LETTER SENT FROM PARIS

Prof. E. R. Lake, of Corvallis, Writes to Gov. T. T. Geer.

HIS VISIT TO THE GAY CITY

He Gives His Impressions of the French Capital—Art in Horticulture—A Big Display.

(From Daily Statesman, Oct. 21.) Gov. T. T. Geer yesterday received a letter from Prof. E. R. Lake, of Corvallis, now in Paris, where he spent several months. The following excerpts are taken from its pages, by the kindness of the Governor:

"Arriving here in the early part of July, I found it very hot in Paris, the hottest, in fact, that has been officially recorded in over a quarter of a century. I was unable to obtain a suitable interpreter at once, and consequently remained in Paris, visiting the nurseries, orchards, gardens, parks and farms in the vicinity for about six weeks, also having an opportunity to see two temporary horticultural exhibits of wonderful merit. In August I proceeded to visit France, and in a trip covering nearly a month, I stopped in all the important cities of Southern, Eastern and Western France, and taking side trips from these places saw many of the best farms, orchards, if they can be called orchards, gardens, parks and public places in the country. On my return to Paris I attended the horticultural congress, of all nations, saw another immense display of fruits, flowers and foliage plants, then departed on a three weeks' tour of Germany, Bohemia (Austria) and Switzerland, having now just returned in time to see the biggest fruit exhibit that has ever been seen together at one time. Words of mine cannot express the magnitude or beauty of the display. There is so much that one cannot fully grasp it in the four days through which it is kept on the tables. Think of one man exhibiting 350 varieties of pears, 180 of apples, 80 of grapes, besides plums, strawberries, raspberries, currants, nuts and various other fruits! and then try to conceive of 10 to 15 exhibitors in the same class, besides a multitude of others. This much for fruit. Then there are thousands upon thousands of specimens of potted flowering and foliage plants. The whole makes a display of marvellous dimensions, wonderful beauty, and almost distracting variety. The most remarkable feature of these displays is the fact that everything is done with a full view of making it artistic. Art in form and color reigns supreme! I can only wish that our people could see the wonderful exhibit of fruits and flowers.

He has a jag on a load on a spike on a bur on; he has the sun in his eye, he can't see a hole in a ladder, and can't lie down without holding on.—New York Sun.

THE PRACTICAL SIDE OF IT.

"There is so little money in literature," said the wife. "that I think you would be wise to choose some other profession. Why, the man who runs the ice wagon makes more than you do, the butcher goes out driving every Sunday, the baker wears a beaver and a linen collar and the real estate man has three diamonds in a white shirt, to say nothing of the coal man, who goes to sleep in church on a velvet pillow every Sunday the Lord sends!" "Molly, think of Genus; what am I to do with that?" "The Lord only knows, John! But how nice it would be if you could only split into kindling wood at so much a cord, or swap it off for a barrel of flour and a sugar cured ham!"—Atlanta Constitution.

A TOTAL LOSS.

"I think that I'll be married on my birthday," said Miss Tommey. "What?" exclaimed Miss Frocks, holding up her hands in consternation. "and lose one entire set of presents!"—Detroit Free Press.

WAS ENGAGED AT ONCE.

"I want a man to relieve me of the work of getting out my next almanac," said the patent medicine manufacturer. "Have you had any experience?" "Can't say I have in just that line," replied the up-to-date advertisement writer; "but I can do the work in such a way that it will give everybody a pain."—Philadelphia Record.

Mrs. Subbubs (prompting)—Amen! Now, go to sleep. Little Elsie—But I'm not through yet. Mrs. Subbubs—Yes, you are. You said "God bless mamma and papa," and all the rest. Little Elsie—But I want to say, "God bless Bridget, and make her good girl, so she can stay a few days."—Philadelphia Press.

FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS

RED HILLS DISTRICT CONVENTION HELD IN TURNER.

Interesting Sessions, at Which Able Papers Were Presented—A Profitable Day Spent.

TURNER, Or., Oct. 17.—A very interesting convention for the Red Hills district opened at Turner at 10 o'clock today. Rev. McComb in the address of welcome, said every Sunday school worker should not only be in earnest, but he should also be an expansionist.

Mrs. Chas. Townsend, in response, speaking of the needs of the Sunday school, urged the necessity of preparation on the part of the teacher and also the same for the scholar. Primary work was discussed by the number of members of the convention, emphasizing the importance of the first two or three years of instruction.

After adjournment at noon a dinner in the Sunday school room was supplied by the hospitality of the ladies of Turner. Both dinner and hospitality were immense. All for the hour, heeded the invitation to become expansionists—the second table was as good as the first, and great stacks of good things were left for the third.

During the afternoon session an address, by Prof. Cummings, on "How to Conduct a Teachers' Meeting," was full of good points. He said that teachers need to discuss how best they can carry forward their work—just as workers in other lines need to plan for the success of their work. Jesus was the introducer of children to the world. How and what to teach, and what not to teach, were questions for consideration. Teach the Scripture from the Scripture. "Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they which testify of me." The teacher is on a safe road who follows the Scriptures.

A paper was read by Walter Brookhart, a member of Professor Cummings' class, on the nature of Sunday school work at the Reform School. Boys sometimes come to the institution who never heard a religious song; many of the boys appreciate the efforts of those who try to teach them the way of life. "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung in signs by a young lady from the Deaf Mute School—the grace of her movements approached the sublime, in accord with the music of that grand old hymn.

Home Department Work was presented by Mrs. W. R. Winans, one school in Ohio, of 52 members, had in its Home Department 820 members. A lady living in Tillamook county is a member of the Home Department of the M. E. church in Salem. This work promises to be one of greatest usefulness.

Dr. D. A. Waters said, if the religious instruction in the home could be what it should be, we would have little need of Sunday schools. House to house visitation work in connection with the Sunday school was ably presented by N. J. Damon, the state superintendent of that department, making a very decided impression upon all present.

After the usual devotional services in the evening Rev. W. S. Holt, D. D., of Portland, was introduced to the convention, and gave a very interesting and instructive address on "Normal Teaching," emphasizing the importance of a thorough training of teachers for their work in the Sunday school, and illustrating modes by which Normal instruction could be carried forward.

Rev. L. H. Pedersen was next introduced. He addressed the convention on the great evil, "The Liquor Traffic," and the importance of teaching our children to shun all complicity with this degrading business, and so train them that they may grow up to use all their influence to antagonize and exterminate this great evil. The convention was regarded as a great success by all present, and the ladies of Turner were highly complimented on their generous liberality in making provision for the comfort of the delegates.

LORD RUSSELL'S DILEMMA.

Once, when he first came to London and was laying the foundation of his great career, the future Lord Chief Justice went to the pit of a theater. The piece was popular, the pit was crowded, and the young advocate had only standing room. All of a sudden a man at his side cried out that his watch was stolen. Mr. Russell and two other men were hemmed in. "It was one of you three," cried the man minus the watch. "Well, we had better go out and be searched," said Mr. Russell, with the alertness of mind that did not fail him at a trying moment amid an excited crowd. A detective was at hand, and the suggestion was accepted. As Mr. Russell walked out the idea flashed through his mind that if the man behind him had the stolen property he would probably try to secrete it in the pocket of his front-rank man. Quick as thought he drew his coat tails about him—only to feel, to his horror, something large and smooth and round already in his pocket. While he was still wondering what this might mean for him, the detective energetically seized the blindfold man, exclaiming, "What, you rascal! at it again!" To Mr. Russell and the other man he apologized and bade them go free. But Mr. Russell, before he had taken many steps, reflected that he could not keep the watch. He went back to the box office and explained, with a courage on which he afterward said he rarely experienced greater demands, that though he did not take the watch he had it. So saying, he put his hand into his pocket and pulled out a forgotten snuffbox.—London Correspondence Manchester Guardian.
