PETTYJOHN.—At the family home, No. 424 Cottage street, Salem, Oregon, Tuesday, October 9, 1900, at 5 p. m., Lewis Pettyjohn, aged 79 years, 10 months and 16 days. Deceased was a pioneer of 1847, and was widely known throughout Oregon. He was a native of Tennessee, and early removed to Missouri. There, on March 21, 1844, he was married to Sarah A. Rains, the wife who survives him now after over a half century of journey through life. In 1847 the family came to Oregon by ox team, settling south of Salem on a donation land claim, where they lived until a year ago, when they moved to Salem, on account of Mr. Pettyjohn's failing health. Eight children were born to the family, five of whom survive.

A GARDEN IN TUSCANY.

"The white magnolia opens with the day
To look upon a wonder-world of bloom,
As if the rainbow met its earthly doom.
Festies its namesake iris, and must lay
Imprisoned bars of flame and blossom gay.
Half hid beneath the olive's mournful gloom.
The flex branches weave a shadow loom
Across the marbles, where the fountain's spray
Drips slow like cool and unsung melodies;
And through the grass the little lizards glide,
Dazed with the drowsy fragrance of the trees;
And love and life lie sleeping side by side—
For where still Eros lures the honey-bees,
A dark young lad dreams through the hot noontide."

CHEERS AND TIGERS.

Speaking of three "cheers" I am re-mindful of an incident in a Catholic church in Chicago some years ago. Three Protestant ladies had called at the church during a meeting that was being held in furtherance of some charitable purpose in which they were interested, and when they came down the aisle, all the pews being occupied, the priest in charge said to an attendant, "Three chairs for the Protestant ladies." The attendant misunderstood, and called out, "Three cheers for the Protestant ladies." The cheers were given with a will, and it was all the holy father could do to stop the exuberant reception before the attendant could call for a "tiger." THE HOP CROP.

Washington, Oct. 10.—The monthly report issued today by the Department of Agriculture, shows that the estimated average yield of hops in pounds, per acre, is 1300 in Washington, 110 in Oregon, 1200 in California, and 335 in New York.
In the two first mentioned the yield is slightly below, and in the two last mentioned slightly above the average of a series of years.

PECULIAR AND SUDDEN DEATH

Grandma Darrah, at Liberty,
Found Dead in Her Chair.

WITH HER CLOTHING ON FIRE

Believed to Have Suffered a Stroke of Apoplexy, and in the Struggles
Her Raiment Took Fire.

(From Daily Statesman, Oct. 11.)
At the family home on the J. H. Daniel farm, about five miles south of Salem, occurred the death of Mrs. Darrah, the mother of James H. Darrah, in a very sad and awful manner at 4:30 p. m. yesterday.

Mrs. Darrah had lived with her son for the past twenty-five years and has been blind and practically helpless for a number of years past, requiring the attention of a child. Yesterday afternoon her daughter-in-law had gone to a neighbor's to buy some butter, and her son, having some business at the postoffice at Liberty, about half a mile distant, moved the old lady back from the open fire place and requested her to sit there until his return. Her reply was, "Yes, dear, I will." These were probably the last words spoken by the deceased, for when her son again beheld her it was only to find her enveloped in flames her clothing being on fire, her head was resting on her bosom and life was extinct.

When returning from the store Mr. Darrah stopped for a few minutes at the gate about 150 feet from the house, to talk with Mr. Daniel, who was shearing a lamb. While there they noticed a large volume of smoke issuing from the house, and Mr. Darrah made the remark that something must be wrong, as he had only left a small fire in the grate. Rushing to the house he found that his mother had moved her chair from the position in which he had left her close up to the open grate, and that her clothing was all ablaze, and apparently life was extinct. Running to her aid he tore the clothing from off her body, and carried her out into the open air. She showed no signs of life, and as she was sitting in an upright position on her chair when found, it was the opinion of some present that she had possibly had a stroke of apoplexy, which was probably the direct cause of her death, and that the burning had occurred as the result of some struggle, while the deceased was in the chair's throes, that had given her garments to the flames.

The chest and face of the deceased were badly burned and charred, making her almost unrecognizable. She was not heard to utter a cry, although Mr. Daniel was working within about 150 feet of the house all the time, and his son passed the house three times during the absence of Mr. Darrah, the last time just passing and coming to where Mr. Darrah and Mr. Daniel were talking, as the smoke was discovered. This fact lends plausibility to the theory that death occurred before the fire originated.

The house was ablaze near where the deceased sat, and Mr. Daniel recognizing the fact that the entire possessions of the Darrah family were in the house, made heroic efforts to quench the flames, which he did after considerable hard work.

Coroner D. F. Lane was notified of the occurrence and immediately repaired to the scene of the accident, but upon investigation found nothing that would warrant holding an inquest.

Mrs. Darrah was born in Ireland in 1823, but came to America when a young woman and settled in Pennsylvania. For the past 25 years she has resided with her son, who came to Oregon in 1890, and lived near Turner until about one year ago. He moved onto the Daniel farm about a month ago.

At a late hour last night funeral arrangements had not been made, but burial will probably be had tomorrow. Announcements for the final obsequies will be made later.

STEALING LIVE STOCK.—Recently a considerable amount of stock has been missing from pastures surrounding Salem, and no account of it has ever been received by their owners. Homer Cleveland, a farmer living south of Salem, on Sunday last missed a fine three-year-old cow from his pasture, which he had been selling each Sunday. A search could not locate the animal, and it appeared that the fence had been taken down next, an adjoining pasture and the animal taken through this field. Further search revealed nothing and the supposition is that she was fed through the gate of the adjoining pasture. Some time between the 28th of September and the 3d of October, J. H. Daniel lost twenty-one head of sheep from the woods pasture of Mrs. Ellen Savage, about three miles east of Salem. As with the cow, these sheep were driven through into an adjoining field, where all traces of them were lost. However, Mr. Daniel is upon a clue which he thinks may lead to the arrest of certain parties. And if any tangible evidence can be adduced he will push the guilty parties to the extremity of the law. There are only a few of the more recent occurrences of the kind, and stock owners are becoming tired of such depredations upon their flocks and herds.

MORE HOPS SOLD.—James Finney, who resides near Brooks and is a large hop-grower of that section, yesterday sold 100 bales of hops for 14½ cents, to J. Carmichael of this city. Charles Becke, Jr., of Aurora, also sold his crop, taken from a ten acre yard, to Henry Weinhard, the Portland brewer, for 14 cents.

TO THE ASYLUM.—John C. Sullivan was yesterday brought to the insane asylum from Harney county. He is a resident of Diamond valley, a native of New Hampshire, aged 34 years, and is subject to delusions and melancholia. G. W. Hayes and C. H. Leonard brought the man to the asylum.

IS IMPROVING.—Clare O'Flynn, of South Salem, who was operated upon at the Salem Hospital Tuesday afternoon for appendicitis was reported as getting along nicely last night and his recovery is regarded as only a question of time. Mr. O'Flynn has been employed by the Salem Light & Traction Company as motorman for some time past.

FOR SUPPLIES.—Secretary of State F. I. Dumble was yesterday busily engaged in opening and examining bids for stationery and supplies for use of the Legislature. Four bids were in and it will take a day or two before they have been examined and compared, sufficiently to permit of awards being made.

DIED IN SEATTLE.—Mr. and Mrs. F. Levy received the sad intelligence, last evening, that their son-in-law, L. S. Mayer, of Seattle, died at his home at 1:45 p. m. yesterday. No particulars were received, but it was known that Mr. Mayer had been ill for some time, though no serious results were expected.

IS IN TROUBLE.—Will Hendron, well-known in this city, is under arrest in McMinnville, on a charge of stealing $1 from the pockets of his housemate. It is reported he has acknowledged taking the money.

BRYAN IN MICHIGAN.

Many Speeches, but His Crowds Had Little Enthusiasm.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 10.—The weather for the first day of Bryan's tour of the state of Michigan was all that could be asked. He made sixteen addresses from the first to the last, and all but one of the meetings were held in the open air. The train was at no time more than 10 minutes behind time, and all of the speaking platforms were erected so near the railroad stations, that in no instance was it necessary for Bryan to enter a carriage. The country traversed was varied in character, including the famous Michigan peach belt, the scarcely less famous furniture manufacturing districts. The crowds were all complimentary in size as well as in attention given, but neither so large or so enthusiastic as Mr. Bryan's meetings in Indiana.

IDEA FOR A VL—

LAGE REFORMER.

The person who would bring about social reform is apt to be a stranger in the village which he would improve, so unless he puts himself in the background and uses great tact in indirectly bringing about the desired changes he will more than likely involve himself in trouble. Since there are few villages indeed that stand in no need of external improvement, I doubt if the beginning that anything better than a village improvement society could be devised to bring together the men and women of different views, political and religious; for it is along these lines that the society of most villages ranges itself. So after the call has been issued for the proposed society a good proportion of the one thousand inhabitants, more or less, will begin to wonder what there is to do in the nature of improving the village, and by the time the meeting is held twenty men and women will have very definite ideas on the subject. Before the meeting the reformer must have held informal consultations with some of the more prominent men and women in the village.—Helen Leah Reed in the October Woman's Home Companion.

SHOT WHILE HUNTING.

Albany, Oct. 10.—William Brock was accidentally shot Monday near his home at Sebo. He was in company with Peter McDonald, and they started hunting. When a few miles from Sebo they placed their guns beside a buggy, and somehow one of them went off and shot Mr. Brock in the left shoulder, cutting the collar bone in two, shattering the shoulder blade and the contents of the lung going into the body. Dr. Hill, of Albany, was called immediately and attended the wounded man, but there is not much hope of his recovery.

James Finney, a prominent citizen of Brooks, spent yesterday in Salem.

THE STATE'S FARM LANDS

Orders Issued to the Land Agent to File Reports.

MONTHLY STATEMENT IS REQUIRED

Showing the Description and Value of Land, to Whom Rented and the Rent Payments.

The State Land Board at its regular meeting made an order in the matter of handling the State's farm properties and the same was yesterday entered of record.

"In the matter of renting lands required by the State, under foreclosure or conveyance to the State by deed, collecting rents and keeping a record and account thereof.

"This matter coming up for consideration by the Board at this time, and it appearing that, under the provisions of Section 1 of an act to amend Section 3597, H.H.'s Code, the State Land Agent shall, under the supervision of the Board, supervise the leasing of lands acquired by the State, by reason of foreclosure or mortgage or conveyance by deed, and the collection of rents accruing therefrom, and it being necessary that a permanent and complete record of all lands rented and rents collected, should be kept by the Board:

"It is therefore ordered, that the State Land Agent be requested to file with the clerk of this Board, monthly, hereafter, a report of each farm, or tract of land rented for the season of 1900, showing the location and description of the premises, to whom rented, terms of lease, date rent is payable, and remarks; also the lease, if any is made. He is also requested to file a monthly report of all rents collected hereafter, showing from whom collected, location of premises and amount collected; if from sale of crops, the quantity and amount thereof. Also, that he file with the Clerk a report, showing in detail all places rented for the years 1899 and 1900, the county in which located, description of premises, to whom rented, terms of lease, amounts collected and amounts unpaid, if any.

"It is further ordered, that the Clerk shall prepare and keep a record to be known as the 'Leased Land Record,' in which shall be entered the reports of the State Land Agent, each farm or tract to be entered separately, showing the location and description of the premises leased, to whom rented, terms of lease, date rent is payable, and remarks. The Clerk shall also present, at each meeting of the Board, a brief report of all premises reported rented by the State Land Agent. The Clerk shall charge each place with the annual rent, and credit rents collected and reported to him.

"It is further ordered, that the Clerk shall, from time to time, furnish the State Land Agent with a list of rents that are in default, as shown by the 'Leased Land Record.' Whenever a place is sold, all rents due shall be collected and the account closed."

HOW TOM THUMB

GOT HIS TITLE.

The Name Was Given by Barnum and the "General" by Order of Queen Victoria.

The Countess Mager, formerly Mrs. Tom Thumb, in a paper in the October Woman's Home Companion entitled "The Recollections of a Midget," gives the following account of how the famous dwarf came by his name:

"In speaking of Mr. Stratton I have used the name General Tom Thumb, for by that name the public best knew him. Perhaps a statement of how he received his title will be of interest—a story which even Mr. Barnum has neglected to make known, but which Mr. Stratton himself told me. When Mr. Barnum first made his acquaintance and persuaded his parents to allow their child to travel it was thought a good scheme to introduce him to the public as 'Tom Thumb.' So as Tom Thumb he was heralded by his skill which made Barnum so famous, and by that name he was introduced to Queen Victoria and many of the royal and titled frequenters of St. James.

"On his first visit he had amused the Queen by asking particularly after the Prince of Wales, and then he was the second time summoned to appear at the palace he was presented both to the Prince of Wales and to the Princess Royal, who afterward became Empress of Germany. As he stood beside the children his smallness was more noticeable. The Duke of Wellington was present, and noticed this fact, evidently with much interest, as he said to some one standing near, 'Their Royal Highnesses are head and shoulders taller than Tom Thumb.' This remark, the General told me, was overheard by the Queen, and turning to the Duke she said, 'General Tom Thumb.' Bowing low to Her Majesty the Duke gave me the military salute, repeating the title, 'General Tom Thumb.' Everybody bowed, and although I did not fully comprehend that Her Majesty's simple say-so could make it unchangeable, I found that ever after that I was always addressed as 'General.'

"Mr. Stratton also said that he knew enough of the war history of the Duke of Wellington to be greatly interested in him, and to feel that an introduction to this 'great fighter,' as he called him, was worth more than a chat with this royal boy and girl."

J. S. Riehle, of Scotts Mills, was a Salem visitor yesterday.
