ROOSEVELT TALKS. New York, Nov. 7.—Governor Roosevelt was up in good season today. The Governor said: "I rejoice beyond measure over the way the vote has gone. President McKinley had to face the most serious and complicated problems that have been faced by any President since Lincoln, and by any President a generation before Lincoln. It seems to be a perfectly fair test of the way our people are willing to back up a man who has done such difficult and all-important work for the Nation."

TEAMS OF FIFTY HORSES. Wonderful Outfits That Do New York's Heavy Trucking—The Vehicles Constructed of Steel Throughout and Designed to Carry Loads of Nearly 100 Tons—Curious Way in Which the Ponderous Horses Are Hitched to Them.

There are employed in this city at heavy trucking teams that for the number of horses hooked up together, the largest of circus teams far in the shade. The heavy teams with maybe twenty handsome horses strung out in pairs is great, and the driving of this outfit by a single man is considerable of a feat, but far more impressive are some of the trucking teams which occasionally run up to fifty horses, the passing of such a team being like that of a troop of cavalry; while the weight of the load it is hauling may fall far short of a hundred tons, this sort of turnout affords one of the most striking of the city's street sights. People line up on the sidewalk when it goes by, as they would to watch a procession, and there are not many occasions that can equal it for interest.

A thirty-horse truck team seen in the streets recently hauled a giant spool of wire cable, in itself a very conspicuous object. The spool is made of two great discs of wood, joined by an axle-like spindle, upon which the cable is wound. This sort of turnout affords one of the most striking of the city's street sights. People line up on the sidewalk when it goes by, as they would to watch a procession, and there are not many occasions that can equal it for interest.

The manner in which the team is hooked to come such an outfit for the first time is sure to prove of interest. At the wheel, as might be expected, are a pair of big horses; but these are not hooked to a pole; they stand between shafts. There are three of these shafts, the middle one projecting between the two horses. They are small timbers, six inches or so in diameter, and at the ends where they are attached to the axle they are framed into solid steel plates. Like any other shafts they can be raised or lowered at the front end, but framed to the axle at the other end, with those steel plates, there is no spring or give in any other direction. When they are turned to right or left the axle turns with them for sure. And not only are they thus held rigidly at the axle, but they are likewise so held at their forward ends, where a stout bar is placed across them. The big wheel horses, driven by a man who stands on the front end of the truck platform, are not expected to pull the load; their work is to keep the shafts steady and true. Hitched on at the end of each outer shaft, is a pair of horses; these two pairs standing side by side, making a rank of four horses in front of the two wheelers. Then from the end of each one of the two outer shafts there is carried forward a steel cable to which additional pairs are attached. The two cables thus running ahead, one from each outer shaft, are made in sections which can be readily joined together so as to make practically continuous towing cables of any length desired according to the number of horses to be hooked on to make up the team.

A thirty-horse team such as is here referred to would thus be made up, besides the wheel pair, of two columns of seven pairs each, strung along on two cables stretching forward from the shaft. The two columns can be driven out into the form of the letter V; and in some circumstances, as in working the team around a corner, it is handy to be able to use them in two lines. In the actual straight ahead haul the two strings of horses march side by side, in a solid column of ranks of four. The horses are powerful animals, sixteen hundredweight or thereabouts apiece, and they take the great load along with ease; presenting, as they move, a striking spectacle. For the fifteen pairs there are fifteen drivers, besides the man who stands on the truck and guides the wheel team.

AN EFFORT IS MADE TO RE-ORGANIZE THE OLD COLLEGE ASSOCIATION THE INITIATIVE IN THE MATTER. Executive Committee of State Teachers Association Takes the Initiative in the Matter.

The Executive Committee of the Western Division, Oregon State Teachers' Association, has issued a circular letter to prominent educators of Western Oregon, urging them to attend the next meeting of the State Teachers' Association, at Albany, December 26th to 29th, and there re-organize the old College Association. The letter was yesterday sent out by Prof. J. H. Ackerman, the superintendent of public instruction, who is secretary of the committee. It reads as follows:

"It has been decided by the Executive Committee of the Western Division of the Oregon State Teachers' Association to ask the College Academy, Normal School and High School teachers of the state to re-organize the old College Association at the annual meeting of the Association, to be held at Albany, December 26th, 27th, 28th, and 29th. As it is difficult to get track of the old organization, several years having elapsed since its last meeting, and the time is short in which to prepare a program, the Executive Committee has ventured to take the initiative for the present year, and invites suggestions of topics for discussion at the December meeting.

The plan of work of the Teachers' Association, as now arranged, provides for departmental meetings each afternoon, the general program occupying the forenoon. It is believed that by this arrangement strong departments can be organized and maintained.

You are earnestly invited to make such suggestions as may occur to you, and also to assist us in the organization by your presence."
