He said that he intended to engage between 200 and 300 acres in the vicinity of Salem which would be sufficient to produce what flax would be required for this season as the company would start up on a very small scale and build up as the quality of the fibre improved. He has about 600 acres offered to choose from and will select a small tract from each district as a test to ascertain which land is the best adapted to flax culture and will produce the finer quality of fibre. When questioned as to flax impoverishing the soil, he said:

"There is no foundation whatever to the theory for the flax plant has one main or tap root which penetrates deep into the soil and the plant does not receive its nourishment from the surface and obtains as much nourishment from the elements as it does from the soil. In Belgium when the soll becomes so lifeless that it will not produce a good crop of wheat, the farmers plant it to flax which gives the land a rest and acts as a fertilizer so that a good crop of wheat can be produced the following year. It is all bosh." He has ordered fifty sacks or about sand or loam. Do not plant land that dining hall where a munificent banquet had been spread in their honor. The dining room was gorgeously festponed and decorated for the occasion in purple and white creps tissue, even to the table and the walls, and the hands of the massive clock in the dining room pointed to the hour of "11," the emblematic hour of the order, when a toast is drank to all absent members. A great surprise was in store for the visitors, when all had been sented at the table, Superintendent T. W. Potter announced that there was one promiment Elk who had not arrived yet, and open and a real live Elk stalked in bedecked with the colors of the lodge, and a tremendous cheer arose.

An elaborate bill of fare had been prepared and printed in an appropriate design by the force of printers at the school,

The decorations were all very taste fully arranged under the supervision of Superintendent Potter and Mrs. Carrie Westfall, the widow of an Elk, Assistant Superintendent Campbell and Dr. The performance, which was Clark. witnessed by over 600 people, was a pronounced success far superior to anything of its class ever produced by a focal cast or amateur: troups and quite equal to the majority of the professional troupes, and the boys at every turn were given a tremendous ovation significant of the appreciation of their auditors

They will produce their performance in the New Grand Opera House this evening for which occasion almost all of the seats have been sold.

CROP AND THE PRICE

To Be Realized By the Growers Sending Their Growths to London-Market Now Higher Than Farmers Have Been Offered for Their Consignments.

The story of the Durst hop deal-the consignment of a large quantity of Oregon hops by the members of the Oregon Hop Growers' Association to M. H. Durst, and their shipment 'to London for sale-is dismissed by a man prominently identified with hop industry in Oregon, in a statement submitted to the Statesman last evening. The gentleman says:

"Mr. M. H. Durst, of California, last year got a large consignment of Orégon hops at 9 cents advance, Mr. They were received quite royally at Feller, who is now in London in comthe institution and escorted to the large pany with Mr. Durst to effect the sale of these hops, has written to Mr. W. H. Egan-as per letter published in the Salem Journal-that, the hops would net from 10 to 12% to growers (11c average). Whether this is considered good returns by the fortunate shippers is a matter that is open to question.

> "It is a fact, that 14 to 14% c has been freely paid in Salem, Or., this last fortnight for the London market. This price was offered for all the crop left and about 900 bales were purchased at the above figures."

"The fact that the pool was got up second cultivating, which must not be and extensively advertised helped to later than ten days after the first, at that moment the double doors swung keep down for the time being, the price of Oregon hops, as the London buyers withdrew their orders to wait for the big consignment, for no market is so susceptible as the hop market.
