COST OF EXPORTING AMERICAN COAL.

It has been calculated by a careful compilation of figures that the cost of operating a 7,000-ton steamer to such an accessible port as Gibraltar, including the length of the voyage and the cost of unloading, is 15 days, is as follows: Insurance $875; interest on cost, $750; depreciation, $625; crew, $350; provisions, $168; port charges, $181; pilorage, $330; fuel, $2,025 (this allows full selling price for company's coal used for steam); with $100 for incidentals, we have a total of $5,637, making a cost of but 80.4 cents per ton for the actual transportation of the coal. Upon this basis, having regard to the present price of Welsh coal and of American coal, the American product could be put in foreign markets at rates that would make competition simply impossible. Coal could be placed at Cardiff, the greatest coal-shipping port in the world, for $2 less than the present wholesale selling price at that place.—F. E. Savard, in The Engineering Magazine for October.

MANY HOPS WERE SOLD

Growers Crowded the City Yesterday to Interview Dealers.

A LEADING BUYER'S WARNING

Farmers Should Not Gild the Market, but Wait a Little—Higher Prices Certain—15 1/4 Cents Paid.

(From Daily Statesman, Oct. 14.)

Salem was yesterday one of the busiest places in the valley, and the hop dealers in the city were the busiest of all the business men, grovers having come to the city by the score to dispose of their hops. All the dealers were crowded for time, and the work of examining samples submitted took up much of their time. One of the leading dealers when asked as to the condition of the market, said: "We are right in the midst of it. Nearly all the growers are crowding in to sell their crops. I would advise them to stay at home and hold their hops for a little while, as the effect of the many sales at this time may be disastrous to them on account of the market becoming glutted. The market holds up well, but if the farmers would hold on to their hops, an advance is certain, as the shortage in the world's crop and the fact that the old stocks are unusually low, are certain to bring many orders, with the result that all will get good prices for their hops."

Among the hop sales made in this city, yesterday, were the following, reported to this office:

P. H. Dulcote, of Fairfield, 100 bales at 14 1/2 cents.

J. R. Coleman, four miles south of Salem, 200 bales at 14 1/2 cents.

A. Imah, Fairfield, 100 bales at 14 1/2 cents.

A. B. Gibson, who lives near the Wallace farm in Polk county, 132 bales, sold to J. Carmichael for 15 cents.

Mr. Dick, who resides near Silverton, 200 bales, sold to J. Carmichael for 15 1/2 cents.

The Dallas Observer, of last Friday, has the following interesting hop note: "The hop market opens strong, and good prices are being realized by the growers. The hops in the Dallas district are of exceptional quality, and are commanding top prices this year. The following sales were reported the first of the week: S. Anderson, 70 bales at 14 1/2 cents; John Munson, 150 bales at 15 cents; H. W. Clifford, 150 bales at 14 1/2 cents; Dr. W. J. Farley, 100 bales at 14 1/2 cents; Dr. Victor Park, 83 bales at 14 1/2 cents; Samuel Orr, 200 bales at 14 1/2 cents."

At His Home on Howell Prairie—Intended to Take a Dose of Medicine—The Wrong Bottle.

(From Daily Statesman, Oct. 14.)

Richard Ramsden, a farmer residing about a mile and a half south of Howell, in this county, took a tablespoonful of carbolic acid, about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, by mistake. He has been sick for some time past and after each meal was accustomed to take some medicine, which had been prescribed for him by a physician. He took down a bottle containing the poisonous liquid, and going to the pump outside the house, swallowed a quantity of it, and turning immediately he exclaimed: "I have taken the wrong medicine."

He at once fell unconscious, in which

AN AWFUL MISTAKE

The Ideal is Preserved the Best of Its Variety—Was Originated and Canned in Salem.

(From Daily Statesman, Oct. 14.)

Several members of the Chamber of Commerce, newspaper men and fruit growers, were called together at the parlors of the Hotel Willamette for the purpose of sampling canned strawberries and determining the relative quality of that class of fruit as raised in different localities and put up for the demands of commerce. Five brands of berries were on the table, as follows: Some of those put up at the Salem cannery some years ago; a can of second quality Wilson berries put up at the Allen cannery this year; a can of first quality same berries; a can of Hood River berries put up at Hood River, and a can of Oregon Ideal berries, put up this year at the Allen cannery in the same kind of syrup as used with the Wilsons.

The theory has been that the Hood River berry was superior in every way to any that could be raised in the Willamette valley, but the test yesterday showed that such a theory is not true. The berries put up a few years ago at the Salem cannery had deteriorated somewhat, largely, it appeared, on account of poor syrup used, and aside from that lot, they were all superior in taste, flavor and solidity to the Hood River article. In color it is darker and richer looking than the Wilsons, but in this particular it is again thrown entirely in the shade by the Oregon Ideal, which has that quality to perfection, as well as fine flavor, beautiful shape and solidity.

The Hood River berry is grown by irrigation, and is consequently more watery than those grown by nature's own processes, which accounts for its inferiority in the qualities named. The Ideal is a round, shapely berry, is frost proof, because its blossom stems are protected by the leaves, is a profuse bearer and grows well in the soil around Salem. The object of yesterday's test was to show to business men of Salem that a high grade strawberry, which would command the highest price in the market for table use, can be raised in this immediate vicinity, and that their cultivation and the industry of canning them should be fostered and encouraged.

The Ideal strawberry was originated and has been cultivated extensively by Hon. E. Hofer, of this city, and the result of the comparison and tests yesterday were highly pleasing and eminently satisfactory to him.

TO COLVILLE.—Great interest is being taken in the opening of the Colville Indian Reservation, which the United States Government has announced is to take place shortly. The country is said to be of extreme fertility, and a rush similar to that which took place when Oklahoma was thrown open to settlement is being looked for. The reservation is in the Northern part of Washington state, and close up to the Canadian boundary. The principal places in the neighborhood are Molson, Chesaw and Bolster which are within a few miles of the boundary line and are easily reached by the Canadian Pacific Railway's new Boundary Creek Extension to Midway, the distance from that point being only 19 miles to Bolster, 20 1/2 to Chesaw, 25 1/2 to Molson by a good wagon road. In the past difficulty has been experienced in getting shipments of freights to these parts, owing to a lack of customs facilities, but this will now be completely overcome, as the United States Government has just assigned a customs officer to Midway to facilitate the transfer of American freight to these points.

A RUNAWAY.—W. Y. Martin, who lives on a farm near Hopewell, Yamhill county, came to Salem yesterday to have a load of wheat chopped for feed. While unloading the wheat at Savage & Reed's mill, Mr. Martin left the wagon for a minute to go inside the building when, from some unknown cause, the team became frightened and ran down the street, scattering wheat as it went. The team landed against a tree in front of Mrs. Wait's house and came to a sudden stop. The tongue of the wagon was broken, but aside from this, the damage was slight.

TO PRISON.—Sheriff J. D. Loey, of Malheur county, came to Salem last evening, bringing three men to the penitentiary. They were O. C. Newman, convicted of larceny, and sentenced to serve a term of eighteen months; Robert Blaylock, larceny, two years, and Win. Thurman, larceny, five years. Newman has a broken ankle, and Dr. H. T. Hooper, of Vale, accompanied the sheriff, to look after the injured man. The guards accompanying in the sheriff were: Win. W. Moffatt, Ernest Loey and C. A. Gilliam.

MENTAL BREAKDOWN.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 13.—Dr. Garlick testified today under oath that Yontsey's brain is partially paralyzed, that he could not talk or entertain ideas; that it was a case of mental breakdown or nervous prostration.

BEST TIME FOR PLANTING TREES.

Very small trees or shrubs of small size, unless of very hardy nature, should, if practicable, be planted in the spring. Trees and shrubs of fair size from the nursery can be planted in the fall with good success. The present month of October is one of the best times to get such stock in the ground. If planting be deferred until later there is not so much chance of their making new root fibers, before the winter sets in. Evergreens will generally do better planted in the spring than in the fall, unless it be some of the hardiest sorts, such as the Norway spruce. Trees having fleshy roots, such as the magnolias, chestnuts and the like, also generally do better if set out in the spring, but if carefully planted in the fall, not later than this month, they should do well if in a fairly protected place and not allowed to dry out too much before winter.—Robert H. McGregor in the October Woman's Home Companion.

BASEBALL.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—The National League baseball season came to a close at sunset tonight. The result is as follows:

Club.	Won.	Lost.	Per Cent.
Brooklyn	82	54	60.3
Pittsburgh	79	60	56.8
Philadelphia	75	63	54.3
Boston	66	72	47.8
Chicago	65	75	46.4
St. Louis	64	75	46.0
Cincinnati	62	76	45.0
New York	60	78	43.5

THE LADY PALMIST.

She Makes Two Hundred Dollars a Week.

(Harvey Sutherland in Ainslee's.)

"She is a lady with a past and a prosperous present. She makes about $200 a week from the exercise of her arts. She had prints of palms all over her room, but I did not ask her for a reading, because I had in my pocket a typewritten copy of the same 'spiel' that she uses. She got from a man whom my spirit-controls tell me was once a bootblack, later a page in the United States Senate, and a protégé of a Senator who lived in one state and represented another. He has passed to the summerland now, but my spirit-controls seem to say that he had red hair. The page fell upon evil times, and did a little race track touting and swindling. He got to be door-tender for a palmist and obtained a copy of his spiel. It is very complete in its directions. It begins with: 'Good-morning; nice weather we are having. Do you wish a full reading?' and goes on to the end: 'Good-morning. Call again.' In this 'spiel' the client writes his name, parents living, brothers and sisters, and his wish on an ordinary pad, whose bottom end is held with a clip. The client tears off the leaf, puts it in his pocket-book, and the soothsayer takes the pad, and is called from the room long enough to read what the carbon paper two sheets below has manifested. Then the soothsayer comes back and tells what the spirit-controls have told, to the great astonishment of the client, who knows he has his original writing in his pocket. The 'spiel' doesn't call him a client, though. In the directions it says: 'Hand the sucker the pad,' etc."

"The 'spiel' advises that everybody be told that the will live to be eighty-eight years old, so that if the sucker comes another time he will find confirmation of his previous reading. There is no danger, it says, of two comparing the readings and discovering that they are identical, because if they had sense enough for that they would not go near the game."
