OREGON MOUNTAINS

DESCRIPTIVE ARTICLE IN A NEW ENGLISH PAPER.

What a Writer in the Springfield (Mass.) Republican Found in Oregon on Washington's Birthday—Mild Sunshine—A Beautiful View of the Snow-capped Peaks.

An interesting descriptive article showing the beauties of the Oregon mountain scenery, appears in the Springfield (Mass.) Republican of March 9th, written by a correspondent of that paper from Portland.

PORTLAND, Or., Feb. 22.—To those who have passed their lives in New England, Washington's birthday is almost indissolubly associated with snow and ice, with cold winter winds, bare and naked trees, and a general air of desolation.

Little did the silent sleeper at Mount Vernon reckon of the vast heritage of mountain, river and plain, of mineral and agricultural wealth, that should be the production of the generations to come after him!

air, and mingles with the vapors from the distant hills. As far as the eye can see, looking eastward, the Cascade range stretches from south to north, and is lost beyond the horizon.

Following the line of vision are Mt. Jefferson, 10,000 feet high; Diamond peak, 9000 feet; Mt. Scott, 4500 feet, and others nearly as high.

Portland, Wash., the peak appears about 25 miles away. It is easy to imagine the silent sentinel, outlined against the sky, a massive volcano, and the vapor rising from it, caused by the warm rays of the sun, readily helps the imagination in the belief that volcanic smoke is belching from the pointed peak, but we know that whatever may have occurred before the earth was cold, now the mountain is dead, and frosted with the snows that never melt.

As the setting sun bathed with an almost unearthly light, peak, mountain, foothill, plain, valley and river, my thought went out to the mighty makers of this country, and in the purpling shadows and blue mists of the silent mountains I could almost see the faces of Washington and Jefferson and Lincoln looking down, and a myriad of others also crowded on the scene.

ger to consecrate ground for the vision place of souls, and the shadow of a mighty presence falls like a benediction on this natal day of the great.

THE NEW HOP CROP

Four contracts for Marion county hops of the 1902 crop were filed in the county recorder's office yesterday, aggregating 34,000 pounds of hops.

W. F. Miller, of Woodburn, to Lillenthal Bros. of New York, 10,000 pounds grown on the Miller farm, one mile north of Woodburn, at 12 1/2 cents per pound, 6 cents to be advanced for harvest.

W. F. Buell, of Silverton, to A. F. Backhaus, 10,000 pounds grown on the Buell farm, three miles east of Silverton, at 12 cents a pound, 5 cents to be advanced for harvest.

When an experienced physician offers to give away $40,000 worth of a New Treatment for diseases of the heart, nerves, stomach or dropsy, it is conclusive evidence that he has great faith in it.

That Dr. Miles is one of the world's most successful physicians is proven by hundreds of testimonials from well-known people. One patient, cured after failure of eleven Grand Rapids physicians, two after being given up by six and seven Chicago physicians, another after nine leading doctors in New York City, Philadelphia and Chicago failed, 1600 testimonials sent upon request.

The eminent Rev. W. Bell, D. D., of Dayton, O., Gen. Sec'y of Foreign Missions, writes editorially in The State Sunday School Union: "We desire to state that from personal acquaintance we know Dr. Miles to be a most skillful specialist a man who has spared neither labor nor money to keep himself abreast of the great advancement in medical science."
