The expense the committee has been obliged to contract has been greater than was anticipated. The following is a list of the expenditures that have already been made: Eight tons of straw, 7000 feet of lumber, one Liberty pole, eight gasoline lamps for lighting purpose, 30 cords of wood, cut in 16-inch lengths, the providing of a supply of water for which the Water Company receives $50 and which necessitates the laying of 900 feet of piping.

During the progress of the encampment, the Capital City will entertain thousands of visitors. On next Sunday the Foresters of America will run an excursion to this city from Portland that is expected to bring 3000 visitors. In addition to the encampment, which constitutes the main attraction, there will be other entertainments provided. There will be bicycle races and a base-

NOT EXACTLY SICK BUT—

Neither are you well. The frequent headaches, the fatigue after slight exercise; the lack of appetite, want of energy, a slight but troublesome pain here or there, the loss of flesh and strength; the ease with which you take cold; all this indicates that your health is not as it should be. What is the best thing to do? All persons suffering as described above have a certain remedy in

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People

They are for pale people, for delicate people, for nervous people, for people who are thin and lacking in energy, spirits and appetite. When you take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People you are simply doing what thousands of your fellow beings the world over have done with the greatest success. Knowing this it is always unnecessary and often dangerous to experiment with something else that is recommended as "just as good."

MUST GRADE DOWN

CREAMERY MANAGERS EXPERIENCE DIFFICULTY WITH BUTTER.

Farmers Will Be Compelled to Use the Separators to Attain the Best Results in Dairying.

(From Daily Statesman, July 5.)
The creamery managers here in Salem and throughout the valley are beginning to realize that they are going to be obliged to grade down the cream that is furnished to them by the dairymen using pans and crocks. They find as the heated season advances that this cream will not make as high class butter as that from the separators. The Salem Creamery has already lost 400 or 500 pounds of butter from the use of this kind of cream—that is, lost it as a first class article is concerned.

Besides the fact that the cream raised in the old fashioned way, by the use of pans and crocks, can not be depended upon to make first-class butter at all seasons, there are other losses to the dairymen employing these methods. They lose about 20 per cent of the butter fat—and the skim milk they have left is not in as good condition for feeding to calves, hogs etc., as that left from the separator. It is realized that there will be a long fight before the creamery managers can induce the use of separators on the farms. The question of hauling will become an important one too, in the fall and winter seasons when the roads are bad. One of the Salem creamery managers says, the Willamette valley is an ideal dairying country, as good as any in the world, but in order to turn out a product, whether of butter or cheese, to compete in the markets with all other sections, it will be necessary for the farmers here to adopt modern and improved methods of feeding their cows and caring for the milk and cream.

BOTH ARE BRIDES OF TURKISH BEYS.

American Widow Got a $25,000 Guarantee Against Future Fickleness, and a German Woman Dentist Got a Promise of Monogamy.

Two noted Turks—and both of them devout Mohammedans—have taken Christian brides. One bride was an American widow who went with her father, American Vice Consul Tewey, to Constantinople, the other is a German dentist, who went to the same city to practice on Turkish teeth. Both women, of course, became Mohammedans when they married, as it meant too much to the men to leave the country, and they could not retain their positions there with Christians for wives. But the men made some concessions, also. One of them settled $25,000 upon his bride as a guarantee against his future fickleness; the other made a solemn vow, before God and man, that he would never take an additional wife—which is quite a vow for a Turkish gentleman to make. The story of these two remarkable weddings is thus told by a Constantinopolitan correspondent:

"The only daughter of a prominent American (the American Vice Consul here), a pleasing young widow, fell violently in love with a gallant and rich young Egyptian Bey. The betrothal took place and an elegant trousseau was ordered at one of the first houses in Pera—a matter of interest to the young Bey took the Herald of fact father, being well aware of the propensity the Mohammedans possess for returning their wives with thanks after they have had enough of them, refused to sanction the union unless the Bey would settle a sum of $25,000 on his daughter (in case of accident). The Bey did not seem inclined to do this, but the father was firm."

"The young couple, however, took the law into their own hands and eloped. Mr. Tewey forthwith went to the palace and had a petition drawn up demanding of the Sultan his rights, full justification. The answer of his majesty was most gracious. An irade was given that the bride was to go home immediately and be resound to her parents. The Bey was to marry her once, and on penalty of losing his lucrative post, settle the desired sum on his bride.

"All commands were executed within a few days from the irade, and the wedding took place at the bride's house. The ceremony was strictly Turkish, and the bride looked pretty in her magnificent white silk wedding gown of which the veil had been sent specially by an Egyptian Princess. The newly married couple spent their honeymoon in Athens, and soon the former bright American will be presented to the Khedive."

"Another marriage almost as startling was between Miss Doctor Hornik and Abdul Rozzak Bey, Master of Ceremonies to his majesty at Yildiz. His excellency is a well-known character in Turkish and European society, and it is said, much feared by the Sultan, owing to his royal Kurdish descent. Probably, for this reason, he had the courage to choose a European wife, although for fear of an imperial veto from the palace, everything was kept a close secret till after the wedding. The ceremony was curious in its strict Turkish rites. The invited guests were separated to form Harzem and Selamluk, and while the ceremony took place, Miss Hornik's women friends were allowed only to stand behind the door and listen without being seen.

"The Imam (or priest), and witnesses formed a circle, with the bride to his right and bridegroom to his left. Miss Hornik looking slightly nervous in her simple white wedding dress and Turkish veil. After the Imam had pronounced his benediction the bridegroom stood up and swore before God and man that he would never take an additional wife. Then the contract was drawn up and signed by all the guests. After the wedding breakfast, to which only a select few were invited, the happy couple left for Philadelphia, the bride radiant in her smart traveling costume of blue satin cloth with white silk applique work, white and blue hat to match and gray feather bonnet.

"The new Miss, Abdul Rozzak Bey will carry on her profession as dentist, her husband having given way to a whim of hers, but allowing her to attend only to women and children."

GUESTS OF DALLAS

SALEM MILITIA COMPANY ATTENDED THE CELEBRATION

Of the National Holiday in Polk County's Capital—Sergeant Oak Sutton the Best Drilled Man.

(From Daily Statesman, July 5.)
The city of Dallas yesterday had one of the grandest celebrations of the National holiday ever enjoyed by the citizens of Polk County, in spite of the showers that threatened to mar the pleasures of the occasion. The usual program of band music—by the Dallas Zouave band and a brass band from one of the neighboring towns—reading of the Declaration of Independence, an oration, fire works, a parade, etc., filled in the day, and big and little, old and young, enjoyed the pleasures of the day.

One of the features of the celebration was the presence of Company F, Fourth regiment, O. N. G., of this city, under command of Captain Walter Lyon. The boys in blue arrived in Dallas on Tuesday evening, expecting to camp, and look after their own commissary. The Dallas people, however, would not permit this, but treated the militiamen as honored guests, providing all with board at an hotel, and so pleasant was the stay made for the company, that all speak of it in the highest terms of praise, bringing with them a high regard for the hospitable people of the metropolis of Polk county.

During the day, and following the parade, a competitive drill of the members of the Salem company took place, two prizes $3 and $2—being offered by the celebration for the best drilled men, two veterans of the Second Oregon volunteers acting as judges. Of the thirty-eight members of the company present, all went down on errors in the manual of arms except Sergeant Oak Sutton, who won first prize after a 45 minute trial, and Private Judson, second. The boys came home last night, well pleased with their experience.

Hubbard, one of Marion county's most enterprising cities, held a celebration, and a most enjoyable time was had. The Silverton and Aurora bands were on hand and discoursed sweet music. During the forenoon the usual Patriotic exercises were had; Miss Strickland, a niece of Gov. T. G. Teer, read the Declaration of Independence, and Hon. Frank Davey, of this city, delivered the oration of the day. During the afternoon a musical and literary program was rendered and the program of sports included a trapeze performance by the Duke Bros., of Portland, and an interesting game of baseball. A feature of the day was a baby show, but at last accounts the judges had failed to make a decision on the beauty of the little ones.

At Bed Time

I take a pleasant herb drink, the next morning I feel bright and my complexion is better. My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a stomach laxative. It is made from herbs and is prepared as easily as tea. It is called Lane's Medicine. All druggists sell it at 25c. and 50c. Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day. If you cannot get it, send for a free sample. Address, Orator F. Woodward, Le Roy, N. Y.

TO KILL RODENTS.

R. E. Ryan received yesterday from N. A. Knapp, of Rochester, Ohio, two barrels, already had one. On Friday the little animal killed thirteen gray diggers and on one hunt for rats killed nineteen. These little enemies of the rodents are valuable, and Mr. Ryan proposes to keep his place free of gray diggers and rats.

HAS RESIGNED.

Prof. W. J. Crawford, recently of Lincoln (South Salem) public school has resigned the principalship offered him at Jefferson to accept another at $80 per month.

The department of political economy of Harvard university will have a new member next year in Professor Thomas Nixon Carver, who for the last six years has been professor of political economy at Oberlin college. He took his first degree in California, for two years a graduate student at Johns Hopkins, then fellow at Cornell university, where he took his Ph. D. in 1894. In the same year he went to Oberlin as associate professor. He comes to Harvard as an assistant professor.

HUNTING FOR A THIEF

SLEEK SWINDLER OPERATING AMONG THE OREGON NEWSPAPERS.

Defrauding Publishers and their Patrons—A Grant's Pass Paper Wants Him.

(From Daily Statesman, July 5.)
The Statesman is in receipt of a circular letter, sent out by F. W. Chausse, editor of the Oregon Observer, of Grants Pass, asking for information as to the whereabouts of a sleek swindler, who is travelling through the state defrauding newspapers and their patrons. The Grants Pass editor desires to apprehend and punish the wily thief. The letter follows:

"I want to get trace of a man who gave his name here as Clarence E. Johnson, whose age is about 35 years, and who claims to hail from Fargo, N. D. He is working the newspapers of our state and should be severely dealt with. He came here on May 12th and wanted to solicit orders for the Observer showing various recommendations on the strength of which I employed him. His method did not come to my notice until after he left about 22d of May. I want him for forgery and also embezzlement. I would describe him as about 35 years old, brownish mustache, dark complexion, had a great gift of talk and considerably on the 'smarty' order, about five feet eight inches in height. He claimed his father to be mayor of Fargo, N. D., and said he had an uncle in the United States senate from whom he showed me a letter of recommendation. He left here with another man, a rather hard looking character, of about 35 or 40 years of age. If you know of such a man, please telegraph me so I can take proper steps to have him arrested and brought back here for trial.

"If you know anything of his whereabouts please write me so I can investigate."

WANAMAKER'S HANDSHAKE.

John Wanamaker's recent act in ordering out of his office two local politicians who tried to buldoze him led the former governor of one of the western states to tell a story in the Saturday Evening Post.

"I almost believe," he said, "that Mr. Wanamaker could have got them out as well by giving each of them one of his official handshakes. When the postmaster general I was in congress and went to see him a great many times, in fact he had more calls than any other member of the cabinet of the Harrison administration. The way he received everybody was most satisfactory, but the thing that delighted me was the beautiful manner in which he got rid of a visitor.

"His farewell handshake was courteous and geniality itself, but at the same time it was a gentle push toward the door. It was done in such a manner that nobody could possibly take exception to it. As time afterward I became governor of my state. I had seen the thing worked so well in the postmaster general's office that I thought I would try it. Of course, you know when the legislature meets the governor of the state has many people to see. I practiced a little on my wife and thought I had got the hang of the performance, although she expressed her doubts. The day when I tried the experiment I began on an old political supporter, grasping his hand firmly, and with my best smile I gave him the gentle push, but the results were not altogether what I had hoped.

He gazed at me steadily for a moment and then said: 'It's all right, governor. If you want me to go, but I don't want to be thrown out.'
"Come back here," I exclaimed, and grabbed his hand in the old way and gave him a pull toward me. Then, in order to remove any other doubts he may have had I made him promise to take dinner that day at the executive mansion. It was the first and last time I tried the Wanamaker handshake. He can do it, but I don't believe there is anybody else in the world who has the subtle genius necessary to perform it successfully."
