

ATTEMPT TO BREAK JAIL

Prisoners in the County Jail Saw Through the Bars

BUT ARE PREVENTED FROM ESCAPING BY THE PROMPT ACTION OF COUNTY RECORDER J. H. ROLAND AND DEPUTY SHERIFF J. O. ESTES—OUTSIDE AID.

One of the boldest attempts at jail-break on record in this county, was nipped in the bud at the county jail yesterday afternoon, on the very eve of its success, through the acute perception of County Recorder J. H. Roland and the prompt action of Deputy Sheriff J. O. Estes, and the escape of four men, who are awaiting trial or serving sentences, was frustrated, when, if it had not been discovered until less than one-half hour later, the accomplishment of the plot would have been realized and the birds flown. As it is, however, all of the prisoners, five in number, are securely confined in the strong cell.

About 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon Recorder Roland had occasion to look up some records in his vault room when it occurred to him that the prisoners in the jail beneath were carrying on in an unusually boisterous manner and his suspicions were at once aroused. Not realizing the true situation of affairs, however, he went on with his work until, during a brief cessation of the turmoil, he thought he heard the distinct rasping of a saw or file. He stepped to the window of the vault, which was thrown wide open for ventilation and, peering down he discovered that the prisoners were trying to saw their way out and were applying a saw vigorously. Without a moment's hesitation he tipped out of the room and immediately repaired to the sheriff's department and quietly notified Deputy J. O. Estes, who was alone in the department at the time. Sheriff Durbin and Deputy B. R. Colbeth being out attending to official business temporarily, and, arming themselves, they both descended to the jail, but as a watch had been posted by the prisoners all was quiet and serene when they arrived at the outer door of the jail department, and the prisoners were all strolling about as innocent as lambs.

When Deputy Estes entered the jail, however, and investigated, he found that one of the bars of the lower section of the window guard, one inch in diameter, had been sawed off entirely, and another bar was within one-fourth of an inch of being severed, and he realized that only a few moments later the prisoners would have escaped. The prisoners all displayed much surprise and disclaimed all knowledge of the matter, but they were all hastily confined in their cells and, although a brief search was made, no saw was found, but upon examining the cell doors it was discovered that one of the bars in the door of the cell occupied by John Daly and Andrew Horner was sawed to a depth of one-fourth of an inch.

A thorough search was not made, however, until the arrival of Sheriff Durbin, who returned about 4:30 o'clock and he at once repaired to the jail and instituted a search for the saw, but it was not to be found and it was thought that upon being surprised in the midst of their work, the men had thrown the saw in the cesspool.

Later, however, when Sheriff Durbin locked them all in the strong cell together, his kind treatment overcame their rebellious natures and they finally volunteered the information that the saw had been hastily thrown into a pile of wood in the jail corridor. They also stated that prior to the commencement of the work of breaking out a solemn pledge had been taken by all of them to the effect that the one who first informed forfeited his life, but as soon as they were placed in a position that a consultation could be held it was decided to call off the pledge and tell where the saw was concealed in the hopes of securing the leniency of the officers and the court. The saw was found by the officers and proved to be what is known to mechanics as a "hack saw," a fine bladed blade about five inches in length, it having been broken, and one inch in breadth. From the fact that it was broken, the officers thought that the prisoners were still in possession of a portion of it, but this they denied.

A prisoner, Geo. Barker, who had just completed a ninety day sentence on conviction of the larceny of some clothing, had just been discharged from the jail yesterday morning and Sheriff Durbin immediately concluded that Barker had supplied the prisoners with the saw, but the latter would not divulge the source of the instrument, which for a time they regarded as their key to liberty.

Andrew Horner, one of the prisoners, finally told that the saw was passed in yesterday afternoon by Barker, through a small aperture which he, Barker, had made in the wire screen of the north window, on the east side of the building and it was secured by the prisoners inside. They then planned their escape.

About 8:30 o'clock last night the city police captured George Barker on the streets of this city, in a beastly state of intoxication, and they delivered him back to the jail where he, being too drunk to understand anything or make any complaint, was locked up, and a charge of complicity to jail break was preferred against him by the officers and it will no doubt go very hard with him.

The prisoners who were confined in the jail yesterday, and attempted to break were: John Daly, charged with larceny from a dwelling, having had two trials at the last term of court and bound over to the June term with a prospect of a long sentence in the penitentiary, where his partner in the crime is now serving a two-year term; Ralph Bland and George Koditz, two youths awaiting trial on a charge of the larceny of two railroad tickets to San Francisco from the Turner depot; U. P. Friar, serving a sixty days' sentence upon conviction of the larceny of a bicycle and with two other similar charges hanging over him, and Andrew Horner, bound over to the Circuit Court on the charge of giving liquor to a minor.

A BURIED TREASURE

STOLEN WHILE THE OWNER WAS AWAY FROM HOME ON A VISIT.

Mrs. S. D. Ewing, of Hubbard, about four months ago had a large sum of money, upwards of $200, stolen from her premises where she had it concealed.

According to her story, her husband, the late S. D. Ewing, was possessed of considerable property, principally personal, which he had on deposit in the Bank of Woodburn until during the month of January when he drew out the entire account. He had several heirs besides his wife and, it is thought, divided his estate among them before he died, so as to save having his property go through the probate court. About five months ago Mr. Ewing died.

According to Mrs. Ewing's story, which is handed down second-hand, her deceased husband always kept his money buried in a remote corner of the woodshed, which fact she supposed was known only to himself and her and, after his decease there remained of the treasure, her share of the estate, over $200 in gold coin, all of which was buried in the favorite spot and, as she supposed it was safe she allowed it to remain there.

About four months ago he went to Corvallis where she visited with relatives for three days, leaving her house in the custody and care of other relatives, and when she returned she went to see if her treasure was safe, but found that it was gone.

She had suspicions as to the guilty parties but kept her own counsel, only confiding her loss to a few of her friends whom she looked to for advice and then engaged the services of a Portland detective to ferret out the thieves. Up to the present the story has been kept very quiet and not allowed to leak out in the hope of catching the thieves and recovering the money but, at last reports, all efforts to capture them have been futile, so far as has been made public.

CAN HEAR A WHISPER

MISS NELLIE DUFFEE, A POPULAR YOUNG LADY OF SHAW, REGAINS HER HEARING.

Editor Statesman:

I came to Salem with my daughter, April 28th, to consult Dr. Darrin, concerning her deafness. After a thorough examination the doctor took the case under treatment, and in one operation and with the use of electricity, restored her hearing, much to our surprise and gratification. I was so much pleased with her cure that I placed myself under the doctor's care. He has already greatly alleviated an almost total deafness of one ear, with which I have been afflicted for twenty-three years. I can be referred to by letter or in person, and will gladly answer all questions. I reside at Shaw, Marion county, Oregon.

THE SALEM BIRD SOCIETY—

There was a very interested audience in attendance upon the meeting held at the Unitarian church last evening for the purpose of perfecting a permanent organization for the study and protection of birds, and while the organization was not quite perfected the meeting was a success in that the membership was increased to the number of about fifty and several new members were added to the staff as follows: Charles Cooper, second vice-president; Mrs. W. H. Byrd, third vice-president; Mrs. A. W. Prescott, corresponding secretary, and Wm. Warner, a member of the advisory board. During the meeting the audience was very pleasantly entertained by brief remarks upon the objects of the society all of which were very interesting and enthusiastic.

DAMAGE SUIT IS DECIDED

City of Monmouth Wins Out in the Supreme Court

IF A MOTION FOR A NONSUIT IS GRANTED, TESTIMONY MUST BE BROUGHT BEFORE THE APPELLATE COURT—OTHER CASES DECIDED.

In the Supreme Court, yesterday, several cases were decided, as follows:

Laura Adkins, plaintiff, and appellant vs. The City of Monmouth, defendant and respondent; appeal from Polk county, Hon. George H. Burnett, judge; affirmed. Opinion by Chief Justice R. S. Bean.

This was an action to recover damages for an injury alleged to have been received by plaintiff through the failure of the city to keep its sidewalks in repair. At the close of plaintiff's testimony the defendant moved a nonsuit on the ground that plaintiff had not proved a case sufficient to go to the jury, and the order sustaining this motion is the principal assignment of error. The court in its opinion states that it has been repeatedly held that the rulings of the Circuit Court on a motion for insufficiency of testimony, will not be reviewed on appeal, unless the bill of exceptions affirmatively shows that it contains all the evidence given up to the time the motion was made. As it did not so show, the appellate court holds that the ruling on the motion cannot be reviewed. The bill of exceptions also discloses that during the trial, plaintiff offered to prove certain statements by a former councilman of Monmouth regarding the conditions of the sidewalks, but the court held such testimony irrelevant and incompetent, and this was assigned as error. The appellate court holds that the alleged statements of the former councilman were not competent, because they were made after he had ceased to be an officer of the corporation, hence the ruling of the court was not error, and the judgment is therefore affirmed.

Ida M. Tobin, et al., respondents, vs. The Portland Flouring Mills Company, et al., respondents, A. Wheeler, respondent, and James C. Black, administrator, appellants; an appeal from Linn county, Hon. R. P. Boise, judge; affirmed. Opinion by Associate Justice F. A. Moore. This was a controversy regarding the payment of the fees of the receiver of the T. J. Black warehouses. The receiver reported having collected on account of sacks, storage and other charges sufficient to pay his expenses, and asked that he be ordered to pay these charges out of that fund. The defendants, the Portland and Salem Flouring Mills Companies, as creditors of the Black estate and J. C. Black as administrator, protested against such use of the money, as they claimed it belonged to the estate. The court ordered the receiver to make the payments of the expenses and his fees out of the funds collected on account of two of the warehouses, and the administrator appealed. The appellate court holds that, as the court had jurisdiction, it was authorized to charge the receiver's fees and expenses against the fund which the receiver had collected, and hence the decree is affirmed.

H. W. Hesse, respondent, vs. N. A. Barrett, et al., defendants, and Lucinda C. Jackson, appellant; appeal from Washington county, Hon. T. A. McBride, judge; reversed. Opinion by Chief Justice R. S. Bean.

This was a suit to set aside a deed from Defendants, Barrett and wife, to their co-defendant, Jackson, and a general assignment made by them for the benefit of creditors, on the ground that both instruments were made for the purpose of hindering, delaying and defrauding creditors. The trial court held the assignment valid, but the deed from Barrett and wife to Mrs. Jackson fraudulent and void, and from this decree Mrs. Jackson appealed. The appellate court holds that the deed was really received by Mrs. Jackson as in part satisfaction of a bona fide debt due her from the Barretts, and the decree is therefore reversed.

Other cases decided were: J. C. Goodale, respondent, vs. A. A. Wheeler, et al., appellants; appeal from Lane county, Hon. J. W. Hamilton, judge; affirmed. Opinion by Associate Justice C. E. Wolverton. Homer B. Mace, respondent, vs. F. L. Mace, appellant; appeal from Harney county; modified February 10, 1902, on appellant's motion for rehearing; affirmed. Opinion by Chief Justice R. S. Bean.

In the case of C. E. Harmon, appellant, vs. Charles Decker, respondent, an appeal from Josephine county, affirmed March 10, 1902, the petition for a rehearing was denied.

In the court, yesterday, the case of the State of Oregon, respondent, vs. L. L. Welch, appellant, an appeal from Douglas county, Hon. R. P. Boise, judge, was argued and submitted.

NOTE AND COMMENT

There is one place on the map where the Filipino water-cure is held in greater honor than in the Philippines, to-wit: Kentucky.

The forming of the giant window glass trust is enough to give a man a pane.

As the price of beef advances, people are heard to beef out loud.

A Louisville, Ky. girl, recently died in convulsions of laughter, a friend having told a funny story. It is remarkable how quickly our high-priced jokes get back East.

When the undertaker was asked, "How's business?" he replied, "My business is dead." (Police!)

It's apparent now that the lately hatched beef combine will suffer a few hard knocks before our Attorney General gets through with it.

A strike is on in Paterson, New Jersey, dye works. Rather hard when an advance in salary is denied men who would, if necessary, actually dye for their company.

A Battle Royal.

Chapter I.—Sure-Shot Henry, the boy detective, sat at the brink of a precipice wholly unconscious of the awful fate which was in store for him. As he held his head in his hands, a shudder passed over him at the thought of last month's room rent remaining still unpaid.

Chapter II.—Like a flash, his great detective instinct caused him to look up—but, alas, 'twas too late. In the twinkling of an eye, Baldy Sours, the bandit, was upon him, armed to the teeth with sixteen can-openers and a brace-and-bit. Then the terrible combat for supremacy was on.

Chapter III.—Our great detective fought on undaunted by the ferocity of a wounded catamount but to no avail, handicapped as he was. The battle waged fiercely for a trifle over four hours, until Sure-Shot Henry, the great detective, having been stabbed nineteen times through the lungs, and with both legs broken, at last found his strength waning.

Chapter IV.—Spurred onward at the thought of the great detective's falling strength, Baldy the Bandit summoned all his energy, and with one grand, supreme effort, the boy detective was being steadily pushed over the brink to be claimed by the awful abyss below.

Chapter V.—Fate seemed to be with our hero, however, for one of the bandit's suspenders was hanging loose at his side, and just as Sure-Shot Henry was falling he instinctively clutched at it.

Chapter VI.—The yanking of the suspender caused the bandit to lose his couler and simultaneously detective and bandit began falling together. While dropping, Baldy Sours, the bandit, was first to speak. He said: "I cherish my life as dearly as anyone, but I gladly give it now that I may have the satisfaction of knowing that you're goin' to croak."

Chapter VII.—At this instant Sure-Shot Henry, the prince of detectives, reached in his vest pocket, pulled out one of Skinnim & Company's patent folding combination parachutes and umbrellas, threw it open, broke the fall, gave to Baldy Sours, the bandit, the horse laugh as he was dashed to pieces below and landed safely on a farmer's hen house three miles down the creek.

Chapter VIII.—Sure-Shot Henry, the great detective, was rewarded by Skinnim & Company for advertising their goods, went home and paid his room rent, and when last seen by the author he was running a cold-storage plant and straw-hat factory at Terra del Fuego.

Chapter IX.—As for Baldy Sours, the bandit, one of his bootlegs may be seen hanging from the top of a tree, where it caught while he was falling, and the little bunch of grease on a rock where he fell was eagerly licked up by a coyote who inhabited that part of the woods.

COMMITTEES ARE FORMED

Celebration of the Nation's Birthday an Assured Success

PLANS ARE MAKING AND THE FIRST STEPS TAKEN. BY MASS MEETING LAST NIGHT, TO MAKE THE EVENT A NOTABLE ONE IN THIS CITY.

A larger or more enthusiastic crowd of interested business men and citizens seldom assembled in this city than that at the city hall last evening, on the occasion of the citizens' mass meeting for the purpose of receiving the report of the general committee appointed to make the arrangements for an elaborate celebration of the Fourth of July in this city, this year, and to hear the subject discussed. Chairman N. J. Judah presided, and, as the secretary of the general committee, who was in possession of the report, was detained, the first half hour was devoted to a general expression of ideas. Frank Davey delivered a few remarks and recommended that some speaker of semi-national reputation be selected and secured for delivering the oration for the day; some one who was noted for his ability in this line and whose reputation would be the chief drawing feature of the celebration. This suggestion has been offered before by E. Hofer and others and met with the hearty approbation of all present.

After the general committee had made its report, including the list of sub-committees, which report was adopted, it was suggested that the committees be taken up in turn and that suggestions from any and all present be solicited in order to give each committee an idea of the scope of its duties. The suggestion was carried out and during the discussion which followed, in which almost every one took part, some excellent plans were submitted which, if they are carried out, will combine to make the celebration the most elaborate of any ever held in this city in its history. It was recommended that, as the city was so appropriately situated on the Willamette river, which is so wide at this point, this advantage be utilized, and that every owner of a boat, large or small, be requested to decorate the craft and participate in a grand parade upon the river, and it was also proposed that a large raft be provided or the sandbar in the river be utilized for making the display of fireworks in the evening, which would not only add greatly to the effects, but would give everybody a splendid and unobstructed view of the display. Many other suggestions were made from which the committees may select and supplement by their own ideas to make it the grandest celebration ever witnessed in Salem.

The general committee reported that it had already met with much encouragement and that there would be no trouble at all to raise all of the funds necessary to carry out any scheme and proposed to spare no pains nor expense to carry out the plans. Money has already been offered and the A. O. U. W. lodge has informed the committee that one of the most beautiful floats ever conceived, was being planned to be entered in the parade and it was intimated that almost every fraternal organization in the city would be represented in this manner.

The suggestion that the general committee lease the vacant store building on the southwest corner of State and Commercial street for the occasion and decorate it and fix it up for a resting place for visitors and place therein tables for the accommodation of those who brought lunch with them, was well received and will go doubt be carried out and perhaps other empty store buildings utilized in a like manner.

The meeting throughout was a most enthusiastic one and there was no doubt left in the mind of any present but that Salem would celebrate and do so with such a vim as is seldom equaled and never surpassed.

The following list of sub-committees, and those selected to serve on them: Finance—H. G. Meyer, chairman; F. W. Durbin, Harry Albert, M. L. Meyers, P. H. Sroat, J. L. Stockton, A. C. Hoff, L. L. Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How to Find Out.
Fill a bottle of common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours. A sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also a convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Home of Swamp-Root, Co., Binghamton, N. Y.
