The hour of midnight had come, and the minute hand of the clock in the hall of the House was slowly turning towards the first small hour of the mornvotes for Mr. Fulton, twenty-nine for Harvey W. Scott, and seven for Hon. T. T. Geer, the Democrats remaining firmly in their column for C. E. S.

The time for adjournment had arrived and passed, and had the vote been announced without opportunity have been no election.

Then Nottingham of Multnomah changed his vote from Scott to Fulton, followed by Banks of Multnomah, Then, in quick succession, the following members changed their votes, from Mr. Scott or Mr. Geer to Mr. Fulton, in the order named:

There were others on their feet ready to change, but there was a great uproar, in which President Brownell announced that Mr. Fulton had received forty-six votes and was declared duly elected. He had received only fortyfive, however, but this was enough to elect, as eighty-nine votes in all were cast. The detailed account of the deciding vote is given below.

Senator-Elect Responds. There were loud calls for Mr. Fulton, and he finally reached the platform and was introduced by President Brownell, who said that in the election just recorded had been shot to pieces the last vestige of sectionalism in this state: that hereafter a man might aspire to be United States Senator, though he lived in Astoria or Ashland or on the uttermost borders.

In responding to the overwhelming greeting with which he was received, Mr. Fulton said he had oftentimes heard that words are inadequate for expressing the sentiments of the heart, but he had never before been so sensitive of the truth of it. He promised that he would give the state his most faithful services and devote the most unremitting attention to the duties of the high office. He said he would not go to Washington as the representative of any one locality, but of the entire state. He had been pained, he said, by the reports during the struggle that he would represent only a particular section. He said he would undertake to prove to the people of the great city of Portland that they never had a better representative of their interests in Congress, He heartily thanked the band of men who had so steadfastly stood by him in the long struggle. He thanked every one who had in any way contributed to his success, and he declared that he would bear no ill will towards his political foes who had made a manly and clean fight for their candidates, who are worthy and honorable men. He paid an especially fervid tribute to President Brownell, without whose help he declared that he could not have hopliant and brief speech. At this point, Davey, of Marion, arose to remind the members of the joint convention of their duty to the ing when the 43rd and last vote had people of the state, 78,000 of whom been taken, resulting in thirty-five had declared for the election of Senators by direct vote, Hon. T. T. Geer being the choice of 45,000 of them.

Senator Mulkey seconded the nomination of Mr. Scott, and did so in a speech full of oratorical flourish, in words most appropriately chosen.

But all the oratory of the evening was of little effect. The Fulton supporters were determined. They declared that they would stay with their man to the last, carrying the program through without an election if necessary. The combined strength of the other Republican candidates was not enough to elect, without any Democratic help. Some of those who changed their votes to Mr. Fulton on the last ballot did so only in order to break the dead-lock, in what seemed to them the only way to break it and secure an election.

TO PREVENT FIRES

GRANT'S PASS EXTENDS FIRE LIMITS AND ADOPTS NEW REGULATIONS.

GRANT'S PASS, Ore., Feb. 23 .- To prevent a repetion of the great lires of the past with which this city has suffered, the council and the citizens are doing all possible to increase the fire protection in removing structures that are liable to fire. The fire limits of the city have been greatly increased, and an ordinance passed by the council forbidding the removal of any wooden building within the fire limits from one part to another. The Southern Pacific Company, the depot and yards of which are situated in the business portion of the town, and which has more privileges than others in the matter of constructing wooden buildings within the fire limits, is no restricted from doing All warehouses and buildings erected by them in the future between Fourth and Seventh streets must be of brick. The new roundhouse which they have begun here to replace the one destroyed by fire last summer, will have to be built of brick. When the fire limits now designated are filled up with brick structures, Grant's Pass will present a metropolitan appearance,

Steering Committee Tries to Abandon Night Sessions at Cullom's Request

NO AGREEMENT REACHED AND DEMOCRATS ARE OPPOSED TO A COMPROMISE - HOUSE PASS-ED FORTIFICATIONS BILL -THE DEMOCRATS FILIBUSTERED.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20,-The Senate spent the entire day in executive session considering the Panama Canal Treaty, and at 5:25 p. m. took a recess until tomorrow at 11 o'clock. No vote was taken on any of the amendments which have been prepared by Senator Morgan. The division of the steering committee against night sessions was reached at a meeting of the committee held during the afternoon at the request of Senator Cullom, who has the Columbian treaty in charge and wished the steering committee to advise abandoning the night session. The opponents of the Statehood Bill never have believed that the measure could be carried as a rider on the Postoffice Appropriation bill in the Senate, but friends of the measure have discovered that they have votes not only to carry out this plan, but to overrule the chair should be decide the rider was not in order. Inquiry about the Senate today made the opposition apprehensive, though not convinced of this item and in the committee today, they said that if such be the case it would mean an extra session of Congress, and that the Apporpriation bill with the Statehood rider would be defeated.

It was also found that the leaders in the statehood fight were willing to assume the responsibility for this outcome. "THE POETRY OF THE ORANGE." "It appeals to you, when the fruit hangs ripe and sweet on the tree late in February, or early in March. Then the blossoms break out, and the trees are yellow with golden globes, and white with orange flowers. It may be that a flurry of snow has whitened the mountain tops, and then you have an artistic background for a tropical forest. The air is full of sunshine, and heavy with fragrance as night comes on, and then, if the moon be shining, you may hear at midnight through open windows, the song of the mocking bird in the scented grove, and it never seemed so melodious before. An experience like this is possible any winter, and it is worth a journey of a thousand miles, while you can have it, by taking the scenic Shasta Route through the grand and picturesque Siskiyou and Shasta Mountains, to Southern California.
