

WAR BREWING

MARION COUNTY DEMOCRATIC FACTIONS ARE LINING UP FOR THE CONVENTION.

The Greatest Struggle Will Be For the Organization of That Body and State Convention Delegation—Evidence in Hand Indicates That D'Arcy Faction Broke Faith at the Primaries.

(From Saturday's Daily.)

There is every indication and little doubt is entertained that the Democratic county convention, which will be held in this city on Thursday, April 14, will be the most interesting, if not exciting of any held by the Marion county faithful for many years past. Prior and up to the time of the holding of the primaries there were strong indications that the factional strife which has been rife among the Democrats of this county for the past six or eight years, would be patched up and that harmony would once more be established in the ranks. The result of the primaries in Ward No. 1 of this city, however, wherein W. M. Kaiser and F. W. Steusloff were scratched from the ticket and the names of John A. Jeffries and D. J. Fry substituted, showed that at least one of the factions had not buried the hatchet and that the old score had been opened up anew.

In this ward reside both W. M. Kaiser and P. H. D'Arcy, the acknowledged leaders of the opposing factions, and here it was that an attempt was made to arrange a compromise in order to promote harmony in the party on the eve of the coming election. The leaders of the two factions got together and arranged the ticket satisfactory to all concerned, at least to all intents and purposes, that was the case, but when the ballots were counted it developed that the D'Arcy wing of the party had sharpened up their pencils and made good use of them to the defeat and embarrassment of the Kaiser faction. This made the blood boil and what the leaders had striven for several weeks to bring about had been undone in the course of a few hours.

The ire which has been aroused among the Kaiserites is growing in intensity and promises to assume the proportions of a huge dark cloud before the date of the convention arrives. In the convention the principal struggle of interest will be over the organization and 50th sides will put forth their best efforts to gain control. There are at least three members of each faction who are aspiring for the nomination for circuit judge and when this order of business comes up before the convention there promises to be things doing in the "pit." However, the Democrats have no hopes of securing the election of more than one of the circuit judges of the districts, if any, and it is thought that no matter who gets the delegation from this county it will probably go to the state convention in favor of the candidacy of Wm. R. Galloway, of Yamhill county, who announced himself as a candidate before the Jeffersonian banquet at the Willamette Hotel last week.

The Republican county ticket, as nominated by the county convention last Thursday is regarded as the strongest that has been put up for years, and the Democrats have little hopes of displacing many of the candidates on that ticket so they are figuring upon adopting another method of politics. Therefore they have about come to the conclusion, at least that is the consensus of opinion among the leaders of the party that they will center their fight upon about two of the legislative nominees, the county judge and the sheriff. As to the two latter, according to the opinion of the majority of the Democrats, there is very little hope of success over the Republican candidates, County Judge Scott, for re-election, and W. J. Culver, for sheriff, for they recognize in them the strongest men that could have been put up by the Republicans, but they have strong hopes that there will be some scratching on the Republican legislative ticket, and that, if any scratching is done, if they (Democrats) have only two candidates upon the ballot they reason that the Republicans will vote for one or the other of them and thus center the strength of the dissatisfied Republicans upon their candidates.

As to the county judgeship, the Democrats have been striving to induce Mayor Grant Corby, of Woodburn, to accept the nomination; but so far as can be learned, Mr. Corby will not consent to make the race. No other "strong" man has been mentioned for the honor to take chances against Judge Scott.

Whereas two weeks ago there were three candidates in the field, that is, there were three names mentioned, for the nomination for the sheriff's candidacy, August Huckestein has refused to accept the nomination, and B. B. Colvath, the present incumbent, has announced that he is not a candidate for re-election, the field is left clear for J. Harding, the only visible candidate, and it is quite probable that he will be the unanimous choice of the convention. So far the only names mentioned for the nomination for representative are August Huckestein and F. W. Durbin, but neither of these gentlemen has signified his willingness to make the race or accept the nomination if offered him.

DEATH OF E. L. INGALLS.

DALLAS, Or., April 8.—E. L. Ingalls, a veteran of the civil war and 65 years of age, died of paralysis in Dallas today. He leaves a widow in Dallas.

HIGH PRESSURE DAY.

Men and women alike have to work incessantly with brain and hand to hold their own nowadays. Never were the demands of business, the wants of the family, the requirements of society, more numerous. The first effect of the praiseworthy effort to keep up with all these things is commonly seen in a weakened or debilitated condition of the nervous system, which results in dyspepsia, defective nutrition of both body and brain, and in extreme cases in complete nervous prostration. It is clearly seen that what is needed is what will sustain the system, give vigor and tone to the nerves, and keep the digestive and assimilative functions healthy and active. From personal knowledge, we can recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla for this purpose. It acts on all the vital organs, builds up the whole system, and fits men and women for these high-pressure days.

PLANS GIVEN OUT.

New Capital of Philippines Will Be Located Upon High Ground.

CHICAGO, April 9.—Plans for the new capital of the Philippines were today made known by Secretary Taft. The Secretary said: "The new capital will be about 155 miles from Manila on a plot of ground over 5000 feet above sea level, which will make it far more healthy for Americans. "It is to be to the Philippines what Simla is to India and will be of great benefit to the islands."

AT WOODBURN

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF EP. WORTHIAN OF THE SALEM DISTRICT M. E. CHURCH CONVENED.

Large Delegations Were Sent From Both Methodist Churches of This City—Convention Will Hold Over Until Sunday Evening—Topics For Discussion Are Mission Study and Bible Study.

(From Saturday's Daily.)

Last evening at 7:30 o'clock the annual convention of the Epworth League of the Salem District met in Woodburn and will hold over until Sunday evening. All of the Epworth League Societies of Salem districts of the Oregon Methodist Conference, will take part in the convention, and the city of Woodburn will probably be filled to overflowing with Epworthians. The topics of the convention are Mission Study and Bible Study. A fare of one and one-third for the round trip was granted by the railway company, and a large delegation of young people were down yesterday afternoon on the overland train, which also bore many delegates from points up the valley. The delegates from the two churches of this city are as follows:

First M. E. Church.—Dr. Watters, Rev. W. H. Heppie, Prof. C. A. Dawson, Mrs. C. E. Cornelius, Mr. J. E. Allison, F. S. Gilbert, Dora Winans, E. Goode, Miss Julia Raymond.

Leslie M. E. Church.—Claire O'Flynn, Mrs. S. C. Kightlinger, Mrs. R. H. Varley, Miss Gertrude Johnson, Miss Anna Judson, W. Worthington, Miss Miller, of Crosson.

Following is the program for the two days convention:

FOUND DEAD IN BED.

Joseph Handel Dies of Apoplexy at the Sacred Heart Academy.

(From Sunday's Daily.)

Joseph Handel, aged about 60 years, was found dead in bed at his room in the Sacred Heart Academy, in this city, yesterday morning, the aged man having passed away some time during the night unknown to the other occupants of the building. Mr. Handel had not been feeling well for some time, but was able to attend to his duties as a gardener on the academy grounds, and his condition was not considered at all serious. On Friday evening he attended an entertainment at St. Joseph's hall and returned to his room shortly after 10 p. m. and retired for the night.

Failing to respond to the usual call an investigation was made at 8 o'clock yesterday morning when the body was found cold in death, the old man having evidently passed away without a struggle. Coroner A. M. Clough was at once notified of the death, and in company with a physician called at the room and examined the remains, but it being plainly evident that death was caused by apoplexy, no inquest was held. The body was prepared for burial by Undertaker Rigdon and shipped to friends at Woodburn, where the funeral will be held today.

From Irrigon.—

J. W. Hunt, W. A. Riee and J. A. Riee, of the Rosedale neighborhood, W. P. George, of Salem, and Mr. Thomas, of Portland, have returned from the Irrigon irrigation district, in Morrow county, where they went to look out for lands. They report quite an interesting trip.

GRAND LECTURE

COMMANDER BOOTH TUCKER DOES NOT FAIL TO SURPRISE LARGE SALEM AUDIENCE

Talks For Two Hours, Not Continuous, However, and He Held His Audience in Rapt Attention Throughout—Lecture Illustrated With Stereopticon Views and Tableaux—Resolutions Adopted.

(From Saturday's Daily.)

Commander Booth Tucker, the leader of the Salvation Army in the United States, and his party of sixteen persons, appeared at the Grand Opera House in this city last evening and was greeted by an audience which filled the large auditorium, gallery and boxes of the theatre to the utmost capacity, and it is agreed by all that the lecture and the special features which help to make up the evening's program, was the most interesting event of the kind that has been given in this city for years. Commander Tucker is not a man who could be called prepossessing in appearance, but is possessed of a strong personality and charm of manner which cannot be resisted, and while it is also true that he is not a gifted orator, his lecture was more of a descriptive character and he held the undivided interest of his audience throughout his over two hours' discourse and everybody was pleased.

Commander Tucker was introduced to the audience by Justice of the Supreme Court F. A. Moore, who paid him and his followers a high compliment for the earnestness, zeal and energy which they display in their work and for their vast accomplishments of good to poor, sick and fallen humanity. Judge Moore, in his introductory speech gave an interesting and eloquent general review of the growth of the Salvation Army movement, showing that all of the antagonism and persecution with which the Army met at the beginning, had been overcome, and that their light and good work had been recognized by all religious sects of the world. He also paid a high tribute to the late Consul Booth Tucker, wife of the Commander, who was killed in a Southern train wreck, and said that he deemed it a great pleasure and honor to have the privilege of introducing the speaker of the evening.

Commander Tucker, when he arose and approached the footlights, was received with tremendous applause. He gave a general description of the religious, industrial, colonization scheme and charitable work of the Salvation Army, and his lecture was beautifully and graphically illustrated with stereopticon views throughout, made up for the most part of scenes taken in the colonies which have been established by the Army in Colorado, Ohio, and California, and many pictures of prominent Salvationists, taken before and after they had entered the service of the Lord, showing a great and favorable contrast.

His lecture was not of the continuous order, but was interestingly interspersed with singing, by the members of the party, the audience joining in the choros, prayer, and tableaux illustrating the work of the Army in the large cities of the United States and Europe. While not given to flights of oratory, Commander Tucker's voice contains a certain pathos and eloquence which appeals to his hearers and he held them in rapt attention from beginning to end. It is safe to say that there was not a soul in the audience who was disappointed in the man or his lecture. As Commander Tucker and the Army are devoting their greatest efforts to the colonization scheme, and Commander Tucker's chief object in touring the country being to promote popular interest and concern in the passage of a bill now pending before Congress, he devoted the greater portion of his address to the explanation of this scheme, and the description of the results so far achieved from the experiments made, and before the close of the evening's lecture he offered the following set of resolutions which were unanimously adopted by the audience which vouches its approval by long and hearty applause:

Homes For the Homeless.
Whereas, The best principles of good government require that the remaining public lands available for homes should be placed within the reach of those who are willing to work and establish themselves upon them; and

Whereas, Many persons now living in the cities would be willing to make their homes upon the public lands if proper facilities were provided to enable them to accomplish that purpose; and

Whereas, The congregation in the cities of large numbers of such people, who are worthy of assistance, is a menace to the future of the country, in that they are compelled to live and their children to grow up amidst surroundings which are detrimental to their health and morals and not conducive to the best citizenship; and

Whereas, Farm colonies on the public domain and vacant lot cultivation in cities when conducted under proper auspices have shown the adaptability of such people to successful agriculture; and

Whereas, The conditions point to the necessity of carrying out the plan announced by President Roosevelt in the words: "Give every man who wants a chance to get a home on the land"; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we urge the speedy passage by Congress of a bill drawn to meet the situation and entitled "A Bill to Create the Colonization Bureau and to provide for Advances to Actual Settlers on the Public Domain"; and be it further

Resolved, That we request our Representatives and Senators to use their best endeavors to secure the passage of said bill.

New Shop.
The new building now being put up on the corner of Ferry and High streets will be occupied after Monday morning by Jack Darr as a blacksmith shop. He will have there all the latest and most improved equipment for good work, and will be prepared to do everything in his line with neatness and dispatch. Mr. Darr is well known, having been in the blacksmithing business in Salem for twenty years, and will be glad to see all his old friends at his new shop.

For the Monument.

The Aid Society of the W. R. C. were royally entertained at the residence of Mrs. Culvert, at 218 Union street, on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Culvert was assisted by her niece, Mrs. Lemon. The Aid Society at that meeting finished up the work for the building which will be held in the Klunger building on State street on Wednesday afternoon and evening. The ladies will also give a dinner and supper in connection with their bazaar. The money realized will go toward the monument fund.

PLAIN WORDS

HON. W. M. KAISER GIVES THE FACTS ABOUT DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY ELECTION.

How the Result in Salem Precinct No. 1 Was Brought About With All the Circumstances Leading Up Thereto—Who Is Responsible For Factional Fight.

Editor Statesman:

I would kindly ask you to allow me a short space in your paper, to give a brief explanation of the facts in regard to the Democratic primary election of delegates in Salem precinct No. 1, held on March 26, 1904, so that my Democratic friends may understand the true situation. A short time before the date for holding the primaries, I suggested to Mr. F. W. Steusloff that we ought to agree on a ticket in our precinct so that there would be no contest to the end that we would have a harmonious primary election, and a harmonious county convention. Mr. Steusloff cheerfully agreed to my proposition. I then went to Mr. John A. Jeffrey and submitted the matter of a compromise ticket, in the interest of harmony, in the Democratic ranks, to which he very heartily consented. Thereupon Mr. Jeffrey and myself suggested certain names for delegates, Mr. Jeffrey writing down the names himself. I then told Mr. Jeffrey to take the list to Mr. D. J. Fry, (see if I named off the list of proposed delegates, I thought it my duty to explain the result to him which was agreeable to Mr. Jeffrey. I saw Mr. Steusloff, and he called on Mr. Jeffrey, and they mutually agreed that Mr. Jeffrey would withdraw from the ticket, and Mr. Steusloff was put on in his place. This was done at the instance of Mr. Jeffrey, and he informed me that this arrangement was satisfactory to him. The agreed ticket then consisted of the following names: A. M. Dalrymple, C. W. Corby, F. W. Steusloff, Wm. Kaiser, Dr. W. S. Mott and P. H. D'Arcy. After the ticket was agreed upon, Mr. Dalrymple procured their printing at the instance of Mr. Jeffrey and myself. At the opening of the polls I voted a straight ticket as agreed upon, and voted it openly so that the judges and clerks could see just how I voted. Immediately after voting I went to my office and attended to my legal business during the remainder of the day without having any thought other than that the said compromise would be carried out in good faith.

When the vote was counted at the close of the polls, it was found that fifteen votes had been cast, and that Mr. Steusloff had received seven votes and I had received five votes, that Mr. Fry was elected in my place and Mr. Jeffrey elected in the place of Mr. Steusloff. The manner and uniformity of the scratching on a number of the tickets tends to prove that our names were given to the voters, any one can observe this by an examination of the ballots in the office of Mr. P. L. Fraiser, secretary of the county central committee. As I supposed there would be only one ticket in the field, and as I voted the straight ticket, of course I voted myself. The following persons have personally informed me that they voted for me, to-wit: C. W. Corby, F. W. Steusloff, F. E. Davis, and Henry H. Savage, which including my own vote make the five votes cast for me, which shows that Dan J. Fry, Dr. Mott, A. M. Dalrymple, and P. H. D'Arcy did not vote for me, and they all voted at the said primary election. Their votes would have elected Mr. Steusloff and myself.

As I have, prior to this primary election, been somewhat censured, although unjustly, for keeping up a factional fight, I feel that it is due to myself as well as to my friends to publish this statement of facts in the case, so that the Democrats of this county and state may understand who it is that is responsible for the disorganization and lack of harmony in the Democratic party in Marion county.

Dated at Salem, Oregon, this April 8th, 1904.

HOMER DAVENPORT ENTERTAINED LARGE AUDIENCE AT THE METHODIST CHURCH LAST EVENING.

Told the Story of His Life From His Boyhood Days as a Green Country Boy Through the Varying Vicissitudes Illustrating His Tales By Numerous Hasty Cartoons—Reception at Geer Residence.

Homer Davenport's famous lecture, "The Power of the Cartoon," delivered by that illustrious son of Marion county, was listened to by a large audience which nearly filled the spacious auditorium of the First Methodist church last evening. Homer is not a lecturer and he does not attempt it, but he can tell stories, and his lecture consisted of chronicles of events in his past life, but there was not a soul in the audience who went away disappointed. This was not his first lecture before a Salem audience and every person who was permitted to hear him the first time, availed himself of the opportunity presented last evening of listening to him again, and they all declare his lecture last night was better than the previous one.

It was certainly a splendid evening's entertainment and a refreshing oasis for those who are accustomed to listening to dry, would-be humorous lectures. If there was nothing at all funny about a story, it convulsed the audience when Homer told it, and it was not an effort to laugh either, but the most attractive feature of the evening was the exhibition of drawing cartoons by the great artist. While telling a favorite story he would delve into those spacious trouser pockets for a piece of crayon, and suddenly turning to the chart behind him, would with a few hasty flourishes reproduce a perfect likeness of some prominent public character, which never failed to bring enthusiastic applause from the audience.

Ex-Governor T. T. Geer introduced the speaker of the evening in a humorous address, telling of the early life of the artist, when he was a green country boy in the Waldo Hills, and how he had become such an expert in natural history that he was able to tell a cow, a pig or a chicken at first sight.

When Mr. Davenport appeared on the rostrum he was cheered to the echo which pleased him so much that he promised to return within three years and make his home permanently in the Waldo Hills, which he considered the garden spot of the world, and the ideal place for a home. He described in detail his trip to San Francisco, when he started out into the world to win fame as a cartoonist, carrying a paper traveling bag on each side of which he had drawn a picture, and was compelled to explain who he was to every man he met on the trip. He had seen a twenty dollar bill on the inside of his shirt for safe keeping and when he arrived in the city without money, was fired off the street car because he could not extricate the bill in public, and was afterward compelled to buy a cigar for a chance acquaintance in order to get his money changed into street car fare. Probably the most pathetic story told was of the celebrated cartoon "Lest We Forget," how it came about, and the gratitude of Admiral Dewey, who was thus led to abandon his plan of going to Southern France to live, and return the house and lot to the public.

Homer did not forget that his father had sold one of the finest farms in Marion county to move into Silverton and give him the advantages of culture by moving in Silverton high society in order to cultivate his artistic talent, nor of his apprenticeship as a shoemaker, when he was put to work was sawing a twenty cord pile of wood.

After the lecture there was a grand rush for the rostrum to secure possession of one or more of the cartoons which he had drawn and cast aside during the evening.

Reception and Serenade.
Davenport was escorted to the home of ex-Governor Geer, where a number of old-time friends had been invited to meet him and talk over the events and scenes of by-gone years. While the assembled guests were enjoying a visit with their former neighbor and associate, the Salem Military Band appeared, representing the Salem Press Club, and serenaded Mr. Davenport. After one tune had been played by the band stationed on the lawn, Davenport appeared upon the veranda to listen to the music. At the close of the next selection he stepped down and took the snare drum from the drummer, and played it through the next number. The band boys declared afterward that Davenport handled the sticks as though he had been practicing with the band every night. Before the boys played their farewell selection Davenport made a few brief remarks, expressing his thanks for the attention shown him and assuring the boys that their band is second to only one—that at Silverton.

Another Violator Arrested.
Ed Kruger ventured upon forbidden State street sidewalk while mounted upon his silent steed last evening and was promptly gathered in by Officer Murphy. Kruger will be interviewed by Recorder Judah this morning.
