Lee's Lice Killer

The use of this preparation has become so universal, and results are so satisfactory, that most poultry-rasiers would not know how to keep house without it. It is no longer necessary to dip or dust poultry to kill the lice. A can of Lee's Lice Killer, a paint-brush, and a few minutes' work in applying it to the roosts, means all the expense and labor now necessary to keep the fowls free from both mites and body-lice. A can of it should be in every poultry-house. It kills and prevents mites and lice, and keeps the air in the poultry-house pure and sweet, killing disease germs and preventing the other enemies of the poultrymen—rump and cholera.

FIRST THINGS IN SPOKANE.

Spokane-Review To Rev. S. G. Havermale belongs the honor of having preached the first sermon ever delivered to a white congregation by the falls of the Spokane river. That was on November 16, 1875. Religious exercises, though, had been held here nearly 40 years before that date.

The falls of the Spokane river were a favorite Indian rendezvous, and this was one of the regular places for holding services on the circuit of the earlier missionaries, both Protestant and Catholic. Rev. S. G. Havermale, and possibly Whitman, preached here to the Indians in the latter '30s, and in 1873 Rev. Spaulding, Whitman's associate, made two trips with Nez Perce helpers to the Spokane valley, preaching here and at other gathering places. This was in response to a petition from the Spokane Indians, who had sent a delegation to Rev. Spaulding at Lapwai, asking him to come among them and establish churches and schools.

In 1874, Rev. H. T. Cowley came here as a missionary, and found J. N. Glover and C. E. Neenan and their families the sole population of the future city.

The first school district was organized in the autumn of 1874, and no pent-up Utena contradicted its powers. Spangie was the southern limit, Colville the northern, the Idaho line stopped it on the east, and the Columbia river on the west. The first school was held at Mr. Cowley's house, and had four pupils. From that small beginning a vast and successful educational system has evolved, with many thousands of pupils, hundreds of school houses, and property running into the millions.

The county seat was at Coville, and Mr. Cowley journeyed thither on horseback in December, on the three-day errand of hearing the returns from the first election, performing the wedding ceremony for Captain Evan Miles, post commander, and the eldest daughter of Hon. J. Stitzel, and procuring for himself a teacher's certificate.

In 1879, Francis H. Cook established

A PRISONER FREED

JOHN LAVERY'S SENTENCE COMMUTED BY THE GOVERNOR.

Was Convicted of Assault With a Dangerous Weapon and Served Three-fourths of His Term.

(From Daily Statesman, Aug. 2.) The sentence of John Lavery, a prisoner in the Oregon penitentiary, was yesterday commuted by Gov. T. T. Geer, and the man was released and sent to his home in Burns, Harney county.

John Lavery was convicted in Harney county in April, 1899, of the crime of assault with a deadly weapon, and was sent to the penitentiary for two years. A petition signed by 450 of the best citizens of Harney county among them being ten of the trial jurors, and the prosecuting witness, Lou C. De Congress, and endorsed by the district attorney, was received several days ago by the Governor, and he was urged to exercise clemency in the case.

The reason why clemency should be exercised, as given by the petitioners, was that no harm resulted from the alleged crime, and that the prisoner's mother, aged 88 years, who is now lying dangerously ill with a broken limb, is grieving for her son and anxious to see him once more.

FOUR CHINESE RELIGIONS. Missionaries Have to Fight Confucianism, Buddhism and Mohammedism.

(Prof. John Fryer in Ainslee's.) "Another serious difficulty the missionary in China has to contend with is the complicated form of the religion of the Chinese. Instead of one system of doctrines and teachings, there are three great and separate religions, dwelling side by side and with little if any friction or want of harmony. Although radically different in their origin, characteristics and general aims, each seems to be a complete system in itself. A Christian must select and follow as much of all three as he pleases, without being inconsistent. The missionary has therefore to study all three religions in their history, doctrines and practical influence upon the heart and everyday life of the people before he can hope to meet them on their own ground and answer their objections to Christianity. He has three separate citadels to attack instead of one.

"The writings of Confucius are the source whence the officials and literati derive their theories of government and social duties. The ethics of Confucius pervade and influence every phase of Chinese life. The doctrines taught by their 'most holy sage' are cited as the inflexible criterion of uprightness and integrity in public and private life, and were disseminated several centuries before the coming of Christ. They were not original with Confucius, but were the teachings of the ancient kings and sages, who flourished in the far-off Golden Age of China, when the evils of bad government were unknown, and when the Chinese seem to have recognized and worshipped the true God. Confucius confessed to be only a reformer, a transmitter, and not the author of a new religion. But it is almost impossible to estimate the enormous hold this system with its time-honored classics now has upon the educated and thinking men of China. Its teachings are of a high moral order, yet they are as much disregarded as a new religion. The Chinese regard as a vulgar superstition and demagoguery. The evil influences of modern Taoism upon Chinese society are tremendous, and it is a greater foe to the Christian missionary than Confucianism.

"These two great religions, Confucianism and Taoism, did not satisfy the longings of the soul of the Chinese man, now did they afford comfort or solace in the many troubles and sorrows of life. To supply this want Buddhism came from India some time before the birth of Christ, but it was not till shortly after that event that a new religion, and as a result sent wonderful dream, and as a result sent Buddhist teachers. After experiencing many vicissitudes, Buddhism became firmly established. The worship of Amida Buddha with the Goddess of Mercy became prevalent, while temples and monasteries, priests, and nuns were soon to be found everywhere. The Western Paradise, the Buddhist Hells, the transmigration of souls, the vegetarian diet, the doctrines of Karma and Nirvana, and the worship of the goddess Kwan-yin, who has power to save and to bestow sons upon her votaries, are all so firmly engrained upon the minds of the Chinese that it seems impossible that they should be modified, much less effaced by the teachings of Christianity. Yet the missionary is expected to go forward boldly to attack this giant also, in the name of the Lord, and armed only with his sling and his stone.

"As if all these difficulties were not sufficient, Buddhism had hardly settled down harmoniously with its two sister religions when Mohammedanism entered the empire, pushing its way into imperial notice with great effect, and contesting with the corrupt religious practices that had grown up in the other three divisions. It came to stay in spite of numberless persecutions and rebellions in which millions of Mohammedans have been put to death. Most of the Moslem Chinese now occupy a very strong position in the whole of North-west China. Others are scattered over the face of the empire, many of them being rich and enjoying official positions. Although opposed to the main features of Christianity, the Mohammedan faith is not entirely without its advantages to the work of the Christian missionary. The denunciation of all idolatry, the worship of the true God, the observance of the Mohammedan Sabbath, and the teaching of certain theological terms are all aids to Christian preaching. On the whole, however, most missionaries who have come in contact with Mohammedans, would much rather work in places where they are not to be found."

BOERS THEIR OWN GUNNERS.

Don't Have European Experts—Krugger's Look Into the Future.

(Allen Sangree in Ainslee's.) "I wish to correct the impression that generally prevails as to the presence here of foreign experts. No greater mistake is current than this. The Transvaal artillery, which is supposed to be managed by Russian and German gunners, is really in the hands of young Boers, and the engineering feats that have been accomplished must be credited to the Transvaal farmer. He it is who builds pontoons out of railroad ties, hauls a twelve-ton cannon up a mountain and executes damage with artillery. To belong to the latter one must be a Boer, and nearly every gun today in the Boer forces is sighted by a lad between seventeen and twenty-one years old. The foreign attaches will all testify to this, and, furthermore, bear me out in saying that better marksmanship with big guns is not to be seen than behind the Boer parapets.

"A bidding good-by to Mr. Krugger I asked him if he and his people would accept an asylum in America, to which he replied that it was impossible. "We are a peculiar people, he said, 'and if God wills that we lose our independence that it is better we should all pass away. Wherever a Boer would live he must ever brood over his thoughts. The women will never forget that their husbands died at the English hands; the children will grow up to hate the conqueror, and wherever is such bitterness there can be no happiness here. No, it is better that we die, for then each burgher can say to himself, 'I have fought a better battle, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness.'"
