WILLIAMS IS ADVISED TO PRO-DUCE THOSE HE IS ACCUSED OF KILLING.

Evidence Against Him Seems to Make This His Only Hope of Release-Until After He Sees an Attorney.

THE DALLES ,Or., Feb. 12 .- "Produce the women you are accused of hiving murdered. That is the strongest point you can make in your own defense."

That advice was given this morning by Wasco county officers to Norman Williams, who has arrived here in custody of Sheriff Sexton, who brought him from Bellingham, Wash., to answer a charge of murdering Alma Nesbitt and her mother.

It is the belief of all that unless he produces those whose lives he is accustd of having taken, nothing can prevent his conviction, as accumulated evidence is strong against him.

Williams is very reticent and absolutely refuses to say anything concerning the crime with which he is charged. He came to the entrance of the corridor of the jail for a few moments when however, and peered with a close local circles. scrutiny through the bars when asked concerning his business with the local land office when he was in The Dalles three years ago. He inquired concern-

"Why did you refuse to come from Bellingham when you had signed an agreement to come without extradition proceedings?" he was asked. "I didn't refuse to come! This is the first I've heard of it," he said in

He was asked how he came into possession of the relinquishment of Alma Nesbitt's homestead, for the forgery of which he has been indicted by the United States grand jury. "I don't care to say anything about that," was his answer, as he fidgeted nervously. "You had a homestead adjoining this woman's?" he was asked, when he interrupted. "I will not say anything for publication," and began to back away.

"The newspapers," he continued, as he backed down the corridor, "convict a mad before he is ever brought to

It was then suggested that as one side of the case had been published, he would not prejudice himself by giving his side of the story, but he again interrupted:

"I'll say nothing. I want to see a lawyer first."

With that he disappeared around the corner of the corridor, and refused to be seen further.

Williams was very nervous when he was first brought to the court house, beneath which the county jail is situ-Bellingham, until he came to the train, when his nerve seemed to forsake him. He, however, came willingly. He sent for A. S. Bennett, an attorney, on his arrival, but Judge Bennett refused to have anything to do with the case. It was in Judge Bennett's family that Alma Nesbitt was employed for a time as a domestic before she left with her mother for her homestead back of Hood River, in Williams' company.
