians and surgeons, has supplied a long-felt want in Oregon's Capital City. The Florence Sanitarium is situated on the corner of Winter and Ferry streets, in this city, within four blocks of the business center of the city, conveniently reached by street cars, and yet secluded enough to have perfect quiet. The structure itself is a two and one-half story and basement building. It was built especially for the purpose, and is elegantly furnished and appointed throughout, being lighted with gas and electricity, and heated by hot water. Every room in the home is airy and well lighted, with spacious halls and with a large, pleasant veranda, facing the east. In fact, no pains or expense has been spared to make it a model institution of the kind.

AN OLD GUARANTEE OF WORTH.

Jeweler's Certificate of Value Seven Thousand Years Old.

While exploring the central part of the northwestern ridge of the ruins of Nippur we discovered a room (5.5x2.75 meters wide) about six meters below the surface, says Ainslee's Magazine. Its ceiling had collapsed long ago; its side walls, for the greater part, were in ruins, and the clay floor was covered with earth and rubbish from above. A gang of trained Aeff workmen were ordered to remove the debris, that filled the room, when suddenly they noticed numerous clay tablets lying upon the floor. A few hours later the whole room had been carefully searched and cleaned. Seven hundred and thirty tablets were gathered and safely stored in the castle of our fortified camp.

GIVES UP FORTUNE FOR LOVE.

Illinois Man Forfeits an Estate by Marrying Girl of His Choice.

Gustav Jorns of Springfield, Ill., has proved his love for his sweetheart by forfeiting all interest in his father's estate. The bulk of the estate was left to him, but there was a provision in his will that should he marry Gertrude Gams he would forfeit his interest. It has just been learned that Jorns and Miss Gams were married May 10th at Evansville, Ind. The wedding was kept a secret until made public by young Jorns, who told his former guardian, Attorney John S. Schnepp. The Gams family knew of their daughter's wedding to Jorns, but they said nothing about it. Jorns and his bride returned home a few days ago. They are now living with Henry Gams, the bride's father, before his death had learned that his son and Miss Gams were betrothed, and he bitterly objected to their wedding. Just why he opposed the match is not known, but it was supposed that it was because his son was not of age.

THE CIRCUIT COURT

A BRIEF SESSION HELD BY JUDGE BURNETT YESTERDAY.

The Smith Brothers Dismissed Upon Motion of the District Attorney—Other Orders. (From Daily Statesman, June 6.) Judge George H. Burnett, of the state circuit court for Marion county, convened department No. 1 at 9 o'clock yesterday morning in adjourned session for the February term, and disposed of a number of the cases on the docket, while others were put in readiness for trial. The one case of any importance on the docket, which was disposed of, was that of the state vs. O. and W. Smith, indicted for assault with a dangerous weapon, committed upon their father last fall. Upon the motion of the district attorney these indictments were dismissed.

IN POULTRY YARDS.

The Langshans, Practical Fowls, Are Very Popular. (From Pacific Homestead.) The Langshan is the smallest and most active of the Asiatic class. It is a practical fowl in more senses than one, and its prolific laying and excellent qualities make it a profitable fowl for the farmer and market poultryman. It is one of the oldest breeds of poultry and has always been held in popular esteem. The shape of the Langshan is distinct from that of the Brahma or Cochon, and should not be confused with either of the last named breeds. The picture shows the accepted contour of the Langshan. Langshans have white flesh and dark legs, while the others are yellow skinned and yellow legged. The flesh of the Langshan is excellent, being fine grained, tender, and good flavored. As layers these birds rank among the best, averaging from twelve to thirteen dozen eggs a year, and as winter layers they are to be recommended. The chicks are hardy and mature early. Langshans are good sitters and mothers, being gentle of disposition; they are easily kept either in confinement or on free range. Being excellent foragers, they are ideal fowls for the farm, and will gather during the year a considerable proportion of their food. The Langshan is a stylish, medium sized bird, not overgrown or gawky in appearance, of active nature and lively disposition. Many confound the Black Langshan with the Black Cochon. This need not be, as the following comparison between the two varieties shows: The Black Cochon is square in shape, with heavy looking neck and legs, plenty of fluff and leg feathering, cushion rising from middle of back to tail; tail short, small, and almost concealed by cushion; neck, breast, cushion and tail all represented by convex lines. Langshan, head small for size of the body, comb medium sized, well up in front and arch shaped. Cochon head larger than that of the Langshan and not so arched over the eye; comb smaller, low in front, and almost straight on top of serrations. Langshan, back short and concave; that of the Cochon medium length, slightly convex, and large convex cushion. Langshan, fluff, moderate and close; that of the Cochon, extremely full and loose. Langshan, wings somewhat large and inclined downward quite prominent at shoulders; the Cochon wings smaller and almost hidden by the fluffy plumage of the cushion and fluff. Langshan, breast full, deep and carried well forward; Cochon, breast not so full and deep, but broader. Langshan, legs medium in length, small bone, long, tapering toes; color of shank bluish black, showing pink between scales, which is scarcely black; Cochon, legs shorter, stouter, larger bone, toes shorter and stouter, color of shanks black or yellowish black.

TURNER ON FIRE

AN APPEAL FOR HELP RECEIVED IN SALEM. At an Early Hour this Morning—Before Aid Could Be Sent, Flames Were Controlled.

(From Daily Statesman, June 7.) At 12:30 o'clock this (Thursday) morning, a report was received in this city from Turner, by telephone, to the effect that the town was burning, and help was urgently needed. Inquiry developed the fact that the butcher shop at Turner, owned by J. E. Detweiler, and occupied by J. McGilchrist, and the drug store of Dr. J. W. Ransom, were burning, and the big barn of J. E. Detweiler, the general merchandise store of J. Wittschen, Mr. Wittschen's residence, and Alex. Potter's residence were threatened. The fire, under the force of a heavy wind, being beyond control.

When the appeal for help was received by the authorities in this city, Recorder N. J. Judah, in the absence of Mayor C. P. Bishop, at once repaired to the city hall, and gave the city's permission to the fire department to go to Turner and assist in quenching the flames if a means of transportation could be secured, as it was impossible to run the engine team that distance. Efforts were at once made, through the Southern Pacific night operator to secure an engine and flat car, but before arrangements could be completed, John Wittschen, the Turner merchant, telephoned that the fire was under control, and assistance was not needed.

Meanwhile, Albany had heard of the fire, and an engine and flat car were in readiness to take on the Albany fire department to go to Turner's rescue, when word came of the success of the Turner people in quenching the blaze. The fire started in the rear of the meat market, probably in the smoke house, and destroyed the market, a frame building; the windmill and water tank adjoining; and Dr. J. W. Ransom's drug store. The population of the town, with a bucket brigade and wet blankets, prevented the spreading of the fire to the adjoining buildings only by herculean efforts. The loss is estimated at $1500. It is not known at this hour (2:30 a. m.) whether the burned property was insured. Had the fire spread a little further, the damage would have reached $12,000 to $15,000.

The Salem fire department deserves great credit for the promptness with which action was taken toward aiding Turner, and had the fire continued to spread, would have been on the way to the burning town in a short time after being notified. The same may be said of the Albany department.

(From Daily Statesman, June 7.) The State Board of Education held a meeting at the capitol yesterday, and considered matters in connection with the Blind school and Mute school. The board ordered the construction of a cement walk at the Blind school, from the sidewalk in front of the building to the main entrance. Bids for wood for the Blind school were opened and contracts awarded as follows:

FOR A PARDON.

Gov. T. T. Geer is in receipt of a petition for the pardon of Samuel Banister, and inmate of the Oregon penitentiary, who was convicted of the crime of burglary in Umatilla county, on January 30, 1899, and sentenced to two years' imprisonment. The petition is signed by many prominent people in Umatilla county, and is endorsed with recommendations for clemency by District Attorney H. J. Bean and Judge W. S. Lowell the sentencing judge, both of whom favor the granting of the pardon on account of the youth of the prisoner.

FIVE PATIENTS.

Alice M. Stewart, of Portland, and Joanna A. Byrd, of Marquam, Clackama county, aged 37 years, were received at the asylum last night for treatment; Elihu Clark, of Elgin, aged 53 years, and Stephen Miller, of Portland, aged 37, the latter very violent, were also received last evening. Sheriff Thos. Linville, of Clatsop county, brought up Mrs. Lillie Kulsten, a Finnish woman, yesterday morning. She is 34 years old.

PASSED AWAY.

Mrs. J. H. Washburn, of Brownsville, a sister of Mrs. J. B. Stump, of Salem, died at her home in the first named city on Monday. The remains were taken to Monmouth, where interment was had yesterday. Mrs. Washburn had a large circle of warm friends in this city, who will regret her untimely demise.

THE BICYCLE ORDINANCE.

Several amendments to the existing bicycle ordinance are being considered by Salem's city council. The amendments will be reported for final consideration at the next meeting of the council. It is probable wheelmen will be ruled off a number of walks to which they now have access, and some business men are known to favor the ruling of wheelmen off all walks during the summer months, probably from May 1st or June 1st until October 1st. A State street business man yesterday said that while the council was amending the bicycle ordinance he hoped to see it so modified that conditions might be equalized so that the ordinance would not operate unfairly towards any section of the city. While he favored excluding cyclists from the sidewalks during the summer months, he said he would not insist on such a general ordinance, but he thought the ordinance should operate alike on all of the principal streets leading to Commercial street. For instance, at the present time, wheelmen are barred from south side of State street; are denied access to State street over Church and High streets, a circumstance that the business man in question argued was an injustice to the business men located on State street. The members of the ordinance committee having charge of the proposed amendments, are Councilmen Riggs and Allen, both of whom are wheelmen. Councilman Gessner, chairman of the committee, is absent from the city.

CYCLIST VS. HORSE.—S. B. Catterlin, while riding a bicycle on Commercial street about 8 o'clock last evening was run into by J. J. Dalrymple who was driving a spirited animal attached to a light buggy. Mr. Catterlin was thrown from his wheel and the buggy passed over him, badly bruising his back, while the rear wheel of his wheel was demolished. The blame for the accident was not altogether the fault of either Mr. Catterlin or Mr. Dalrymple. Both were going in the same direction, the former riding his wheel, and in deviating slightly from the course that he was pursuing, he was struck by Mr. Dalrymple's buggy before the collision could be averted.

THE DATE FIXED.

Chremeketa Lodge No. 1, I. O. O. F., at last night's meeting, decided to hold the ceremony of laying the cornerstone for the new Odd Fellow's temple, on next Wednesday, at 2:30 p. m. A committee, consisting of Geo. H. Burnett, Tilmon Ford, J. W. Young, and A. N. Moore, was appointed to make arrangements for the interesting event.
