speaker, Ex-Governor T. T. Geer, who spoke in part as follows: Society is one of the marvels of this life. Though cramped by rules of society, still those rules are voluntary. Laws are made not only for the anarchist and the hobe, but for all men, for the preservation of the race, for harmony and for happiness. Our government is the product of the highest intelligence. Intelligent government requires an intelligent people, and vice versa. For instance, the government of Russia would hot do for the United States. Fact is, government in any country is the product of heredity.

We involuntarily provide for restraint because every proposition for restraint is an expression for the general concession for the general public good. Law must precede all civilization, as all government rests upon it.

No state in the Union has a better government than our own. Necessity for government was early seen. Such men as Nesmith, Walde, Butler, etc., came in the early '40s. There were no laws; but worse, no parent country, The first step in the direction of government was made at Champoeg, May 2, 1843. First call was for a measure to protect herds and a complete bounty law was passed.

Then it was held important that government for the protection, of ruman life be organized. The speaker then told of the settlement of Ewing Young's estate and gave several interesting bits from the early legislatures. On December 19, 1845, the Governor > CORRESPONDENT WHO AGREES THAT RIVER GRAVEL, PROPER-LY PUT DOWN, WILL MAKE THE BEST STREET FOR THE CAPITAL CITY.

I concur with your correspondent, Good Roads," that Salem's natural material for street construction will be found in the exhaustless beds of river gravel lying at its door; that this, well put down, with underlying bed of coarse gravel and taken care of by filling in where sinks shall oucur, will be all that most of our streets will require. If there is good macadam rock accessible, that might be laid on the more used portions. There are mountains of rocks very little distance away that will make good macadam. If Salem has any accessible, it is fortunate. Munsey Company, of New York, publishers of the Munsey Magazine, for a term of five years at $50,000 per year, with the specific agreement that he is to make not less than two cartoons a month. Homer 950 Davenport resigned his position as cartoonist for the New York Tribune and other Hearst papers and intended to start out upon a lecturing tour at $25,000 per year for a term of five years. When about ready to sign up he was offered an engagement with the Munsey Company for $50,000, but he received notice from W. R. Hearst not to sign up for that amount until he heard from him. From the news contained in his letter it would appear Albert Bushman Hart. that Mr. Hearst could not do any better for him and that he had accepted Bushman Hart. the Munsey offer. Mr. L. B.
